San Rafael General Plan Is Drafted

By NELS JOHNSON

The San Rafael Planning Commission — after meeting in 27 public sessions to revise and refine an inch-thick general plan proposed in January by consultants Duncan and Jones — has drafted a 22-page version of the document.

The plan, published in tabloid edition and distributed this week to every residence in the San Rafael planning area, is a compendium of proposals by commissioners, consultants, city staff and citizens.

The commission, after airing the document in a public hearing set for 9:30 a.m. Saturday in city hall, is expected to approve the plan and pass it to the city council.

The proposal is similar in some respects to the document submitted by Duncan and Jones. There are, however, sweeping differences, with the commission deleting or substantially revising several key proposals.

The commission's plan abandons consultant proposals for underground people-movers downtown, a downtown "multimodal" transportation hub and a major new freeway interchange near Second Street.

The commission's plan also abandons the consultant proposals for an annual growth quota, encouraging duplex and triplex units in single-family residential neighborhoods, and boosting the proportion of moderate and low income housing in San Rafael.

Most extensive revision is apparent in commission drafts of the housing and transportation elements. The consultants' housing chapter was angrily rejected by the commission in May after city officials declared it failed to reflect commission viewpoints. City staff rewrote the chapter.

The commission plan, in rejecting notions of growth quotas, proposes instead to control residential growth by linking it with environmental "holding capacity" and availability of services. "The appropriate densities in the built-up and newly developing areas will be determined based upon a thorough evaluation of the environmental capacities of the various neighborhoods, and, eventually, on the specific plans to be developed for each neighborhood," according to the plan.

Under a "residential review procedure" all major project proposals will be batched and submitted to the planning commission on a quarterly basis. A review of services, utilities and environmental criteria will then determine appropriate density levels.

(While the plan proposes no mechanism to convert environmental and other criteria to numerical density levels, planning director Herbert G. Hotch-

Reinecke Says He'll Resign Voluntarily

No Date Suggested By Lieutenant Governor

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — Republican Lt. Gov. Ed Reinecke, convicted last week of lying to a Senate committee, announced today he will voluntarily quit his office.

In a five paragraph statement delivered to newsmen, Reinecke said Attorney General Evelle J. Younger has ruled that "I may continue to serve as lieutenant governor until the judgement is entered.

"I would like to publicly state that the office of lieutenant governor will never have to be vacated through legal action by the state. I will voluntarily resign prior to such an action being necessary."

In a prepared statement, the 50-year-old state official and one-time heir-apparent to Gov. Ronald Reagan did not say precisely when he would resign.

Reinecke issued the statement a few minutes before Younger, a fellow Republican, called a news conference to publicly disclose his opinion on whether or not and for how long the lieutenant governor could remain in office.

Only yesterday, Democratic Secretary of State Edmund G. Brown Jr., his party's nominee for governor, demanded that Reinecke resign immediately.

"The news media, the general public and other state elected officials have been considerate of my situation, my rights and my continued ability to function as lieutenant governor, and I thank them for their fairness," Reinecke said.

He insisted again he was "absolutely not guilty" of perjury and repeated that he ordered his lawyers to "take every possible legal step to get the decision reversed."

The state constitution excludes convicted perjurers from holding office, but legal questions have surfaced on when the prohibition was effective at the time a jury returns its verdict, or when a sentence was formally imposed or when appeals were exhausted.

Reinecke told reporters yesterday that "I want to serve out my term. I was elected to a four year term, and I intend to serve it out unless precluded by law."

In his statement today, he said there was never "any question in my own mind that I would not abide by the law and constitution of the state of California, and it was at my request that the attorney general studied this issue."

Reinecke was convicted of one count of perjury in connection with his 1972 testimony to the Senate Judiciary Committee regarding his knowledge of an offer by International Telephone and Telegraph Co. to help finance the GOP National Convention then planned for San Diego.

Meantime in Washington, Reinecke's attorneys asked that his conviction be reversed. In a motion filed in U.S. District Court, they contended the testimony on which he was convicted was "literally true" and should not be considered perjury.

Rhodes Agonizes On Impeachment

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Sen. Henry M. Jackson, D-Wash., taking issue with Senate Democratic leaders and two conservative supporters of President Nixon's policies, said today an impeachment trial would have to start over if this Congress ended without a verdict.

Jackson, a probable Democratic presidential candidate in 1976, said that he did not think there was any question that the entire impeachment process — including the preliminary House invesgiation —would have to start over if the proceedings dragged on to 12:01 p.m. EDT on Jan 3, 1975, when the two-year tenure of the 93rd Congress expires.

Jackson's view was in direct conflict with that of Senate Democratic Leader Mike Mansfield of Montana and his assistant, Robert C. Byrd of West Virginia. They contended that a trial could continue, even though some senators would not take office until Jan. 3.

The Senate is in the process of trying to shape the rules under which it will try Nixon if, as expected, the House votes impeachment.

Sens. John G. Tower, R-Tex., and James B. Allen, D-Ala., who generally have supported Nixon's policies although they are not necessarily on his side in the impeachment fight, agreed with Mansfield and Byrd. They also said they did not believe a Senate decision to carry over the trial could be appealed to the courts.

Jackson was asked on the NBC-TV Today program if he felt an uncompleted trial would have to start over in absence of a decision by Jan. 3.

"Yes, I do," he replied. "I don't think there is any question qbout it."

He said "I believe our authority expires Jan. 3 at 12:01" and if there is no decision by noon, "we would be in a real mess."

In reply to another question, Jackson said he felt that if the issue was not resolved, the entire impeachment process would have to begin anew from scratch —going back to the House Judiciary Committee's investigation.

Although Mansfield, along with most senators, is determined to complete a trial before the end of the year, the possibility has been raised it could spill over into the 94th Congress, which meets in January.

That raises the prospect of

Could Next Senate Continue Nixon's Impeachment Trial?

WASHINGTON (UPI) — House Republican leader John J. Rhodes was portrayed today as anguished over whether to call for President Nixon's impeachment.

Another influential conservative Republican, Rep. John M. Ashbrook of Ohio, predicted Nixon would be impeached by a 3-1 margin in the House.

Ashbrook, who endorsed impeachment over the weekend, said the President would go into a Senate trial as an underdog and would be "hard pressed" to find the 34 Senate votes required to stay in office.

Nixon resumed today the time consuming task of listening to Watergate tapes to be turned over to a federal court.

Deputy Press Secretary Gerald L. Warren said Nixon put off a morning meeting with his economic advisers so he could listen to the tapes and so that the aides could have more time to prepare their reports.

Warren and other White House assistants again denied Nixon planned to resign. But some aides privately gave a pessimistic assessment of impeachment in the House because of changing attitudes among some congressmen.

"A regrouping is going on," said one official. He indicated Nixon has not yet devised a concrete new strategy to shore up his position.

Rep. Charles E. Wiggins, R-Calif., who led Nixon's defense during the House Judiciary Committee sessions which approved three articles of impeachment, said, "Everybody's been telling me about Republican erosions but I don't find any."

Dairy Group Pleads Guilty, Draws Contributions Fine

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The nation's largest milk cooperative pleaded guilty and was fined the maximum $35,000 today for conspiracy and making illegal campaign contributions to both Republicans and Democrats.

The charges stated that Associated Milk Producers Inc. (AMPI) gave corporate funds to the political campaigns of such Democrats as Sen. Hubert H. Humphrey and Edmund S. Muskie as well as to Herbert W. Kalmbach, President Nixon's personal lawyer and a chief fundraiser for his 1972 reelection campaign.

It was AMPI's contributions and a pledge of $2 million to Nixon's campaign that prompted Watergate prosecutors to look into milk producers' donations and led to the indictment earlier this week of former Treasury Secretary John B. Connally.

"We've learned the bitter experience by giving too much power to a few," AMPI lawyer E. C. Heininger said during the court proceedings. He said the 40,000 AMPI members from Minnesota to Texas "are going to bear the cross of this for years to come."

Heininger said the management of AMPI had changed since the offenses took place.

AMPI was charged on one count, punishable by a $10,000

AC Drivers Reject Pact

OAKLAND (UPI) — AC Transit bus drivers yesterday rejected a proposed contract which would have ended their month-long strike.

Members of the Amalgamated Transit Union Division 192 turned down the offer 554-349. The union represents 1,650 drivers, clerks and maintenance workers.

Division 192's negotiating committee had recommended acceptance of the pact which was ironed out with the help of the state Conciliation Service.

Judge Rejects Kidnap Mistrial

ATLANTA (UPI) — A federal judge rejected today a defense motion for a mistrial in the trial of William A.H. Williams for extorting $700,000 ransom in the kidnaping of Atlanta Constitution editor Reg Murphy.

Attorney Tyrus Atkinson argued that "a small army" of FBI agents who crashed into Williams' home Feb. 23 to arrest him and his wife created an "implied coercive situation."

U.S. District Judge William C. O'Kelley denied the motion as he had a similar one in pretrial arguments, and the prosecution resumed presentation of the last of its witnesses.

The San Anselmo City Council last night gave Alan Bruce, former Marin County administrator, the edge for the post of city administrator-controller but postponed final decision until the council's next meeting.

Bruce, 51, one of three candidates interviewed for the job last night, garnered initial support from councilmen John H. Colteaux, Kenneth Anderson and Vice Mayor Woodrow V. Anderson commented, "We're lucky to have a candidate who knows and loves the territory like the back of his hand."

Councilman Pieter Toal stressed that the city needed a younger man for the post, someone with more modern insight than Bruce and who could better handle the city's affairs in the long run.

Mayor Martin G. Blinder ended the half hour discussion at midnight warning his colleagues that they would "rue the day" should Bruce be appointed city administrator.

Mayor Blinder said that Bruce, who was fidgeting nervously during his interview, gave him the impression of "sitting atop a volcano."

House Hit For Limit On Nuclear Liability

By PAUL E. PETERZELL

A spokesman for a nationwide conservation organization last night sharply criticized the recent action of the House of Representatives in renewing legislation limiting the liability of utilities in a nuclear power plant disaster.

James Harding of Friends of the Earth, speaking at a Marin Alternative forum on the pros and cons of nuclear power, said that without that legislation the energy industry cannot afford the risk of nuclear plants, which his group opposes.

The Senate has yet to approve the renewal of the Price-Anderson Act, he said. The measure limits a utility's liability in case of nuclear accident to $560 million. The real damage to life and property has been estimated at up to $30 billion, he said.

To illustrate how much energy the U.S. consumes, Harding said the amount was equivalent to every citizen downing a martini every 90 seconds around the clock.

Other panelists, however, insisted the only alternatives to nuclear plants are devastating strip mining of coal and oil shale, or crippling dependence on Arab oil.

The crowd of about 75 persons at the forum in the Marin Civic Center, voiced agreement with Harding, but after the meeting many nevertheless rode elevators down instead of walking the two flights.

Arguing against nuclear plants, Harding also asserted their "stupendous toxicity" cannot be assured, since human beings are fallible.

A coal-powered generating plant that would cost $400 million would cost $700 million if it used nuclear fuel, he said. The utilities can afford the higher cost of nuclear plants because of government subsidies, Harding said.

"Even the Atomic Energy Commission," he added, has said solar energy could provide 25 per cent of the nation's energy by the year 2000, and at less cost than nuclear plants.

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The House has passed a bill allowing Americans to buy, own and trade gold for the first time since the Depression.

The bill was sent to President Nixon, who is expected to sign it soon, according to a statement by Treasury Secretary William E. Simon.

The legislation passed the House late yesterday with no debate on a voice vote after the House accepted a Senate amendment providing that no existing law can conflict with private ownership of gold.

WORLD NEWS IN BRIEF

Vesco Denies Gun Smuggling

SAN JOSE, Costa Rica (UPI) — Fugitive financier Robert L. Vesco says reports that weapons were smuggled into Costa Rica for his use were "completely false and even ridiculous."

Vesco

In a letter to Security Minister Mario Charpentier, Vesco denied the published reports and said it was a harassment campaign against him "directed from the United States."

The text of Vesco's letter was published yesterday in the newspaper La Nacion.

The published reports said Vesco was smuggling guns into this Central American country to arm his personal bodyguards.

They also quoted "knowledgeable sources" as saying the financier was secretly flying in prostitutes. There was no reference to that charge in Vesco's letter.

Since coming here two years ago from the Bahamas, the 38-year-old Vesco has invested at least $25 million in Costa Rica, the financier says.

Security Order

BANGKOK (UPI) — American military officials ordered beefed-up security on United States arms convoys traveling to Cambodia after authorities discovered 15 bombs and large amounts of ammunition have been stolen.

U.S. military authorities said 15 500-pound bombs, 446,880 rounds of M16 ammunition, 29,600 rounds of 7.62 ammunition, 23,100 rounds of .50-caliber ammunition and assorted other ammunitions have been found missing from convoys since June 25.

Death Quiz

BELFAST (UPI) — Police questioned eight Protestant women and a man today about the murder of a 31-year-old Protestant woman, who was beaten to death with nail studded clubs.

Police said Anne Ogilby was apparently bludgeoned to death in what police said could be a power struggle between the paramilitary Ulster Defense Association and the outlawed Ulster Volunteer Force. They refused to elaborate.

Her body was found beside a south Belfast road Monday, about five days after she was killed.

Pentagon Funds

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The House Appropriations Committee today approved an $83.3 billion 1975 Pentagon money bill, some $3.7 billion below the administration's request but $9.2 billion more than the 1974 figure.

The committee action came months earlier than usual as Congress struggled to clear essential legislation before a lengthy impeachment trial ties up the Senate.

The size of the appropriation was sharply challenged by one liberal member, Rep. Joseph P. Addabbo, D-N.Y., who noted the increase comes one year afterthe end of U.S. participation in the Indochina War.

Back In Public

HONG KONG (UPI) — Yang Cheng-wu, a former Chinese military commander fired in 1968 as a plotter, has reappeared in Peking at celebrations marking the 47th anniversary of the divided Communist army.

Yang attended an army day reception in the Chinese capital last night, making his first known public appearance in six years.

Premier Chou En-lai, who has been hospitalized for a reported heart attack, also turned up at the reception in the banquet room of the Great Hall of the People.

Fifteen other members of the powerful 26 member Politburo of the Communist Party's Central Committee were present at the banquet.

Meningitis

SAO PAULO (UPI) — Hundreds of Brazilians died and thousands more were infected by a meningitis epidemic that swept through the country during July, government officials said today.

Sources said the epidemic is on the rise, but Brazilian health authorities said the outbreak is under control and reports of deaths from the disease are declining.

According to unofficial figures, 345 persons in Sao Paulo died of the diease in July. Another 4,000 were treated during the month.

DaNang Push

SAIGON (UPI) — Communist columns pushed ahead with a two-week drive against Da Nang today, overrunning two villages and seizing a pair of outposts near South Vietnam's second largest city.

Field reports said Viet Cong troops captured Son Thang and Son Lanh, twin villages 27 miles southwest of Da Nang, taking most of the 5,000 residents hostage.

The reports said the militia defenders fled at the Communist approach.

In Cambodia, rebel forces increased harassment of government outposts north of Phnom Penh, killing three defenders and wounding 17. Insurgent losses were not known.

Field reports said most of the hit-and-run attacks yesterday were against government positions along Highway 5. The rest were aimed at outposts along the banks of the Tonle Sap and Mekong rivers.

Talks On Oil

PARIS (UPI) — Experts from the Arab world and the European Common Market began working out the details today of a breakthrough plan to trade Middle East oil for Western industrial know-how.

The Europeans and Arabs assigned economic specialists to lay the groundwork for a meeting in the fall of a task force to propose projects to expand economic relations between the two regions.

The nine-nation Common Market and 18-country Arab League agreed yesterday to create a permanent commission to speed up economic cooperation between the two trade blocs.

French Foreign Minister Jean Sauvagnargues and Kuwaiti Sheikh Sabah El Ahmed Al Jaber said they led to "a historic beginning" in their relations.

Subway Attacks

NEW YORK (UPI) — Just 12 hours after Mayor Abraham Beame unveiled a new program for fighting subway crime during off-hours, one woman was fatally shot in the back and another woman was sexually molested during yesterday's rush hour.

Gloria Brooks, 38, was shot and killed while waiting for a southbound train at an elevated station. It was the ninth subway killing so far this year, matching the total for all of 1973.

Carl Johnson, 25, was arrested a few hours later and charged with homicide and illegal possession of a weapon.

Both incidents occurred some 12 hours after Beame ordered the rear half of most subway trains closed from 8 p.m. to 4 a.m. to double police protection for riders.

Cereal Attack

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A group of consumer and health organizations today asked the Food and Drug Administration (FDA) to put a limit on the amount of sugar in breakfast cereals.

They suggested that no cereal have more than 10 per cent sugar, and that those which exceed that amount be forced to carry a warning on the label saying "frequent use contributes to tooth decay and other health problems."

Cyprus Cease-Fire Is Nearing Collapse

The Cyprus cease-fire threatened to crumble today, with reports of major Turkish truce violations and a Soviet veto blocking the United Nations from expanding peacekeeping efforts on the war-torn island.

Turkish warships anchored off the northern Cypriot port of Kyrenia shelled two Greek Cypriot towns yesterday, less than 24 hours after the signing of a three-nation cease-fire agreement in Geneva.

Greek Cypriot leaders denounced the attacks as "gross violations" of the truce and accused Turkey of sending more reinforcements to occupied sections of the embattled island.

At the United Nations, Soviet Ambassador Yakov A. Malik rushed to the security council from vacation and vetoed a resolution calling for peackeeping forces to expand their duties on Cyprus in accordance with the Geneva peace agreement.

Immediately after the dramatic vote, Secretary General Kurt Waldheim said Turkey's military commander on Cyprus had demanded U.N. withdrawal from Turkish enclaves. Waldheim said he had no choice but to comply.

In Moscow, the official Soviet news agency Tass said Malik "foiled the attempts" by some North Atlantic Treaty Organization members to impose a change in the U.N. role without "sufficient sounding out."

In Athens, Greece's new civilian government began demobilizing its forces today, 12 days after Turkey's invasion of Cyprus brought the nation to the brink of war.

Britain, Greece and Turkey signed the Geneva agreement Tuesday, imposing a standstill cease-fire and adopting a de facto partition of the former British colony between the majority Greeks and minority Turks.

UPI Correspondent Richard C. Gross said Turkish forces shelled the Greek Cypriot villages of Karavas and Lapithos, 10 miles west of Kyrenia o the northern coast.

A U.N. military source said the villages had been shelled by a Turkish warship anchored off Kyrenia in the Mediterranean, forcing withdrawal of Greek-led Cypriot national guard troops in the area.

Greek Cypriot President Glafkos Clerides protested to the United Nations that Turkish troops moved reinforcements into areas east of Kyrenia and into Karavas, on the western side of the harbor town.

Foreign Minister Dimmy Dimitriou accused Turkey of "gross violations" of the ceasefire but said Greek Cypriot troops were under orders not to engage the Turks in battle.

"The government has ordered all Greek Cypriot troops not to fire if fired upon and withdraw if necessary," he said.

The International Red Cross, which has taken over from the United Nations in supplying refugees with food and medical supplies, accused the Turks of "flagrant violations" of the Geneva convention.

Red Cross sources said the estimated 30,000 Turkish troops on the island have been looting Greek Cypriot villages and shipping to Turkey vehicles left behind by fleeing foreign nationals.

Hyperactivity Measures Recommended By Doctor

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — Four million children across the nation are affected by hyperactivity which results in learning problems and aggressive and unpredictable behavior, according to a noted allergist.

Dr. Ben F. Feingold, chief emeritus of the Department of Allergy at Kaiser-Permanente Medical Center in San Francisco, discussed the "epidemic" of hyperactivity in testimony yesterday at a state Senate Education Committee hearing.

Feingold declared hyperactivity is a "serious situation of epidemic proportion that is undermining the very fiber of our children and threatening the stability of our future generations."

He described hyperactive children as "comparable to a revved up motor with the throttle stuck."

Feingold recommended foods containing artificial flavoring or coloring be clearly labeled to help solve the problem.

He has reported successful treatment of hyperactivity by altering a child's diet to remove foods with artificial flavoring or coloring and other substances such as aspirin.

He estimated that ultimately 40 to 60 per cent of the cases can be treated successfully with such a diet.

Until recently most hyperactive children, whose behavior disrupts classrooms, have been treated with the use of stimulants such as amphetamines. The stimulatnts have the effect of calming the children, but some medical authorities contend many children, who are not actually hyperactive, are being wrongfully drugged.

The problem affects 70,000 to 360,000 California youngsters, said a Senate Education Committee staff report.

The report added "that in some cases school personnel have encouraged drug treatment of hyperactivity beyond their legal bounds and that chemical therapy to alter a child's behavior to conform to 'acceptable' classroom conduct raises grave moral questions."

Hpyeractivity usually affects boys between the ages of five and 12 with generally only one child in a family being afflicted.

Cause of the ailment is not known, but Feingold suggested it may have a genetic origin. He advocated research into the effect of artificial flavorings and coloring during conception and pregnancy.

In making his recommendation on labeling, Feingold said that in many cases the information on labels is "inadequate," and "when the chemicals are indicated, they may be illegible or in terms that are meaningless to the average consumer."

He recommended a "symbol be adopted to designate complete absence of artificial colors and flavors in the food product."

Another witness, Hugh D'Andrade of the CIBA Pharmaceutical Co., which makes one of the drugs used to treat hyperactivity, said "We know of no facts to substantiate" assertions that twice as many children receive stimulant medication for hyperactivity as need it.

Economic Plan Is Proposed

WASHINGTON (UPI) — In a reply to President Nixon's speech last week urging less consumer spending and more patience, Sen. Lloyd Bentsen, D-Tex., has proposed a sixpoint plan for economic recovery.

In a nationally televised speech on behalf of the Democratic party yesterday, Bentsen said Nixon's economic initiatives have been a "patchwork" with "too many changing policies, replacing one another; too many conflicting voices, contradicting one another; too many trials, and far too many errors.

"Sadly, only four things have really been steady —steadily rising prices, steadily dwindling confidence, steadily cheerful assurances from the administration —followed by steadily worsening results."

Yesterday, administration economic coordinator Kenneth Rush said the threat of impeachment is a "disturbing influence on the economy."

But he also said impeachment "would have no effect on the economy. The policy we are following is the one we think is correct and people should realize it's going to continue."

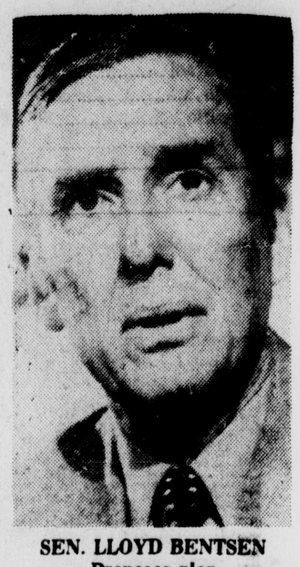
"It seemed to me, as I listened, almost as if the clock had been turned back 40 years," he said in reference to Herbert Hoover's Depression promise that "prosperity is just around the corner."

Bentsen said, "The President told us that our present economic troubles are everyone's fault —except his and his advisers.' I felt I was hearing the language of economic cover-up."



SEN. LLOYD BENTSEN
Proposes plan

Bentsen's proposed "workable program" included three immediate steps and three longer-term goals:

Channeling loan money to the neediest and most productive industries, such as housing.

Establishing a cost of living task force to keep track of price increases and wage settlements and to provide guidance to business and labor.

A "step up (in) our efforts to rein in federal spending."

Reform of the tax system.

An "action" plan to increase productivity in business and industry.

The administration's putting "its own economic house in order."

"It seemed to me, as I listened, almost as if the clock had been turned back 40 years," he said in reference to Herbert Hoover's Depression promise that "prosperity is just around the corner."

Bentsen said, "The President told us that our present economic troubles are everyone's fault —except his and his advisers.' I felt I was hearing the language of economic cover-up."

Bentsen's proposed "workable program" included three immediate steps and three longer-term goals:

Channeling loan money to the neediest and most productive industries, such as housing.

Establishing a cost of living task force to keep track of price increases and wage settlements and to provide guidance to business and labor.

A "step up (in) our efforts to rein in federal spending."

Reform of the tax system.

An "action" plan to increase productivity in business and industry.

The administration's putting "its own economic house in order."

Muir Woods Plans Open To Comment

Plans to preserve and enhance the natural environment of Muir Woods National Monument are available for public review and comment Superintendent Richard B. Hardin announced today.

Some of the proposals in the Natural Resources Management Plan for Muir Woods National Monument could be put into operation this fall, Hardin added.

Proposals include:

Study to determine whether the number of persons visiting the park at one time, limited to approximately 1,100 persons at present, should be reduced or expanded.

A vegetative history study of the Redwood Creek watershed and the management of the forest undergrowth to reduce adverse effects of visitors.

Stream bank stabilization along Redwood Creek and the removal of downed vegetation where it obstructs visitor access.

Reduction of eucalyptus and various cultured plants that are foreign to the woods.

Extension of fencing and hard surfacing on the main trail from Cathedral Grove to the fourth bridge, as has been done on the lower section of the trail.

The National Park Service's study and review during the assessment process indicated that there would be no significant environmental impact from the proposed actions, according to Hardin.

Copies of the plans are available at Muir Woods or at the Western Regional Office of the National Park Service in San Francisco. Written comments should be submitted by Aug. 31 to Superintendent Hardin at Muir Woods National Monument, Mill Valley.

Five-Minute Gap In Another Tape

WASHINGTON (UPI) — White House lawyers have revealed there is a gap of more than five minutes on a Watergate tape surrendered by President Nixon after a bitter court battle to keep the tapes secret.

Existence of the gap was disclosed yesterday by presidential defense attorney James D. St. Clair, who at the same time asked a federal court to keep another 48 minutes of presidential conversations out of the hands of Watergate prosecutors on grounds of executive privilege.

He said the gap was discovered in the tape of a meeting Nixon had on April 17, 1973, with key aides H.R. Haldeman and John D. Ehrlichman —one of 20 tapes Nixon surrendered to U.S. District Judge John J. Sirica Tuesday under terms of last week's Supreme Court order.

"Judging from the notations on the tape boxes, the tape ran out and was replaced in the midst of this conversation," St. Clair told Sirica in a written analysis.

"A timing of the two segments indicates that approximately 5 minutes and 12 seconds of conversation were never recorded."

Prosecutors had noted an apparent gap by scanning notations on the tape boxes when they were delivered to court. St. Clair said then he didn't think anything was missing but his subsequent check proved the prosecutors right.

St. Clair's index and analysis was submitted to describe the 20 tapes surrendered to Sirica, who now will listen to them and decide which portions special prosecutor Leon Jaworski should have for the Watergate cover-up trial due to start Sept. 9.

Though the White House included all 20 conversations in the edited transcripts it released April 30, the transcript of the April 17 meeting gives no indication that any of the conversation is missing.

It was the third major disclosure of problems with subpoenaed White House tapes.

Last fall, after another losing court battle to keep tapes secret, the White House said two sought-after conversations never were recorded and a third had an 18 ½ minute gap.

Nixon is to surrender 44 other tapes for Sirica's review promptly. His lawyers are to give the judge a progress report on Friday.

In his analysis, St. Clair lodged Nixon's formal claims of executive privilege for 23 segments on 10 of the surrendered tapes totaling 48 minutes and 18 seconds.

The segments Nixon wants Sirica to keep out of Jaworski's hands range in length from 25 seconds to 8 minutes, 1 second.

Ten come at the beginning or end of conversations, indicating the discussion shifted to or from Watergate at those points. The others all come in the middle of conversations that dealt solely with the bugging scandal.

Sirica must rule on all of Nixon's assertions of privilege. Last fall he did uphold several such claims and did not pass on the disputed segments to Jaworski.

Burglars Pull Off Two Jobs

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Police said the same burglars that got $8,000 worth of goods from the home of actress Candice Bergen apparently made off with $50,000 worth of jewelry and silver from the home of her neighbor, the consul general of the Ivory Coast.

The thieves entered both the home of Miss Bergen, daughter of the famous ventriloquist and comedian, and the house of Herbert Hischemoeller, consul general of the Ivory Coast, police said yesterday.

Greece Plans To Return To 1952 Constitution

ATHENS (UPI) — Greece's new civilian government has decided to return to a 1952 constitution without restoring the abolished monarchy of King Constantine II, government officials said today.

The officials said a decree restoring the constitution, which was replaced with a new one by the military junta in 1968, would be published later today.

They said no decision had yet been taken about the possible return of King Constantine or a national referendum on the monarchy, and the 1952 constitution would be applied without the clauses relating to the monarchy.

The king was deposed 13 months ago by then Premier George Papadopoulos who declared Greece a republic and was elected its first president. Constantine, now living in London, fled Greece in 1967 and has been in exile since.

The decree by Greece's first civilian government in seven years also will restore to the defense minister all the powers he lost under the military regime and reinstate all the professors and students expelled from universities for allegedly antigovernment activities.

Greece began demobilization today of its forces that had been kept on a war footing throughout the Geneva talks on Cyprus.

Several thousand reservists have already returned and the sources said a general scaledown in the nation's forces had been ordered.

San Rafael's Plan Is Drafted By Panel

ner said a formula will be developed before the plan is considered for adoption by the city council.)

The plans also reflects the commission's view that the city should "maintain as a minimum" the existing proportion of low and moderate income housing and "increase where ever possible" housing opportunities for low and moderate income persons.

The commission plan suggests a number of methods of maintaining the city's current mix of moderate and low income housing. Among them is a proposal to allocate property tax revenue from increased assessments throughout the city to fund "nonprofit housing, rental or interest subsidies, land banking and subsidy financing."

This controversial system of tax increment financing is used by the city redevelopment agency, and was at the heart of the controversy over agency formation.

Says the plan: "The City of San Rafael, with the exclusion of the present redevelopment area, can be declared a tax increment district allowing a percentage of the revenues to be returned to the city for use in subsidizing housing rental or purchase, public improvements, and the acquisition of land for the construction of housing."

The commission plan recommends the redevelopment agency assume a broad role in municipal affairs. "It need not be limited to the downtown project area; it could establish project areas elsewhere in the city to accomplish similar public purposes."

The commission plan recommends that downtown traffic congestion be eased by a new roadway running along a railroad spur from A and Second streets through East San Rafael to Bellam and Andersen drives.

The commission also recommends creation of about four miles of paved roadway through undeveloped lands for use by municipal safety vehicles in emergencies.

The plan is based on six goals similar in scope to those of the Marin County General Plan, and proposes 14 "basic policies." The policies include creation of a greenbelt open space system, encouragement of local groups to engage in neighborhood planning and a requirement "that all public and private proposals which are likely to alter the environment significantly should explicitly show cause why such changes are justified."

Other highlights of the commission plan include:

A proposal that environmental hazards and geo-seismic data should play a major part in determining land use and a requirement that developers perform various levels of "geotechnical analysis" for development on sites within various environmental "risk zones".

A proposal that the San Rafael Canal be converted into a "water-oriented recreational open space use are," and a proposal that the bayshore east of Highway 17 be converted into a water-oriented recreational area, perhaps including a boat harbor.

A proposal that urban development be intensified in downtown San Rafael and in the Northgate shopping center area.

The commission plan includes no cost estimate of the proposals it makes.

Document Is Opposed By Group

A draft of San Rafael's general plan proposed by the city planning commission has drawn opposition from a local citizens' group.

Norman Higby, spokesman for the Home and Business Preservation League, said several hundred league members are expected to appear at a public hearing at 9:30 a.m. Saturday in city hall to protest various aspects of the plan.

Among league concerns is a proposal by the commission to freeze assessed valuation throughout the city and use revenues resulting from future increases to subsidize low and moderate income housing, Higby said.

A league newsletter claims the proposal amounts to creation of a new "city agency" that would be empowered to "issue bonds, trade parcels of property to builders, reduce taxes on their own properties, give concessions to themselves, make deals, lower interest rates... Experience indicates graft often enters into such a program."

Higby also said the league opposes any expansion of the city redevelopment agency as proposed in the plan.

Higby also said the league is urging a "land capability analysis" before open space bond money is spent, and said that bond money should be spent for maintenance of open space lands, including firefighting equipment, as well as land.

ENERGY

set. Harding proposed, to prevent overheating of the earth's atmosphere. Even a few degrees increase can lead to catastrophic climatic changes, such as melting of the polar ice caps, he argued.

Siding with Harding was Neill Smith, Tiburon architect and founder of Marin Environmental Cooperative. To continue using energy at the current rate, he declared, "is committing social suicide."

The only alternative, Smith said, is to "find a balance based on the biological balance of the earth." Either stop trying to squeeze the last drop of energy out of the earth, he said, or face "a totally downhill direction."

Defending the energy industry were Hugo Simens, a safety engineer for Bechtel Corp., builder of power plants, and Kit Newton of Pacific Gas and Electric Company's public information office. Both agreed on the need to conserve energy, but argued the public would not tolerate it if the energy industry failed to meet its demand for energy.

Modern agriculture uses enormous amounts of energy, Simens noted, yet "a lot of it goes to feed the starving millions of the world." It takes 10 calories of energy in chemicals, machinery and transportation to produce one calorie of energy in an agricultural crop, he said.

Simens insisted that the demand for energy "is the consensus speaking — it's what the people want." Arguing nuclear power plants can be safe, he said the alternative of getting oil from domestic shale would mean "tearing down the Rocky Mountains."

It would be far better to spend billions building nuclear power plants than giving it to the Arabs for oil, Simens asserted.

Newton added that "we're the Arabs of the coal world," but said most of it is reachable only by massive and "environmentally objectionable" strip mining. Other possible sources of energy such as the sun will not be engineered for several decades, thus nuclear power plants must fill the gap in the interim, he said.

BRUCE

Bruce were John W. De Weerd, 33, former manager of Cerritos, Los Angeles County and Thomas J. Meyers, 42, former city manager of Miami Springs, Fla.

Both De Weerd and Meyers said they would move to San Anselmo if hired, and each said he thought he could handle the city's $2 million budget.

Bruce, a resident of San Anselmo for 14 years, living at 88 Tamalpais Avenue, told the council that although he is familar with the budget process having worked with county budgets in excess of $30 million, he has had no background in accounting or bookkeeping.

De Weerd holds a bachelor of arts degree from California State College at Fullerton and is continuing postgraduate work at Loyola University of Law and the University of Southern California School of Public Administration.

He worked seven years as a management systems analyst for North American Rockwell Corporation, two years as assistant manager of the City of Cerritos in Los Angeles County, two years as finance manager of Xerox Corp., three years as city manager of Cerritos and is currently employed as chief finance officer of the Orange County Manpower Commission.

De Weerd told the council that in addition to his background in finance, he acquired experience in environmental control while guiding commercial and land development in Cerritos.

Meyers, recovering from surgery and presently unemployed, holds a bachelor of science degree from Ohio State University and a master's in public administration from California State College at Los Angeles.

He worked for 18 years in management in private industry, four years as administrative assistant for the City of Beverly Hills, one year as city manager of Miami Springs, Fla. and for the past year as a private consultant to governmental agencies.

Meyers told the council that his greatest asset is his ability to get people to work together. He added that he had no problems drafting a $3.5 million budget for Beverly Hills nor in making budgets for Miami Springs.

Bruce, 51, held the job as Marin County administrator from 1960 to 1971 and served before that as assistant to former county administrator Donald Jensen. During his tenure he earned a reputation as a hard working administrator with exceptional ability in budget matters.

He also earned a reputation as a controversial public figure and ultimately resigned under pressure from supervisors after seeking the resignation of key administrative personel.

Since his resignation, Bruce has worked two years as vice president and director of planning at Redwood Bank in San Rafael and recently as senior associate with McDonald and Smart public policy consultants in San Francisco.

Bruce told the council that he has learned from his past mistakes and is seeking a permanent position free of the "constand pressure" he experienced with the county.

He admitted that he would need some back-up help in the supervision of accounting and fiscal reporting but volunteered to work unpaid with city-administrator-controller Alfred C. Kaeppel until the latter's retirement in September.

The council will announce its decision at its meeting Aug. 13.

Those two candidates were James R. Garrett, 49, executive vice president of the Alameda County Taxpayers Association, and Clinton G. Malloy, 44, city administrator of Rocklin, Placer County. A third candidate, William E. Haden, 36, assistant city manager of Pittsburg has since accepted the post of Fairfax city manager.

In other action last night the city council agreed to begin contract negotiations with Albert Solnit, former Marin County chief of advanced planning, to complete San Anselmo's general plan.

senators, sworn in next year, voting to convict or exonerate Nixon without hearing all the evidence.

It also raises the possibility of House members voting on impeachment this year and moving to the Senate in January to vote again.

Tower, chairman of the Senate Republican Policy Committee, said some provision must be made to let senatorselect monitor the trial, possibly sitting in the spectator galleries.

He added: "It is also my view that such a decision is not subject to challenge by the judiciary."

IMPEACH

themselves undecided on impeachment said privately the vote by eight of the Judiciary Committee's 17 Republicans to recommend impeachment made it "respectable" for a Republican to vote to impeach.

An aide described Rhodes, who succeeded Gerald R. Ford as House GOP leader, as "anguished" over what position to take.

His office said Rhodes was drafting a statement, to be issued next week, on whether he would support impeachment.

A spot check of House members found scant support for a plan under which Nixon would call upon the House to impeach him so as to speedily settle his fate in the Senate. Patrick Buchanan, White House speechwriter, said such a plan was "under active consideration."

But Rhodes dismissed it as a "gimmick," and Rep. David Dennis, R-Ind., a leading Nixon defender, called it "a cop-out." Members of both parties said the House had a constitutional obligation to weigh and pass upon whether the evidence warrants impeachment.

Ashbrook said he could understand why the White House would consider such a plan. If Nixon is impeached by an overwhelming House vote, that will help seal his doom in the Senate, he said.

In any event, Ashbrook predicted that about 70 of the 187 Republicans in the House and about 300 of the 435 members would vote to impeach Nixon.

Unless he receives at least that number, Nixon will be removed from office if the Senate votes.

Rep. Lawrence J. Hogan, R-Md., one of eight Republicans on the Judiciary Committee to recommend impeachment, said in a letter to his colleagues that he has been called a traitor by other Republicans.

"Many of these letters, telecome from my fellow Republicome from my fellow Repulicans, condemning my decision, and addressing me as 'Judas' Hogan and 'Benedict Arnold' Hogan and 'Brutus' Hogan and asking what I would do with my "thirty pieces of silver."

No other Republicans on the panel who voted to recommend impeachment reported any such response.

Hogan, a candidate for the Republican gubernatorial nomination in Maryland, urged his Republican colleagues to "welcome and demand" Nixon's removal and Vice President Gerald R. Ford's elevation.

A year ago, he said, he would have considered Nixon's impeachment unthinkable but now "after having thoroughly studied the evidence for several him from office."

MOUNT TAMALPAIS CEMETERY Marin's Peaceful Place of final rest

The beauty of this setting is guarded, too, by an ever-growing endowment fund which guarantees the care of this property in the years ahead.

Perhaps—like many Marin families—you will want to consider the advantages of making final arrangements at Mount Tamalpais now. This thoughtfulness can spare loved ones difficult decisions in time of sorrow. We invite your visit, or suggest that you write for our brochure which explains our facilities.

San Rafael's Plan Is Drafted By Panel

ner said a formula will be developed before the plan is considered for adoption by the city council.)

The plans also reflects the commission's view that the city should "maintain as a minimum" the existing proportion of low and moderate income housing and "increase where ever possible" housing opportunities for low and moderate income persons.

The commission plan suggests a number of methods of maintaining the city's current mix of moderate and low income housing. Among them is a proposal to allocate property tax revenue from increased assessments throughout the city to fund "nonprofit housing, rental or interest subsidies, land banking and subsidy financing."

This controversial system of tax increment financing is used by the city redevelopment agency, and was at the heart of the controversy over agency formation.

Says the plan: "The City of San Rafael, with the exclusion of the present redevelopment area, can be declared a tax increment district allowing a percentage of the revenues to be returned to the city for use in subsidizing housing rental or purchase, public improvements, and the acquisition of land for the construction of housing."

The commission plan recommends the redevelopment agency assume a broad role in municipal affairs. "It need not be limited to the downtown project area; it could establish project areas elsewhere in the city to accomplish similar public purposes."

The commission plan recommends that downtown traffic congestion be eased by a new roadway running along a railroad spur from A and Second streets through East San Rafael to Bellam and Andersen drives.

The commission also recommends creation of about four miles of paved roadway through undeveloped lands for use by municipal safety vehicles in emergencies.

The plan is based on six goals similar in scope to those of the Marin County General Plan, and proposes 14 "basic policies." The policies include creation of a greenbelt open space system, encouragement of local groups to engage in neighborhood planning and a requirement "that all public and private proposals which are likely to alter the environment significantly should explicitly show cause why such changes are justified."

Other highlights of the commission plan include:

A proposal that environmental hazards and geo-seismic data should play a major part in determining land use and a requirement that developers perform various levels of "geotechnical analysis" for development on sites within various environmental "risk zones".

A proposal that the San Rafael Canal be converted into a "water-oriented recreational open space use are," and a proposal that the bayshore east of Highway 17 be converted into a water-oriented recreational area, perhaps including a boat harbor.

A proposal that urban development be intensified in downtown San Rafael and in the Northgate shopping center area.

The commission plan includes no cost estimate of the proposals it makes.

Document Is Opposed By Group

A draft of San Rafael's general plan proposed by the city planning commission has drawn opposition from a local citizens' group.

Norman Higby, spokesman for the Home and Business Preservation League, said several hundred league members are expected to appear at a public hearing at 9:30 a.m. Saturday in city hall to protest various aspects of the plan.

Among league concerns is a proposal by the commission to freeze assessed valuation throughout the city and use revenues resulting from future increases to subsidize low and moderate income housing, Higby said.

A league newsletter claims the proposal amounts to creation of a new "city agency" that would be empowered to "issue bonds, trade parcels of property to builders, reduce taxes on their own properties, give concessions to themselves, make deals, lower interest rates... Experience indicates graft often enters into such a program."

Higby also said the league opposes any expansion of the city redevelopment agency as proposed in the plan.

Higby also said the league is urging a "land capability analysis" before open space bond money is spent, and said that bond money should be spent for maintenance of open space lands, including firefighting equipment, as well as land.

set. Harding proposed, to prevent overheating of the earth's atmosphere. Even a few degrees increase can lead to catastrophic climatic changes, such as melting of the polar ice caps, he argued.

Siding with Harding was Neill Smith, Tiburon architect and founder of Marin Environmental Cooperative. To continue using energy at the current rate, he declared, "is committing social suicide."

The only alternative, Smith said, is to "find a balance based on the biological balance of the earth." Either stop trying to squeeze the last drop of energy out of the earth, he said, or face "a totally downhill direction."

Defending the energy industry were Hugo Simens, a safety engineer for Bechtel Corp., builder of power plants, and Kit Newton of Pacific Gas and Electric Company's public information office. Both agreed on the need to conserve energy, but argued the public would not tolerate it if the energy industry failed to meet its demand for energy.

Modern agriculture uses enormous amounts of energy, Simens noted, yet "a lot of it goes to feed the starving millions of the world." It takes 10 calories of energy in chemicals, machinery and transportation to produce one calorie of energy in an agricultural crop, he said.

Simens insisted that the demand for energy "is the consensus speaking — it's what the people want." Arguing nuclear power plants can be safe, he said the alternative of getting oil from domestic shale would mean "tearing down the Rocky Mountains."

It would be far better to spend billions building nuclear power plants than giving it to the Arabs for oil, Simens asserted.

Newton added that "we're the Arabs of the coal world," but said most of it is reachable only by massive and "environmentally objectionable" strip mining. Other possible sources of energy such as the sun will not be engineered for several decades, thus nuclear power plants must fill the gap in the interim, he said.

Bruce were John W. De Weerd, 33, former manager of Cerritos, Los Angeles County and Thomas J. Meyers, 42, former city manager of Miami Springs, Fla.

Both De Weerd and Meyers said they would move to San Anselmo if hired, and each said he thought he could handle the city's $2 million budget.

Bruce, a resident of San Anselmo for 14 years, living at 88 Tamalpais Avenue, told the council that although he is familar with the budget process having worked with county budgets in excess of $30 million, he has had no background in accounting or bookkeeping.

De Weerd holds a bachelor of arts degree from California State College at Fullerton and is continuing postgraduate work at Loyola University of Law and the University of Southern California School of Public Administration.

He worked seven years as a management systems analyst for North American Rockwell Corporation, two years as assistant manager of the City of Cerritos in Los Angeles County, two years as finance manager of Xerox Corp., three years as city manager of Cerritos and is currently employed as chief finance officer of the Orange County Manpower Commission.

De Weerd told the council that in addition to his background in finance, he acquired experience in environmental control while guiding commercial and land development in Cerritos.

Meyers, recovering from surgery and presently unemployed, holds a bachelor of science degree from Ohio State University and a master's in public administration from California State College at Los Angeles.

He worked for 18 years in management in private industry, four years as administrative assistant for the City of Beverly Hills, one year as city manager of Miami Springs, Fla. and for the past year as a private consultant to governmental agencies.

Meyers told the council that his greatest asset is his ability to get people to work together. He added that he had no problems drafting a $3.5 million budget for Beverly Hills nor in making budgets for Miami Springs.

Bruce, 51, held the job as Marin County administrator from 1960 to 1971 and served before that as assistant to former county administrator Donald Jensen. During his tenure he earned a reputation as a hard working administrator with exceptional ability in budget matters.

He also earned a reputation as a controversial public figure and ultimately resigned under pressure from supervisors after seeking the resignation of key administrative personel.

Since his resignation, Bruce has worked two years as vice president and director of planning at Redwood Bank in San Rafael and recently as senior associate with McDonald and Smart public policy consultants in San Francisco.

Bruce told the council that he has learned from his past mistakes and is seeking a permanent position free of the "constand pressure" he experienced with the county.

He admitted that he would need some back-up help in the supervision of accounting and fiscal reporting but volunteered to work unpaid with city-administrator-controller Alfred C. Kaeppel until the latter's retirement in September.

The council will announce its decision at its meeting Aug. 13.

Those two candidates were James R. Garrett, 49, executive vice president of the Alameda County Taxpayers Association, and Clinton G. Malloy, 44, city administrator of Rocklin, Placer County. A third candidate, William E. Haden, 36, assistant city manager of Pittsburg has since accepted the post of Fairfax city manager.

In other action last night the city council agreed to begin contract negotiations with Albert Solnit, former Marin County chief of advanced planning, to complete San Anselmo's general plan.

senators, sworn in next year, voting to convict or exonerate Nixon without hearing all the evidence.

It also raises the possibility of House members voting on impeachment this year and moving to the Senate in January to vote again.

Tower, chairman of the Senate Republican Policy Committee, said some provision must be made to let senatorselect monitor the trial, possibly sitting in the spectator galleries.

He added: "It is also my view that such a decision is not subject to challenge by the judiciary."

IMPEACH

themselves undecided on impeachment said privately the vote by eight of the Judiciary Committee's 17 Republicans to recommend impeachment made it "respectable" for a Republican to vote to impeach.

An aide described Rhodes, who succeeded Gerald R. Ford as House GOP leader, as "anguished" over what position to take.

His office said Rhodes was drafting a statement, to be issued next week, on whether he would support impeachment.

A spot check of House members found scant support for a plan under which Nixon would call upon the House to impeach him so as to speedily settle his fate in the Senate. Patrick Buchanan, White House speechwriter, said such a plan was "under active consideration."

But Rhodes dismissed it as a "gimmick," and Rep. David Dennis, R-Ind., a leading Nixon defender, called it "a cop-out." Members of both parties said the House had a constitutional obligation to weigh and pass upon whether the evidence warrants impeachment.

Ashbrook said he could understand why the White House would consider such a plan. If Nixon is impeached by an overwhelming House vote, that will help seal his doom in the Senate, he said.

In any event, Ashbrook predicted that about 70 of the 187 Republicans in the House and about 300 of the 435 members would vote to impeach Nixon.

Unless he receives at least that number, Nixon will be removed from office if the Senate votes.

Rep. Lawrence J. Hogan, R-Md., one of eight Republicans on the Judiciary Committee to recommend impeachment, said in a letter to his colleagues that he has been called a traitor by other Republicans.

"Many of these letters, telecome from my fellow Republicome from my fellow Republicans, condemning my decision, and addressing me as 'Judas' Hogan and 'Benedict Arnold' Hogan and 'Brutus' Hogan and asking what I would do with my "thirty pieces of silver."

No other Republicans on the panel who voted to recommend impeachment reported any such response.

Hogan, a candidate for the Republican gubernatorial nomination in Maryland, urged his Republican colleagues to "welcome and demand" Nixon's removal and Vice President Gerald R. Ford's elevation.

A year ago, he said, he would have considered Nixon's impeachment unthinkable but now "after having thoroughly studied the evidence for several him from office."

TOO EXPENSIVE, NO JOBS

Arkansas Rainmaker Moving On

NORTH LITTLE ROCK, Ark. (UPI) — Homer Berry, the Arkansas rainmaker who claims he can air condition a city or order up a cloudburst, has folded up his umbrella.

He no longer rides around dusty cottonfields in his pickup truck stoking a 50-gallon drum of silver iodide to produce rain.

Despite a near drought in the Southwest, and lack of a good gully-washing rain in Arkansas in weeks, Berry said he has received only one call for his services.

"That was about a week ago when a coupla big farmers down below Pine Bluff called me," he said. "The next day they got a scattered shower so they didn't need me then."

Berry, 68, a retired Air Force major, plans to stow his raincoat and move to arid Arizona.

He says he's been making it rain for 28 years but hasn't taken on a commercial rainmaking job in about two years. He said he's out of the rain business, except for a close friend or someone who "stuck by me in the early days."

"The only thing that could get me out again would be for someone who did me a favor or for someone who believed in me in the early days when I was just starting," he said. "I don't advertise any more."

Four years ago, Berry rolled his banged-up red pickup into Aspermont, Tex., where he had a $10,000 contract to bring five inches of rain. It fell three inches short.

The Texas Water Development Board later told Berry he could be jailed for trying to modify weather without a permit.

"I hate to dub myself a weather control authority," he said during his West Texas attempts. "But I can stop a storm and I can bring on a hail. I can bring snow in winter or summer. I can raise the temperature in the winter and lower it in the summer."

Berry said he's retiring because his eyes were damaged by "stirring that pot" for so many years. He also said the price of the silver-based chemical has increased so much it makes the operation too expensive for many farmers.

An "air dynamics expert" while in the Air Force, Berry said he took up rainmaking as a hobby after suffering a heart attack. He first started in 1946 and "really got going good" in 1947 out West.

He once tried to contract with the city North Little Rock to "air-condition the city," but he said city officials told him they would lose $55,000 a month in water bills if people no longer needed to water their lawns and gardens.

His air-conditioning plan, he explained, called for controlling showers so that it would rain about every 48 hours after business hours.

LET IT RAIN — Arkansas rainmaker Homer Berry fires up his rainmaking equipment one last time to show a photographer how it works. After more than 20 years of rainmaking in the central United States, 68-year-old Berry is packing up and moving off to Arizona.

Magee's Sentencing Is Delayed

SAN JOSE (AP) — U.S. Supreme Court Justice William O. Douglas has ordered an indefinite stay in the sentencing of San Quentin convict Ruchell Magee for the 1970 Marin County courthouse escape try in which four persons died.

Magee was to have been sentenced today.

Douglas notified the Santa Clara County Superior Court clerk yesterday that he was studying Magee's appeal of a state court decision prohibiting him from reversing a guilty plea to the charge of aggravated kidnaping.

Magee, 34, pleaded guilty during trial preliminaries here last month, but three days later asked Judge William Ingram to let him withdraw the plea.

Magee told the judge he had been so frustrated over not being allowed to serve as his own counsel that he decided to plead guilty "to get it all over with."

Ingram refused to allow the convict to reverse his plea, and Magee launched a series of appeals.

The charge against Magee stems from an August, 1970 attempted escape from the Marin County courthouse in San Rafael, north of San Francisco. Superior Court Judge Harold J. Haley, two convicts and an accomplice were killed.

The kidnaping charge carries a sentence of life imprisonment with no possibility of parole. Magee is currently serving a life term for a $10 kidnap-robbery conviction in Los Angeles.

Grumman Aerospace Ordered To Keep Loans From Market

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Navy has told Grumman Aerospace Corp., to stop playing the stock market with money the government loaned it to meet emergency bills and payrolls.

Critics complained that the Navy was lending Grumman money —up to $100 million —at bargain basement rates, 9 ⅛ per cent. The firm then invested the money for a few days or weeks at the market rate, 12 ½ per cent, until its bills and payrolls came due.

Assistant Navy Secretary David Potter said yesterday the loans were at 9 ⅛ per cent interest because that is the prevailing Treasury rate, which the Pentagon makes a policy of following.

In hearings last week, the Senate Armed Services Committee learned that Grumman, builder of the F14 Tomcat Fighter, had been taking low interest Navy loans and reinvesting them elsewhere at a profitable rate.

Potter said the new arrangement with Grumman forbids them from investing any of the loan and requires that the firm produce the bills it is paying before the Navy releases any money.

Potter also said the loan would be made at the prime rate, now 12 per cent, plus one-half per cent or the Treasury rate, whichever is higher.

TOO EXPENSIVE, NO JOBS

Arkansas Rainmaker Moving On

NORTH LITTLE ROCK, Ark. (UPI) — Homer Berry, the Arkansas rainmaker who claims he can air condition a city or order up a cloudburst, has folded up his umbrella.

He no longer rides around dusty cottonfields in his pickup truck stoking a 50-gallon drum of silver iodide to produce rain.

Despite a near drought in the Southwest, and lack of a good gully-washing rain in Arkansas in weeks, Berry said he has received only one call for his services.

"That was about a week ago when a coupla big farmers down below Pine Bluff called me," he said. "The next day they got a scattered shower so they didn't need me then."

Berry, 68, a retired Air Force major, plans to stow his raincoat and move to arid Arizona.

He says he's been making it rain for 28 years but hasn't taken on a commercial rainmaking job in about two years. He said he's out of the rain business, except for a close friend or someone who "stuck by me in the early days."

"The only thing that could get me out again would be for someone who did me a favor or for someone who believed in me in the early days when I was just starting," he said. "I don't advertise any more."

Four years ago, Berry rolled his banged-up red pickup into Aspermont, Tex., where he had a $10,000 contract to bring five inches of rain. It fell three inches short.

The Texas Water Development Board later told Berry he could be jailed for trying to modify weather without a permit.

"I hate to dub myself a weather control authority," he said during his West Texas attempts. "But I can stop a storm and I can bring on a hail. I can bring snow in winter or summer. I can raise the temperature in the winter and lower it in the summer."

Berry said he's retiring because his eyes were damaged by "stirring that pot" for so many years. He also said the price of the silver-based chemical has increased so much it makes the operation too expensive for many farmers.

An "air dynamics expert" while in the Air Force, Berry said he took up rainmaking as a hobby after suffering a heart attack. He first started in 1946 and "really got going good" in 1947 out West.

He once tried to contract with the city North Little Rock to "air-condition the city," but he said city officials told him they would lose $55,000 a month in water bills if people no longer needed to water their lawns and gardens.

His air-conditioning plan, he explained, called for controlling showers so that it would rain about every 48 hours after business hours.

LET IT RAIN — Arkansas rainmaker Homer Berry fires up his rainmaking equipment one last time to show a photographer how it works. After more than 20 years of rainmaking in the central United States, 68-year-old Berry is packing up and moving off to Arizona.

Magee's Sentencing Is Delayed

SAN JOSE (AP) — U.S. Supreme Court Justice William O. Douglas has ordered an indefinite stay in the sentencing of San Quentin convict Ruchell Magee for the 1970 Marin County courthouse escape try in which four persons died.

Magee was to have been sentenced today.

Douglas notified the Santa Clara County Superior Court clerk yesterday that he was studying Magee's appeal of a state court decision prohibiting him from reversing a guilty plea to the charge of aggravated kidnaping.

Magee, 34, pleaded guilty during trial preliminaries here last month, but three days later asked Judge William Ingram to let him withdraw the plea.

Magee told the judge he had been so frustrated over not being allowed to serve as his own counsel that he decided to plead guilty "to get it all over with."

Ingram refused to allow the convict to reverse his plea, and Magee launched a series of appeals.

The charge against Magee stems from an August, 1970 attempted escape from the Marin County courthouse in San Rafael, north of San Francisco. Superior Court Judge Harold J. Haley, two convicts and an accomplice were killed.

The kidnaping charge carries a sentence of life imprisonment with no possibility of parole. Magee is currently serving a life term for a $10 kidnap-robbery conviction in Los Angeles.

Grumman Aerospace Ordered To Keep Loans From Market

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Navy has told Grumman Aerospace Corp., to stop playing the stock market with money the government loaned it to meet emergency bills and payrolls.

Critics complained that the Navy was lending Grumman money —up to $100 million —at bargain basement rates, 9 ⅛ per cent. The firm then invested the money for a few days or weeks at the market rate, 12 ½ per cent, until its bills and payrolls came due.

Assistant Navy Secretary David Potter said yesterday the loans were at 9 ⅛ per cent interest because that is the prevailing Treasury rate, which the Pentagon makes a policy of following.

In hearings last week, the Senate Armed Services Committee learned that Grumman, builder of the F14 Tomcat Fighter, had been taking low interest Navy loans and reinvesting them elsewhere at a profitable rate.

Potter said the new arrangement with Grumman forbids them from investing any of the loan and requires that the firm produce the bills it is paying before the Navy releases any money.

Potter also said the loan would be made at the prime rate, now 12 per cent, plus one-half per cent or the Treasury rate, whichever is higher.

BARELY BEARABLE

It's been terribly hot for people during a heat wave in St. Louis that has persisted for several weeks, but it's even worse for a bear with his large size and heavy fur. This grizzly at the St. Louis Zoo made the heat a little more bearable by perching himself on a water fountain atop his den and letting the water gush over his body while licking some of the drops. Diphtheria Found In Los Angeles County

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Two cases of diphtheria have occurred in Los Angeles County and health authorities said yesterday if further cases appear, a wide-spread immunization program may be needed.

Liston Witherill, health services director, said the two cases are under control but the occurrence of the disease in two areas "suggests some possible danger of further transmission by yet undiscovered carriers in the community."

Union Official Wants Pickets

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — A Teamsters Union official called for informational picketing today at Yellow Cab Co. installations in Oakland, San Jose and Daly City as the result of a San Francisco strike.

James Strachan, speaking for the union, predicted the firm's operations would be hindered by pickets.

The company's 1,000 union drivers in San Francisco struck Tuesday in a labor contract dispute involving pay and a fare increase demanded from the city's Board of Supervisors.

Imports Of Beef Show A Decline

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Beef imports in the first half of 1974 were down 7 per cent from last year, according to the Agriculture Department.

January-June imports were 555.9 million pounds and further decreases were forecast in the second half of the year. The department has lowered the 1974 meat import estimate from 1.575 billion pounds to 1.210 billion pounds. The new estimate is 144 million pounds, or 10.6 per cent, below 1973 imports.

Probation, Social Workers Put In 'Enriched' Retirement Plan

Negotiators for the county and probation-social workers union tentatively agreed yesterday to place welfare eligibility workers under Marin's "enriched retirement system."

As it stands, eligibility workers will rejoin the system this month after having been shifted to a lesser retirement system in June.

Audidor-controller Michael Mitchell said the decision means about 75 eligibility workers will pay 7.6 per cent of their salaries toward retirement instead of 5.3 per cent.

They will receive between 20 and 25 per cent more in retirement benefits, however, he said.

Eligibility workers determine whether those seeking public assistance are entitled.

Negotiators are still dickering over placing the county's nine correctional workers in the improved system. No agreement has been reached on other welfare and probation workers.

The issue stems from a suit brought against the county by the union, Local 535 of the Service Employees International Union, which claimed it was not properly consulted when the county changed its retirement program two years ago.

Its members stayed out of the new retirement program, forcing the county to have two systems.

The union won the suit with tye court directing the county to negotiate the new program with Local 535.

The eligibility and correctional workers were dropped from the new system earlier this year when they voted to join the union. To reenter, they must "buy in" to make up the dollar difference in monthly payments between the old and new system.

While the union has agreed to this point for its new members, it maintains other probation and welfare workers should not be required to "buy in" at their expense.

They argue the county should pay that amount because they were not consulted when the system was started. Union officials plan to make that appeal to county supervisors and the county retirement board.

Eagleton Claims Nixon Broke Law

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Sen. Thomas F. Eagleton, D-Mo., says President Nixon violated the law when he allowed Marines to go ashore in Cyprus last week to help evacuate American civilians.

Eagleton said yesterday that Nixon failed to comply with the War Powers Act by not notifying Congress of the action within the required 48 hours. A White House spokesman said, "We don't consider a violation of the War Powers Act has occurred."

No Accord On Constitution

AUSTIN, Tex. (UPI) — The Texas Constitutional Convention adjourned yesterday without agreeing on a new document after seven months of work at a cost of $5 million.

According to the rules of the convention, two-thirds or 121 of the delegates had to approve any proposed charter. In a final vote, 118 delegates voted for passing the latest revision, 62 voted against and one delegate abstained.

The impasse resulted because of a struggle between labor and business leaders over a right to work law. Labor vowed to defeat any constitution that elevated right to work (a prohibition against union shops) from a statute to constitutional law.

Water District Fills Two Posts

Directors of the Marin Municipal Water District yesterday named a manager of engineering and created and filled a new post — assistant to the general manager.

Bernie Heare, who has served as acting engineering manager since December, was chosen to fill the $24,036-a-year position permanently. He replaces J. Dietrich Stroeh who is now the water district's general manager.

The board appointed Jules Tham as assistant to Stroeh. The 32-year-old Tham currently is administrative assistant for engineering.

The vote was unanimous on both appointments.

Heare, 47, has been with Marin Municipal for 17 years and was a principal engineer for the district before being named acting manager.

He began with Marin Municipal was a junior engineer and subsequently became assistant engineer, associate engineer and senior engineer.

He has been involved in developing ordinances for the district, water supply planning and supervision and administration of engineering projects.

Heare received his engineering degree from the University of Texas in 1950 and is working toward a master's degree in business administration at San Francisco State University. He worked for Bechtel Corp. and a utility company in Montana before joining the water district.

He and his wife Margaret live in East San Rafael. The couple has three children.

Tham has been with the district for seven years. During that time he has served as personnel assistant, personnel analyst and personnel director.

He has a bachleor's degree in business administration from the University of San Francisco and currently is working on his master's degree in management at San Francisco State University.

He and his wife, Annette, live in Glen Ellen.

The post of assistant to the general manager was created on the recommendation of the San Francisco consulting firm of Cresap, McCormick and Paget which recently completed a management study of the district. The job pays $18,792 a year.

The study suggested that Stroeh should have an assistant to shoulder some of the general manager's daily work load.

In his new job Tham will, among other things, assist Stroeh in coordinating district policies and programs, work on various study projects, represent the general manager at some meetings and draft communications and speeches for use by the manager.

New Theory Advanced On Connection Ban

A group of lawyers which has been studying the Marin Municipal Water District's moratorium on new connections believes that local agencies can continue to halt development even if the ban is lifted.

Attorney Denis T. Rice told the district board yesterday that the self-appointed committee of lawyers contends that local agencies, such as city councils and planning commissions must take water supply into account when granting permits for projects which require water.

Rice pointed out that Marin Superior Court Judge E. Warren McGuire, in his recent ruling striking down the connection ban, did say that the district's finding that a "threatened water shortage" exists within Marin Municipal was based on reasonable grounds.

(The district currently is appealing McGuire's ruling.)

Since the judge admitted a threatened shortage exists, city councils and planning commissions and county agencies can reject projects which use water until the threatened shortage is alleviated, Rice and the other attorneys contend. This would be possible even if the district lifts the moratorium or if the courts uphold McGuire's ruling, he told the board.

The agencies could take this action on the grounds that a water shortage would cause "acute environmental problems," Rice told the water district board.

Marin Municipal Water District Board Also:

CONSUMPTION — Learned that during fiscal 1973-74 the district's customers used a total of 30,987 acre feet of water, up 1 per cent from the 30,790 acre feet used during the previous fiscal year. Directors also were told that 500 new services — approved before the district connection moratorium went into effect — were added during 1973-74 as compared to 1,131 in 1972-73.

PROPERTY — Postponed, until a date to be announced, consideration of an agreement for water through the North Marin intertie, a proposed pipeline which could bring 4,000 acre feet of water to the district annually.

LIBRARY — Agreed to spend up to $2,300 to set up a district research library which would be used both by employees and members of the public.

LAND — Approved spending $190,000 for 10 acres in East San Rafael which will be used for a pipe storage yard.

EMPLOYMENT — Authorized the general manager to recruit a senior engineer to supervise water supply planning in the district.

Ross Budget On Agenda For Council

The Ross Town Council will consider a proposed 1974-75 budget of $407,780 when it meets at 8 p.m. next Thursday in the town hall.

The spending program, up from the past year's budget of $359,675, will allow the tax rate to be decreased from $1.75 to $1.66 because of increased assessed valuation of property in the town.

The proposed budget as prepared by councilmen Alan P. Maginnis and John H. Chase contains no new major expenditures but mainly reflects rising costs.

Among the larger proposed expenditures are $12,000 for tree removal and planting, $4,100 for a new police car and $10,000 for street overlay.

The proposed departmental expenditures for 1974-75 with the actual amounts spent in the 1973-74 in parentheses are:

Fire Department, $65,317 ($62,064); police department, $93,253 ($80,248); street department, $39,656 ($30,373); general government, $59,317 ($55,225); parks and boulevards, $56,117 ($52,677); storm drains and flood control, $25,599 ($22,924); capital expenditures from reserve fund, $29,270 ($42,843); retirement fund, $22,580 ($15,862); workmen's compensation and health benefits, $14,200 ($12,377); planning $0 ($813), reserves, $2,471.

Carson Loses Privacy Case

ST. LOUIS (UPI) — His name and image, said entertainer Johnny Carson in a lawsuit, are 'his valuable creation, which is protected from the wrongful use by others."

Not so in Nebraska, Carson's home state, said the the U.S. Court of Appeals for the Eighth Circuit Tuesday.

The court threw out a suit Carson filed against a Lincoln, Neb., travel agency for $125,000 in damages for using his name without his consent.

The appeals court agreed with a lower court's ruling that Nebraska was one of four states which "has expressly refused to recognize a right of privacy."

Travel Unlimited, Inc., used Carson's picture on brochures and advertisements to publicize a tour while Carson was in Las Vegas.

Walter Brennan Is Hospitalized

Brennan was admitted to St. John's Hospital last Thursday, his 80th birthday.

He lives on a ranch in the Simi Valley, on the northern fringe of the Los Angeles area. His family said Brennan's emphysema had been made worse by smog.

Water District Fills Two Posts

Directors of the Marin Municipal Water District yesterday named a manager of engineering and created and filled a new post — assistant to the general manager.

Bernie Heare, who has served as acting engineering manager since December, was chosen to fill the $24,036-a-year position permanently. He replaces J. Dietrich Stroeh who is now the water district's general manager.

The board appointed Jules Tham as assistant to Stroeh. The 32-year-old Tham currently is administrative assistant for engineering.

The vote was unanimous on both appointments.

Heare, 47, has been with Marin Municipal for 17 years and was a principal engineer for the district before being named acting manager.

He began with Marin Municipal was a junior engineer and subsequently became assistant engineer, associate engineer and senior engineer.

He has been involved in developing ordinances for the district, water supply planning and supervision and administration of engineering projects.

Heare received his engineering degree from the University of Texas in 1950 and is working toward a master's degree in business administration at San Francisco State University. He worked for Bechtel Corp. and a utility company in Montana before joining the water district.

He and his wife Margaret live in East San Rafael. The couple has three children.

Tham has been with the district for seven years. During that time he has served as personnel assistant, personnel analyst and personnel director.

He has a bachleor's degree in business administration from the University of San Francisco and currently is working on his master's degree in management at San Francisco State University.

He and his wife, Annette, live in Glen Ellen.

The post of assistant to the general manager was created on the recommendation of the San Francisco consulting firm of Cresap, McCormick and Paget which recently completed a management study of the district. The job pays $18,792 a year.

The study suggested that Stroeh should have an assistant to shoulder some of the general manager's daily work load.

In his new job Tham will, among other things, assist Stroeh in coordinating district policies and programs, work on various study projects, represent the general manager at some meetings and draft communications and speeches for use by the manager.

New Theory Advanced On Connection Ban

A group of lawyers which has been studying the Marin Municipal Water District's moratorium on new connections believes that local agencies can continue to halt development even if the ban is lifted.

Attorney Denis T. Rice told the district board yesterday that the self-appointed committee of lawyers contends that local agencies, such as city councils and planning commissions must take water supply into account when granting permits for projects which require water.

Rice pointed out that Marin Superior Court Judge E. Warren McGuire, in his recent ruling striking down the connection ban, did say that the district's finding that a "threatened water shortage" exists within Marin Municipal was based on reasonable grounds.

(The district currently is appealing McGuire's ruling.)

Since the judge admitted a threatened shortage exists, city councils and planning commissions and county agencies can reject projects which use water until the threatened shortage is alleviated, Rice and the other attorneys contend. This would be possible even if the district lifts the moratorium or if the courts uphold McGuire's ruling, he told the board.

The agencies could take this action on the grounds that a water shortage would cause "acute environmental problems," Rice told the water district board.

Marin Municipal Water District Board Also:

CONSUMPTION — Learned that during fiscal 1973-74 the district's customers used a total of 30,987 acre feet of water, up 1 per cent from the 30,790 acre feet used during the previous fiscal year. Directors also were told that 500 new services — approved before the district connection moratorium went into effect — were added during 1973-74 as compared to 1,131 in 1972-73.

PROPERTY — Postponed, until a date to be announced, consideration of an agreement for water through the North Marin intertie, a proposed pipeline which could bring 4,000 acre feet of water to the district annually.

LIBRARY — Agreed to spend up to $2,300 to set up a district research library which would be used both by employees and members of the public.

LAND — Approved spending $190,000 for 10 acres in East San Rafael which will be used for a pipe storage yard.

EMPLOYMENT — Authorized the general manager to recruit a senior engineer to supervise water supply planning in the district.

Ross Budget On Agenda For Council

The Ross Town Council will consider a proposed 1974-75 budget of $407,780 when it meets at 8 p.m. next Thursday in the town hall.

The spending program, up from the past year's budget of $359,675, will allow the tax rate to be decreased from $1.75 to $1.66 because of increased assessed valuation of property in the town.

The proposed budget as prepared by councilmen Alan P. Maginnis and John H. Chase contains no new major expenditures but mainly reflects rising costs.

Among the larger proposed expenditures are $12,000 for tree removal and planting, $4,100 for a new police car and $10,000 for street overlay.

The proposed departmental expenditures for 1974-75 with the actual amounts spent in the 1973-74 in parentheses are:

Fire Department, $65,317 ($62,064); police department, $93,253 ($80,248); street department, $39,656 ($30,373); general government, $59,317 ($55,225); parks and boulevards, $56,117 ($52,677); storm drains and flood control, $25,599 ($22,924); capital expenditures from reserve fund, $29,270 ($42,843); retirement fund, $22,580 ($15,862); workmen's compensation and health benefits, $14,200 ($12,377); planning $0 ($813), reserves, $2,471.

Dinosaur Prints Found In Mine

BIG FEET — Miner Raymond Garcia carries one of the fossilized dinosaur footprints found in the Carbon Fuel Co.'s No. 3 Mine near Martin, Utah last weekend. Miners discovered the field of prints, some as long as four feet, 1,200 feet underground in what was once a tar pit. Dinosaur tracks have been found in most mines in the area.

(UPI Telephoto)

MARTIN, Utah (UPI) — Miners in Utah's Carbon County have been plucking coal from between the toes of dinosaur prints.

It's a tricky business, and they have to guard against having the petrified footprints fall on them.

The dinosaurs, of course, died 100 million years ago, but they left prints as they walked across prehistoric swamps. The reptile tracks filled with sand and other minerals, which formed slick, scaly casts as the swamp slowly turned into a coal bed.

Miners discovered a large field of the fossilized footprints 1,200 feet underground in a tunnel of the Carbon Fuel Co. No. 3 mine. They carried five of the three-toed fossils from the mine last weekend.

"The prints are nothing new," said Mine Maintenance Superintendent Claude Wheeler of Price. "All the mines around here have them, but this latest bunch is an unusually large concentration."

Since dinosaurs walked on top of the swamp, the prints are on the ceiling of the mine tunnel. Some weight as much as 150-200 pounds.

"Most of them are one or two feet long," Wheeler said. "I haven't seen it myself, but the men tell me there is one imprint in the ceiling four feet long."

Wheeler said the size and composition of the footprints present a safety hazard for the miners.

"Usually where you find dinosaur tracks, you have what they call a bad top. The surrounding material is loose and has a tendency to crumble," he said.

"These things are real slick," he added. "They can just drop out and hit a man. You either have to take them down or support them up there."

Wheeler said he did not know of any serious injuries resulting from the footprints falling from the ceiling.

But Jim Madsen, curator of dinosaur exhibits at the Utah Museum of Natural History, said he had heard stories about miners being killed "in the old days" when they relied more on picks and shovels than on machinery to dig out the coal.

Madsen said the fossils were made either duckbilled, plant-eating dinosaurs or the large, vicious, meat-eating reptiles that roamed the swamps 100 million years ago.

"Both groups were bipedal and had three toes on the hind foot," the scientist said.

University of Utah Geology Prof. William L. Stokes said the coal mine tracks were the only known evidence of a group of two-legged dinosaurs about twice the size of the fearsome tyranosaurus rex.

"We found prints 4 ½ feet long from a dinosaur with a stride of 12 feet," Stokes said. "A tyranosaurus had a foot about half that size."

Wheeler said prints are considered a nuisance in the mine and many of the larger ones are broken and destroyed when they are removed.

"The smaller ones usually end up in flower gardens," he added. "I have one on my front porch."

Black Group Raps Ford's Avoidance

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — Vice President Gerald Ford was rapped yesterday for not discussing the nation's employment problems before a National Urban League convention whose theme was the jobless.

"I'm not sure he heard us on this issue," said Executive Director Vernon E. Jordan Jr., at a press conference.

Ford gave a speech before the national convention earlier in the week but "didn't address himself" to the league's push for full employment in the U.S., Jordan said.

Jordan and league president Donald H. McGannon, New York, said a new spiral of joblessness appeared "inescapable" as government and industry seek to reduce inflation by curtailing spending and some production.

McGannon, president and board chairman of Westinghouse Broadcasting Corp., said the Nixon administration must anticipate the unemployment rise and earmark funds already available to meet the crisis.

He said anti-inflation efforts will "grind heavily" on the poor and minorities and that government must "recognize the human needs they will produce."

Jordan said make-work programs would not be necessary but that the government could stimulate jobs by investing in ecology, day-care and other projects to alleviate unemployment.

Dog Is A Delicacy In Philippine Town

By LEON DANIEL

"Before martial law, people around here would even steal pet dogs and sell them to those who wanted to cook them," a guest told me at a buffet dinner where the main course was dog meat.

"That doesn't happen anymore," he said rather proudly.

Until then, I thought I had heard all of the justifications for martial law, imposed by President Ferdinand E. Marcos 22 months ago.

The dinner was hosted by a government official at the guest house of the presidential mansion to entertain newsmen covering a tour of the Philippines by the Miss Universe beauty pageant finalists.

The dog meat was served in what appeared to be a stew.

Two Spanish journalists, a husband and wife team, were eating from heaping plates with gusto until another guest inquired in broken Spanish if they were enjoying their dog meat.

They quickly set their plates down and ate no more.

"Try some," a guest urged me.

"Just pour some over the rice," my colleague pressed. "You'll like it."

The moment of decision had come. I wasn't in the least curious as to the taste of dog meat but I didn't want to offend my host. So I decided to compromise.

Gingerly, I forked from a steaming bowl what I fervently hope —and will forever insist — was a small piece of carrot.

"I'd like to interview the chef," I said, setting down my plate and heading toward the kitchen.

"What I look for is a small black dog, about nine months to a year old," said Alfredo Mundo, a wiry little man who proudly acknowledged that he had prepared the meal.

Mundo, who said he served as a cook with U.S. forces on Guam during World War II, said there are lots of ways to cook dog meat.

He said it is particularly popular adobo style, a Philippine way of barbecuing. He said the best dog meat costs more than 60 cents a pound.

Butz Says Pet Purge Could Ease Food Crisis

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Agriculture Secretary Earl L. Butz says "fuzzy thinking dogooders" who want Americans to eat less meat in order to save grain for the starving abroad could accomplish the same goal by doing away with half the nation's pet dogs, cats and horses.

Butz made the joking suggestion in a yesterday Wednesday before the American Society of Animal Science. He stressed that it was not meant to be taken seriously.

There are about 32 million dogs and 22 million cats in the nation, he said, and eight million horses, mules and asses, "which no longer pull the plow or dray."

"It takes a lot of food —a lot of grain products —to keep that many animals alive, sleek and contented. If some people are really serious about proposing that we cut back on hamburgers ... then I want to know how they feel about the horses and dogs and cats that they own."

He was referring to proposals such as one advanced by Sen. Hubert H. Humphrey, D-Minn., who suggested people consider eating one less hamburger a week so some of the huge amount of grain now fed to cattle could be available.

Butz called the crusaders "ill-informed, fuzzy-thinking dogooders," and said "... they could make the first onslaught on this noble goal by reducing our dog and cat population.

Ford Motor Earnings Fall 61.5%

DETROIT (UPI) — Ford Motor Co. reported yesterday that its first half earnings declined 61.5 per cent from last year, completing an industry cycle that plunged profits to their lowest level since 1961.

Ford said its earnings in the first six months of the year were $291 million, or $3.11 a share, compared with $755 million, or $7.57 a share, for the same period last year.

Over all, the big three automakers reported first half earnings of $746 million, down from the record $2.56 billion last year. Not since they reported profits of $633.6 million in 1961 had over all earnings dipped below $1 billion.

Like its industry rivals, Ford blamed the profit slump on sharp increases in material and labor costs and to the energy crisis-induced sales decline.

Ford also said a strike at its key Chiciago stamping plant earlier this year cut second quarter earnings by 29 cents a share.

Worldwide sales for the first six months of the year, Ford said, totaled $11.4 billion compared with $12.4 billion last year, a decline of just over 8 per cent.

For the second quarter, Ford said its earnings totaled $168 million compared with $394 million last year, a drop of 57.4 per cent. It was equivalent to $1.80 per share compared with $3.98 last year.

Sales in the second quarter totaled $6 billion, down 5 per cent from the figure in 1973, with worldwide vehicle sales totaling 1.45 million compared with 1.65 million for the same period last year.

Brown Favors Free TV Time

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — California Secretary of State Edmund Brown Jr., the Democratic candidate for governor, says the nation's television stations should be required to provide free broadcast time to office seekers.

Brown made the comment in testimony before a hearing of the Assembly Committee on Elections and Reapportionment.

He said candidates for major office should be prohibited from purchasing television commercials in general election campaigns.

Skyrocketing costs are turning candidates into beggars who must go hat-in-hand to lobbyists and special interest groups," he said.

COUNTS TRICKS

South won the opening lead with the king of clubs, counting his eight tricks: Two top spades, one heart, two diamonds and three clubs. He saw that a successful finesse in any suit but clubs would give him a ninth trick.

Before making up his mind, South cashed the ace of clubs, led a spade to dummy's king and cashed the queen of clubs, discarding a heart from his hand. But now he had to decide.

Put yourself in South's place. Which finesse would you take?

ALL CHOICES LOSE

As it happens, any of the three finesses will lose. But don't complain about your hard luck if you take a finesse and fail to make the contract. The point is that you have no business taking a finesse (even though you might still manage to make the contract).

Just lead a club from dummy and let West win the trick. Since there are no green cards in the deck, West must return a spade, a heart or a diamond. Any such return gives you a free finesse for your ninth trick.

The moral is very clear: Never do a job by yourself if you can get an opponent to do it for you.

What do you say?

ANSWER: Redouble.

Your side has at least 24 points, which means that the opponents can have only 16 at most. You may be able to murder the opponents at any contract, and the redouble announces this pious hope to your partner.

COUNTS TRICKS

South won the opening lead with the king of clubs, counting his eight tricks: Two top spades, one heart, two diamonds and three clubs. He saw that a successful finesse in any suit but clubs would give him a ninth trick.

Before making up his mind, South cashed the ace of clubs, led a spade to dummy's king and cashed the queen of clubs, discarding a heart from his hand. But now he had to decide.

Put yourself in South's place. Which finesse would you take?

ALL CHOICES LOSE

As it happens, any of the three finesses will lose. But don't complain about your hard luck if you take a finesse and fail to make the contract. The point is that you have no business taking a finesse (even though you might still manage to make the contract).

Just lead a club from dummy and let West win the trick. Since there are no green cards in the deck, West must return a spade, a heart or a diamond. Any such return gives you a free finesse for your ninth trick.

The moral is very clear: Never do a job by yourself if you can get an opponent to do it for you.

DAILY QUESTION

Partner opens with one no-trump (16 to 18 points) and the next player doubles.

You hold:
♠ - Q 10 5
♥ - K 6
♦ - Q 10 8 2
♣ - J 10 9 8

What do you say?

ANSWER: Redouble.

Your side has at least 24 points, which means that the opponents can have only 16 at most. You may be able to murder the opponents at any contract, and the redouble announces this pious hope to your partner.

Mill Valley, And Sanitary Districts Agree To Share

The Mill Valley City Council and representatives of sanitary districts which pump their sewage to the city for treatment agreed last night to base each one's share of new sewer permits available in the Mill Valley area on each share of the total Mill Valley area assessed valuation.

City Mgr. Ronald L. Usher said that representatives of the Kay Park, Almonte and Homestead Valley districts will go back to their boards with this for sharing 651 uncommitted sewer permits.

Usher said another 100 connections still available would be held in a reserve pool, not to be used unless some development came along which a board or the city found highly desirable for their community.

The assessed valuation formula would be derived by averaging assessor's figures for the last three years.

Using only last year's figures, Usher estimated that Mill Valley would get 498 permits, Kay Park 13, Almonte 48 and Homestead Valley 68. Another 23 would go to Alto Sanitary District which did not attend last night's meeting.

The city and the districts will meet again in six months to discuss the arrangement and perhaps reallocate leftover permits.

Usher said he does not expect the permits to be used up rapidly since the districts and city do not have many major developments now being prepared.

The tentative agreement could settle a struggle that has gone on between the districts and city ever since the Regional Water Quality Control Board partially lifted a ban on sewer connections in the Mill Valley area.

Also last night, the Mill Valley council introduced a special ordinance designed to ration the sewer permits it now has. The ordinance requires all developers of projects needing two or more hookups to go before the planning commission for permission for connections as well as for approvals for their plans. Once they have their hookups, these developers would have to start building within six months.

Official Tries To Block Rate Hike

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — A member of the State Board of Equalization yesterday challenged a rate increase of $183.3 million granted the Pacific Telephone Co. by the Public Utilities Commission.

William Bennett of Kentfield, equalization board member, pointed out in his petition for rehearing that the decision ignored a recommendation by the commission's own staff to reduce the rate by $114 million.

He said the increase violates a decision by the California Supreme Court holding that Pacific Telephone could not charge its customers more for taxes than the company actually paid.

Miners To Honor Memory Of Dead

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The United Mine Workers will halt coal production for 10 days this summer to honor the estimated 100,000 coal miners killed since 1900, according to UMW President Arnold Miller.

Miller said, in the UMW Journal, that the union had the right to set aside 10 days as a memorial period under the 1971 contract with the Bituminous Coal Operators Association.

$334,830 Budgeted In Marinwood District

The Marinwood Community Services District Board last night adopted a $334,830 budget for 1974-75, up from this year's $275,660.

The budget is expected to require a tax rate of $1.24 per $100 of assessed valuation, up one cent from this year's rate, according to Genevieve T. Bolding, district manager.

Increase of the spending program is primarily due to inclusion of a 7.5 per cent salary increase for the district's 11 employees, she said.

The budget includes $15,400 for street lighting, up from $14,020; $157,290 for fire department, up from $118,918, and $162,140 for parks and recreation, up from $142,725.

The board last night also approved a $4,000 expenditure for supplies needed to construct a footbridge over Miller Creek.

The board next meets at 8 p.m. Aug. 19.

JOEL GREENBERG
To Sonoma state job

Greenberg Fills Post At College

Joel Greenberg, 32, has been promoted to the post of career planning and placement director at Sonoma State College, according to college President Marjorie Wagner.

Greenberg arrived at the Rohnert Park campus Monday from his post as director of special programs at California State University, Los Angeles. He primarily was responsible for providing services for veterans, handicapped students and residents of on-campus housing.

He previously held several other positions involving job placement and employment counseling in the state college system and the former state Department of Employment.

Greenberg said one of his duties at Sonoma State will be to offset "the increasing uncertainty that a college degree will have a direct outcome of employment." He said the office will stress providing students with skills and experience as well as academic training.

Sale Of Bugging Gear Restricted

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Senate has voted to require prior congressional approval of all foreign sales of American-made electronic bugging devices and police equipment.

The proposed requirement was contained in an amendment offered by Sen. Henry M. Jackson, D-Wash., to an extension of the Export Administration Act.

Jackson disclosed last week that sophisticated U.S. surveillance equipment was to be displayed at a Soviet trade fair next month. He said inadequate controls on exports of such equipment only served to aid "repressive dictatorships."

Author Reception

Author Stephen Levine will be on hand to promote his new book, "Planet Steward" Wednesday at 8 p.m. at the Tides Bookstore, 749 Bridgeway, Sausalito. Wine will be served at the reception, open to the public, and Levine will discuss his book, which shows how a return to the land is also a return to original nature.

CALLING ALL
CAMERA FANS

ORGANIZING PERSONAL MOVIES

Many moviemakers leave their processed 8mm and super 8 films permanently in their original 50-foot lengths. We earnestly recommend carrying home movie production two steps farther. One is to splice the short lengths together so as to fill reels holding 200 or 400 feet of film. The second is to edit these larger reels into a smooth-flowing story.

Movies in the form we recommend are much easier to show and much more enjoyable to look at than the 50-foot reels. They are much easier to keep track of and store. And they are much less likely to be damaged, go astray, deteriorate through aging, and pick up dust, lint and dirt.

The steps involved in organizing home movies are briefly described here. We will be happy to supply further details on the procedure at our store. You would especially want to consult us about editing of sound film.

HERE ARE SOME TIPS ... Splice the 50-foot lengths of film together onto large reels ... Rearrange scenes, as may seem advisable into a more logical order ... Delete blank and badly exposed film, and shots that are poorly posed ... Provide about three feet of leader film at the start an end of each reel ... A desirable step is to shoot and splice in titles ... Provide labeled cans for your reels and store them in a reel chest ...

For more information stop by our shop ... We are always ready to help with your picture-taking.

JOEL GREENBERG
To Sonoma state job

Greenberg Fills Post At College

Joel Greenberg, 32, has been promoted to the post of career planning and placement director at Sonoma State College, according to college President Marjorie Wagner.

Greenberg arrived at the Rohnert Park campus Monday from his post as director of special programs at California State University, Los Angeles. He primarily was responsible for providing services for veterans, handicapped students and residents of on-campus housing.

He previously held several other positions involving job placement and employment counseling in the state college system and the former state Department of Employment.

Greenberg said one of his duties at Sonoma State will be to offset "the increasing uncertainty that a college degree will have a direct outcome of employment." He said the office will stress providing students with skills and experience as well as academic training.

Sale Of Bugging Gear Restricted

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Senate has voted to require prior congressional approval of all foreign sales of American-made electronic bugging devices and police equipment.

The proposed requirement was contained in an amendment offered by Sen. Henry M. Jackson, D-Wash., to an extension of the Export Administration Act.

Jackson disclosed last week that sophisticated U.S. surveillance equipment was to be displayed at a Soviet trade fair next month. He said inadequate controls on exports of such equipment only served to aid "repressive dictatorships."

Author Reception

Author Stephen Levine will be on hand to promote his new book, "Planet Steward" Wednesday at 8 p.m. at the Tides Bookstore, 749 Bridgeway, Sausalito. Wine will be served at the reception, open to the public, and Levine will discuss his book, which shows how a return to the land is also a return to original nature.

CALLING ALL
CAMERA FANS

ORGANIZING PERSONAL MOVIES

Many movie-makers leave their processed 8mm and super 8 films permanently in their original 50-foot lengths. We earnestly recommend carrying home movie production two steps farther. One is to splice the short lengths together so as to fill reels holding 200 or 400 feet of film. The second is to edit these larger reels into a smooth-flowing story.

Movies in the form we recommend are much easier to show and much more enjoyable to look at than the 50-foot reels. They are much easier to keep track of and store. And they are much less likely to be damaged, go astray, deteriorate through aging, and pick up dust, lint and dirt.

The steps involved in organizing home movies are briefly described here. We will be happy to supply further details on the procedure at our store. You would especially want to consult us about editing of sound film.

HERE ARE SOME TIPS ... Splice the 50-foot lengths of film together onto large reels ... Rearrange scenes, as may seem advisable into a more logical order ... Delete blank and badly exposed film, and shots that are poorly posed ... Provide about three feet of leader film at the start an end of each reel ... A desirable step is to shoot and splice in titles ... Provide labeled cans for your reels and store them in a reel chest ...

For more information stop by our shop ... We are always ready to help with your picture-taking.

TOPNOTCH HORSE TRAINER

She Relaxes By Cutting Cattle On A Night Off

By PAT BALMES

"I cut cattle strictly for my own pleasure; it's a busman's holiday," said Mrs. Harry Lehman, who trains horses in the indoor arena at her home in Lagunitas and spends almost every other weekend on the road with horses and students, competing at horse shows.

Eight out of every 10 persons who ride today are women. There are about 10 million horsewomen in the United States, and most of them compete in horse shows, according to California Horse Review, the state's largest all-breeds news magazine.

Last week at Circle V Stables Mrs. Lehman, astride her Arabian Tu-Riff, demonstrated cutting — separating a cow from the herd. The difficult, cowhond's skill is used to handle cattle in corrals on ranches.

To a trained horse, cutting becomes a game. He learns to keep a cow separated by wheeling and pivoting without commands from his rider who just indicates which cow to cut, she said.

"I TRY to anticipate which way the cow will go; once in awhile I get left. The horse is right 99 per cent of the time," she said.

Cutting is a kind of a disease once you catch it, and it is expensive because it takes a lot of cattle. Forty cows are necessary to give six or eight cutting horses practice, she said.

Unlike roping, cutting is not hard on cattle. Capital Planning Co. owner of Circle V and its cattle, would allow them to cut anytime, she said.

However the club cuts only once a week to prevent the cattle from becoming sour. It is bad for a horse's spirit to be bumped or kicked by a defiant cow, she explained.

The 16 cutters, some of whom are Redwood Empire Cutting Horse Association members, range from businessmen to housewives. They cut for recreation and to train cutting horses to show locally.

"I bring the cattle down from the hill and get them ready for Tuesday nights. I started with Ed Smith in 1965 who used to own Circle V. I was his turn back (helper)," siad Mrs. Lehman, who was then a college girl training horses at Circle V.

She was born in Marin. Her father was the Ross fire chief for 25 years. A graduate of Ross Grammer School and Redwood High School, she studied two years at California State Univeristy, San Francisco, planning to become a high school teacher until she realized she "did not want to be indoors."

She switched to the Sonoma State College pre-veterinarian program but gave it up two years later to accept a partnership in the now closed Sleepy Hollow Stables.

WHEN SHE married Harry Lehman, also a horse enthusiast, he built her her own training stable on their property. There she regularly trains two or three outside horses besides the Lehmans' own show Arabians. Mrs. Lehman often has students' horses in her barn temporarily for training, correction and tune-up for the horse shows.

"We still take in a kid who cannot get along with her horse," said Mrs. Lehman, who enjoys all phases of the horse business.

"Every horse I have has a lot of stock horse training. I like a horse to be part of me. When I turn around, he better come with me," she said with a determined grin.

Edie and Harry Lehman enjoy trail riding and last weekend led the Tamalpais Trail Riders overnight ride at the Stewart Ranch's Horse Camp at Point Reyes.

Mrs. Lehman prides herself on training a good trail horse, teaching him to be safe outside as well as in the show ring. Her Arabians Tu-Riff and Ragayl won first and second place in the adult trail competition at the Sonoma County Fair in July.

PROFESSIONAL HORSEWOMAN Edie Lehman of Lagunitas believes that horse training is not a matter of strenght; "you are supposed to outsmart the horse." She is in a booming industry where eight out of 10 riders are women. Here her trained Arabian Tu-Riff works without command separating a cow from the herd at Circle V Stables in Fairfax.

THE SUBURBAN SCENE

Former Nixon Aide And Family Settling Into New Tiburon Home

By MOLLY MARIN

Getting settled in a new home in Tiburon are Mr. and Mrs. Paul Haerle who were married at a small ceremony at the First Baptist Church of Clarendon in Arlington, Va., July 12.

The bride, the former Mrs. Nola Smith, chief assistant to President Richard M. Nixon for executive recruitment, resigned that position when she was married. She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Elmer Ball of Madison, W. Va., and has one daughter, Angela, 17. Mrs. Haerle has lived in Austin, Tex., for over 15 years and has also maintained a residence in Washington, D. C.

Haerle is the son of George W. Haerle of Portland,Ore., and the late Mrs. Haerle. He has two children, Karen, 18, and David, 15, by a previous marriage. The bridegroom is an attorney and a partner with the San Francisco law firm of Thelen, Marrin, Johnson and Bridges. He is vice chairman of the California State Republic Central Committee.

After the intimate church ceremony for family members and a few close friends, a large reception was held in the banquet rooms of the Crystal Towers Apartments in the capitol. Among the guests were Senator John G. Tower of Texas, whose 1972 campaign the bride had managed, and Mrs. Anne Armstrong, counselor to the president for women's activities. Mrs. Armstrong is the only woman in the administration with cabinet rank.

The new Mrs. Haerle was appointed to the president's staff in September, 1973, to assist with locating qualified women for high level positions in the administration.

"It is work that needs doing," she said, "but it's too long a commute from California."

The couple went to Bermuda on a wedding trip before traveling to their home in Marin County.

MR. AND MRS. Jerome M. Kennedy of Novato traveled to Denver for the wedding of their daughter, Patrice Michelle Kennedy of Denver, and Clark Kent Gestring of Aurora, Colo. on June 22.

Also attending the wedding was the bride's brother, Michael J. Kennedy of Novato.

The newlyweds are living in Cedar City, Utah., where the bridegroom is a project geologist with Earth Sciences, Inc.

The bride was graduated from San Rafael High School and attended College of Marin. She has the bachelor of arts degree from Loretto Heights College in Denver and master of science degree from Creighton University in Omaha, Neb.

MRS. PAT Omizollo's new home in Novato was the setting Saturday for her "vacant house party."

A former resident of the Marin Country Club Estates, Mrs. Omizollo invited guests to her home before the furniture arrived.

MR. AND MRS. Donald Du Pertius of Mill Valley have returned from a fishing vacation in the Feather River country.

MR. AND MRS. William King have invited 65 guests to their home in San Rafael for a cocktail party on Saturday, which will feature Naida, a belly dancer, and Sam Pietro, a guitarist from San Francisco, who will entertain the guests.

LIVING IN San Anselmo after their marriage in New York on June 21 are Mr. and Mrs. William Dreskin. The bride is the former Wendy Rosenblatt, director of the Learning Exchange school in Sausalito.

The wedding was given in the garden of the home of the bridegroom's cousin, Mrs. Barbara Brenner in Nyack, N. Y., where family members baked the traditional breads for the reception which followed the ceremony conducted by Rabbi Andre Ungar.

The bride is the daughter of Mrs. Freda Birnbaum of New York City and of Philip Rosenblatt, also of New York City. The bridegroom is the son of Leon Dreskin of Newark, N. J., and Mrs. Mildred Dodge of Chicago, Ill.

The couple was in New York a week, then returned to California for a back-packing trip in the Trinity Alps. Wendy attended the University of Chicago, was graduated from the University of California at Berkeley and studied for the elementary school credential at Dominican College.

Dreskin attended Bard College in Annandale, N. Y., and was graduated from the University of California at Berkeley. He received the master of arts degree from the California Institute of Arts in Valencia (Calif.) and earned elementary and secondary teaching credentials from Dominican College.

Edie and Harry Lehman enjoy trail riding and last weekend led the Tamalpais Trail Riders overnight ride at the Stewart Ranch's Horse Camp at Point Reyes.

Mrs. Lehman prides herself on training a good trail horse, teaching him to be safe outside as well as in the show ring. Her Arabians Tu-Riff and Ragayl won first and second place in the adult trail competition at the Sonoma County Fair in July.

The Lehmans keep their four-horse van loaded with feed and grooming equipment for a calendar of weekend or week-long shows away from Marin. They average two a month, with a break between the November Grand National at the Cow Palace and the annual Arizona

PROFESSIONAL HORSEWOMAN Edie Lehman of Lagunitas believes that horse training is not a matter of strenght; "you are supposed to outsmart the horse." She is in a booming industry where eight out of 10 riders are women. Here her trained Arabian Tu-Riff works without command separating a cow from the herd at Circle V Stables in Fairfax.

THE SUBURBAN SCENE

Former Nixon Aide And Family Settling Into New Tiburon Home

By MOLLY MARIN

Getting settled in a new home in Tiburon are Mr. and Mrs. Paul Haerle who were married at a small ceremony at the First Baptist Church of Clarendon in Arlington, Va., July 12.

The bride, the former Mrs. Nola Smith, chief assistant to President Richard M. Nixon for executive recruitment, resigned that position when she was married. She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Elmer Ball of Madison, W. Va., and has one daughter, Angela, 17. Mrs. Haerle has lived in Austin, Tex., for over 15 years and has also maintained a residence in Washington, D. C.

Haerle is the son of George W. Haerle of Portland,Ore., and the late Mrs. Haerle. He has two children, Karen, 18, and David, 15, by a previous marriage. The bridegroom is an attorney and a partner with the San Francisco law firm of Thelen, Marrin, Johnson and Bridges. He is vice chairman of the California State Republic Central Committee.

After the intimate church ceremony for family members and a few close friends, a large reception was held in the banquet rooms of the Crystal Towers Apartments in the capitol. Among the guests were Senator John G. Tower of Texas, whose 1972 campaign the bride had managed, and Mrs. Anne Armstrong, counselor to the president for women's activities. Mrs. Armstrong is the only woman in the administration with cabinet rank.

The new Mrs. Haerle was appointed to the president's staff in September, 1973, to assist with locating qualified women for high level positions in the administration.

"It is work that needs doing," she said, "but it's too long a commute from California."

The couple went to Bermuda on a wedding trip before traveling to their home in Marin County.

MR. AND MRS. Jerome M. Kennedy of Novato traveled to Denver for the wedding of their daughter, Patrice Michelle Kennedy of Denver, and Clark Kent Gestring of Aurora, Colo. on June 22.

Also attending the wedding was the bride's brother, Michael J. Kennedy of Novato.

The newlyweds are living in Cedar City, Utah., where the bridegroom is a project geologist with Earth Sciences, Inc.

The bride was graduated from San Rafael High School and attended College of Marin. She has the bachelor of arts degree from Loretto Heights College in Denver and master of science degree from Creighton University in Omaha, Neb.

MRS. PAT Omizollo's new home in Novato was the setting Saturday for her "vacant house party."

A former resident of the Marin Country Club Estates, Mrs. Omizollo invited guests to her home before the furniture arrived.

MR. AND MRS. Donald Du Pertius of Mill Valley have returned from a fishing vacation in the Feather River country.

MR. AND MRS. William King have invited 65 guests to their home in San Rafael for a cocktail party on Saturday, which will feature Naida, a belly dancer, and Sam Pietro, a guitarist from San Francisco, who will entertain the guests.

LIVING IN San Anselmo after their marriage in New York on June 21 are Mr. and Mrs. William Dreskin. The bride is the former Wendy Rosenblatt, director of the Learning Exchange school in Sausalito.

The wedding was given in the garden of the home of the bridegroom's cousin, Mrs. Barbara Brenner in Nyack, N. Y., where family members baked the traditional breads for the reception which followed the ceremony conducted by Rabbi Andre Ungar.

The bride is the daughter of Mrs. Freda Birnbaum of New York City and of Philip Rosenblatt, also of New York City. The bridegroom is the son of Leon Dreskin of Newark, N. J., and Mrs. Mildred Dodge of Chicago, Ill.

The couple was in New York a week, then returned to California for a back-packing trip in the Trinity Alps. Wendy attended the University of Chicago, was graduated from the University of California at Berkeley and studied for the elementary school credential at Dominican College.

Dreskin attended Bard College in Annandale, N. Y., and was graduated from the University of California at Berkeley. He received the master of arts degree from the California Institute of Arts in Valencia (Calif.) and earned elementary and secondary teaching credentials from Dominican College.

GENERATION RAP

Strict Mother Has Daughter Almost At End Of Her Wits

RAP:

I don't know whether to kill myself or run away.

My Mum thinks only vampires go out at night. I'm 15 and not allowed out after 9 p.m. I can't have boys call. I can walk to school only with my dumb sister, not my friends. She spies on me and reports to my folks.

If I'm asked to a party, Mum gets a migrain. No boys till 18; no dances till the 11th grade, and then Dad has to take me. I have to wear only dresses to school.

Don't say talk to a neighbor. There's no one I can trust. And our priest is Mum's best friend. Dad does whatever she tells him, so he's no help.

I'm a popular chick. A lotta good it does me! This has got me so nervous that I smoke (weed and cigarettes), pop pills and drink and get low grades.

I was good and didn't talk back to Mum for two weeks, but my dumb sister picked a fight and now things are worse than ever.

I just may walk in front of a car. — HELP IF YOU CAN

HIYC:

Your mother's restrictions are much too tough, but you're doing your best (or worst) to make her believe she's right! A "popular chick" who smokes, pops pills and drinks would earn a D- confidence rating even from a relaxed parent. Get straight, and maybe (let's hope) she'll gradually get less tight.. — HELEN

HIYC:

But it will take more than two weeks! Getting straight is like going on a diet: the first few days are worst because temptations are greatest, no one notices but you, and you figure what's the use because it won't work anyway.

But it's your only hope. So try "being good" for the rest of the summer; then let us know whether things are better at your house. — SUE

RAP:

Do you think older teen-agers should be allowed to read magazines like Playboy and Penthouse?

Half of my friends read them, and quite often at home where their parents subscribe to them and don't mind.

But my folks buy these magazines and then hide them so my little mind won't be contaminated! Should I tell them I've got my own set hidden in my closet? — ALMOST 16

DEAR ALMOST:

Why not? Teen-agers should be allowed to read any magazine that's "fit" for their parents. (And if parents don't think it's fit, they shouldn't buy it.)

Besides, think of the money saved if you could share the same magazines. — HELEN AND SUE

P.S. Seriously, it seems to us that parents who "protect" older teens from their own girlie magazines aren't very aware. They should know kids will read them elsewhere, if they're so inclined.

RAP:

I'm a new husband and I've just discovered my wife's idea of equal rights is — the husband brings home the paycheck and the wife spends it. Except she spends more than I make. What should I tell her? — UNLIBERATED HUSBAND.

DEAR HUSBAND:

We'd suggest she work out a firm budget with your help, or get a job. Or both. — HELEN AND SUE

Commission Discussion Set Monday

The second discussion meeting for those interested in forming a Status of Women Commission in Sonoma County will be held Monday at 7:30 p.m. at the Penngrove Women's Center, 9595 Petaluma Hill Road, Penngrove.

If approved and appointed by the county Board of Supervisors, it would be a county-funded commission serving as a sounding board and investigative body on behalf of all women in Sonoma, according to Ann Byrd, chairman of the ad hoc committee.

Women and women's organizations interested in the establishment of the commission can assist the ad hoc committee by distributing questionnaires surveying women's needs in their area, sending a letter to the supervisors endorsing the commission, and considering women they would like to see appointed to the commission, added Miss Byrd.

WATCHING TO see that Tiger steps through the bars without touching, Edie Lehman prepares Scott Alexander, 13, of San Anselmo for trailhorse show competition. A project leader for Marin Mounted 4-H, Mrs. Lehman enjoys coaching children as much as training horses, she said.

TRAINER

Arabian Horse Association Show at Scottsdale, Ariz., in February.

They take another, midsummer, break to let their campaigning show horses rest and give their less experienced students and horses an opportunity to compete at small local shows.

Mrs. Lehman takes time out to teach the Marin Mounted 4-H group. For the past four years she has been co-leader because not many adult leaders ride, she said. She trained some of the children to be a color guard for their shows and taught them basic horsemanship, grooming and feeding. Currently she is their veterinary science instructor.

SHE WILL teach horsemanship at the Girl Scout resident camp at Forest Farm in Forest Knolls in August.

"I'll get there at 7 a.m. and not leave until 11 or 12 p.m. I get into these things," she said with a smile.

Asked about the prospects for a women horse trainer, she said that any woman who wants to get into the field ought to be able to do it.

"A lot of people think women are better trainers; I do not necessarily agree. But it is not a matter of physical strength. You are supposed to outsmart the horse. Horses are kind, or else people could not do what they do with horses," the horsewoman said.

Treat A Summer Cold Just Like One In Winter

A summer cold can be just as discomforting as a winter one, and summer is no time for hot toddies, except in areas of the world where in mid-summer the temperature drops to below 40 degrees.

How does one treat a summer cold? The same as you did in the winter — and according to one gentleman, that's with contempt.

However, if you can't ignore the stuffed-up runny nose, you can use nose drops or spray, take some aspirin, and stretch out on a comfortable lounge chair on the patio or near the pool.

Air conditioning that is too cold will probably make you feel uncomfortable and is best avoided. But, physicians tell us, the number of ice cubes you put in your Scotch and water is not a matter of medical record, but purely one of taste.

Childbirth Association Has Coaches

The Education For Childbirth Association of Marin, Inc., has seven women trained as coaches for any pregnant woman planning to use one of the methods of prepared childbirth. The labor coach will be with her during her labor and delivery.

The seven coaches were trained in a series of eight classes in the Bradley, Lamaze and Fitzhugh/Dick-Read methods of childbirth preparation, the physiology and psychology of pregnancy and childbirth, and the routine of hospital and home births.

The labor coaches will be on call and available to any laboring woman, but ECA hopes that a woman will contact the association early in her pregnancy "so that she and her coach may establish a strong, trusting relationship that will enable them to work together in labor," said Kerry Mazzoni, president of ECA.

The service is open to both single mothers and couples.

For good hand care when gardening, either wear gloves or dig your nails into a cake of soap before you start so dirt won't get imbedded under them.

Treat A Summer Cold Just Like One In Winter

A summer cold can be just as discomforting as a winter one, and summer is no time for hot toddies, except in areas of the world where in mid-summer the temperature drops to below 40 degrees.

How does one treat a summer cold? The same as you did in the winter — and according to one gentleman, that's with contempt.

However, if you can't ignore the stuffed-up runny nose, you can use nose drops or spray, take some aspirin, and stretch out on a comfortable lounge chair on the patio or near the pool.

Air conditioning that is too cold will probably make you feel uncomfortable and is best avoided. But, physicians tell us, the number of ice cubes you put in your Scotch and water is not a matter of medical record, but purely one of taste.

Childbirth Association Has Coaches

The Education For Childbirth Association of Marin, Inc., has seven women trained as coaches for any pregnant woman planning to use one of the methods of prepared childbirth. The labor coach will be with her during her labor and delivery.

The seven coaches were trained in a series of eight classes in the Bradley, Lamaze and Fitzhugh/Dick-Read methods of childbirth preparation, the physiology and psychology of pregnancy and childbirth, and the routine of hospital and home births.

The labor coaches will be on call and available to any laboring woman, but ECA hopes that a woman will contact the association early in her pregnancy "so that she and her coach may establish a strong, trusting relationship that will enable them to work together in labor," said Kerry Mazzoni, president of ECA.

The service is open to both single mothers and couples.

Gardening Hand Tips

For good hand care when gardening, either wear gloves or dig your nails into a cake of soap before you start so dirt won't get imbedded under them.

Avard L. Walker, Jane M. Keenan Are Married In Terra Linda Rite

Jane M. Keenan and Avard L. Walker III, both of San Rafael, were married July 20 at St. Isabella's Church in Terra Linda. They are now traveling through California before returning to live in Terra Linda.

The bride's parents are Mr. and Mrs. Maurice Sulla of La Jolla and the late John J. Keenan. Her sister, Mary Mutterstein of Los Angeles, was matron of honor. She has three brothers, John of Stony Brook, N.Y., Robert of Norton, Mass., and Timothy of La Jolla.

The bridegroom's parents are Mrs. Elisabeth Walker of Owls Head, Maine, and the late Avard L. Walker. His best man was his brother Robert of Yarmouth, Maine, and two other brothers, Peter, of Yarmouth and John of Ellsworth, Maine, were ushers. He has another brother, Frederick of Owls Head, and three sisters: Carol of Owls Head, Mrs. Carl Meyerhuber of State College, Pa., and Mrs. Jack McCann of South Addison, Maine.

A reception followed at the Marin Art and Garden Center in Ross.

The new Mrs. Walker was graduated from St. Mary's High School in Manhasset, N.Y., and attended Marymount Junior College in Boca Raton, Fla. She is employed at Letterman Army Medical Center in San Francisco.

Her husband attended Rockland Maine High School and is a graduate of the University of Maine. He is employed by Bechtel Corp. in San Francisco.

Style Important For Mature Woman

The mature woman is no longer expected to dress like Whistler's mother, in plain clothes, dark or pastel colors and sensible shoes. But she should choose styles that flatter and conceal her weak points.

Choose dresses and blouses with sleeves if upper arms are either thin or flabby. Wear stand up collars or fill in V necks with a scarf for neckline problems.

QUIET BUT TENSE — Trees and shrubs almost hide the comfortable ranch-style homes of the Castlewood area just outside Novato, where residents report themselves "up in arms" over a rapist. Sheriff's investigators say they've verified only one rape and a number of prowling calls.

(Photo by Ty Barbour)

ASSAULTS IN HOMES

Fear Transforms Area

By JEFF GREER

Fear of a rapist on the loose has turned some homes in a gracious neighborhood just outside Novato city limits into armed fortresses linked by a trembling web of rumors and a few facts.

At least one woman — but neighbors say three — has been raped in her home this month. In addition, several break-in attempts have taken place in the few square blocks of the Castlewood area.

The streets, Devonshire Drive, Haverhill Court and Hanover Court, are almost completely surrounded by Novato but sheriff's deputies must provide law enforcement.

Jeanette Prandi, sheriff's department inspector, said one rape has been verified officially. The others remain rumors in the absence of any report by other victims.

"But," Mrs. Prandi said, "I want to keep the lines open to the neighborhood about anything" that will add to clues to the rapist.

The attacker who invaded a Castlewood home July 19 and raped the woman there was a man in his 20s with long sideburns. He warned against calling "the pigs."

"Everybody's got a shotgun, waiting for the guy to come through their door," claimed one resident who declined to be identified. "Everybody's armed, it looks like a little fort," he said.

Other neighborhood residents said rumors had swept the area, but that not everyone was arming. There was general agreement that parents no longer dare leave outside doors unlocked for their teen-agers who come home late from outings.

"You've got a bunch of really uptight people," Mrs. Prandi said. She said the victim of the one confirmed rape told her Monday that she'd heard rumors of other attacks. Then when the original victim tracked them down, the rumors concerned the victim herself.

While rumors sometimes multiply the number of victims in a neighborhood, rape cases often go unreported because the victims are shy of publicity or fear questioning and possible court confrontation with a suspect.

Assistance can be given rape victims without calling in police agencies, a spokesman for the Rape Crisis Bureau of Marin said yesterday. The crisis agency, however, advises rape victims that it will be more helpful to cooperate with police to catch the rapists.

"It's got to be voluntary . . . nothing's going to change (in terms of halting rapes) until we get the victimized woman to stand up" and aid prosecution, said "Trish."

She is a volunteer who answers questions phoned in to the rape crisis switchboard at 924-2100.

"Trish" said the center helps rape victims obtain medical service, venereal disease and pregnancy testing; offers counseling by women who themselves have been rape victims, and provides referrals to other agencies for mental health and other services. The victim remains anonymous during the consultations, if she wishes.

The volunteer adviser said three legal alternatives are possible in most rape cases: Criminal prosecution of the rapist, a civil suit against him, and in some cases where an ex-husband may be involved, citation through the district attorney.

A jigsaw puzzle or 11 cities interlocking with unincorporated cities poses a serious communications problem in reacting quickly to rapes and similar violence, pointed out Novato Police Chief John Coleman.

Under emotional stress, residents of Castlewood and similar areas are likely to call city police first. Precious time is lost while the call is relayed to the proper agency.

Coleman said, however, that none of the actual or rumored Castlewood attacks and prowlings was reported to Novato police.

One answer to the communications problem is the "911" system under which a citizen can summon police, fire or ambulance crews by calling the simple, three-digit number. The state has ordered the service provided by every local agency by 1982.

Each city and district must submit a plan and a timetable for the 911 service by January 1975, said Thomas Moyer, Marin County communications director. He said the board of supervisors is encouraging all local agencies to cooperate in a countywide network with all calls going to a single dispatch center. If this is done all the cities, fire houses, ambulances and similar facilities can be linked together by a microwave radio network the county will install by next spring.

This will end dependence on telephone lines that sometimes are costly as well as slow. Moyer cited the case of Dillon Beach: Calls from there to San Rafael now are routed via Petaluma and Santa Rosa. Telephone lines to hook the remote village to the county's 911 service would cost "thousands of dollars a year" in leases, the official said.

Novato's problems are complicated because its fire district also provides ambulance service — and covers 75 square miles, much of it outside the city limits covered by police.

The best answer to the problem probably is countywide cooperation, according to Novato Fire Protection District board member Ray A. Landi — himself a resident of the jittery Castlewood neighborhood.

Both fireman Landi and sheriff's investigator Mrs. Prandi said they hope an arrest in the next few days can put an end to the tensions and fears of the otherwise pleasant neighborhood.

Blind Convention: Hotel Headache

Telephone listings and room locations must be posted in braille. Coffee shops and restaurants must adjust to orders like, "And eight ounces of your best ground beef for my labrador retriever, sitting under the table."

And bellhops, schooled to show the sightless guests how to find their closets and bathrooms, must recover from the embarrassment of pointing out a light switch no one has any use for.

The La Salle Hotel is playing host this week to the 13th annual American Council for the Blind convention, a week-long series of seminars and celebrations for the visually impaired.

Local Girl Scouts run errands and help with details and every once in awhile, a bellhop will pull an unsuspecting man from the door of the ladies restroom.

Blindness hasn't stopped conventioneers from doing the town. Fifty went on a nightclub tour of Chinatown and a visit to the Playboy Club Monday night.

And a young girl, trailing her seeing eye dog, went off to the Sears Tower. "When I get back," she said, "I want to tell about the world's tallest building."

The council's director, Durward McDaniel, said 702 persons were registered by Tuesday and that the number would reach 1,000 before the end of the week.

McDaniel, who is blind himself, said that until yesterday, various blind vocational and interest groups meet for seminars in their fields.

Starting yesterday, however, the agenda shifted to matters of general interest for the blind — sessions on organized recreation, civil rights laws, supplementary incomes, vocational rehabilitation and medical progress in the field of blindness.

"Or in the field of sight, if you prefer," McDaniel said.

"We consider blindness a social problem," he said. "It's one the government should be dealing with. Not everyone has a visual problem, but who knows who will be struck with it next?"

Younger's Women's Task Force Called Tokenist By Ex-Member

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — A former member of Attorney General Evelle Younger's Women's Rights Task Force who was fired became "she pushed too hard" said yesterday Younger's drive for female equality is politically motivated.

Two more members of the tast force also announced they had resigned because of the tast force's "tokenism."

Younger, who earlier this year appointed a 30-person tast force to look into discrimination against women, is seeking a second term on the Republican ticket as attorney general.

"I think the creation of the tast force was politically motivated," said Mari Goldman, a legislative employe who was asked to resign from the task force. "But I think they made a mistake when they appointed me when they were not sincere."

Younger said earlier this year in a press release that he would push for women's equality because discrimination in California was evident.

At the same time, Virginia Carter, another member of Younger's task force, announced yesterday she has resigned "because it is just a token group."

"Younger has thrown one woman Ms. Goldman off the group simply because she wanted to make it effective," said Ms. Carter, west coast vice president of the Women's Lobby.

Younger's office was not immediately available for comment on the resignations.

Loren Miller, well-known Los Angeles attorney and one of three men on the task force, announced he also would resign from the task force, citing the firing of Ms. Goldman and the "tokenism" of the group.

The simmering dispute between Younger and his task force members broke out after a letter was sent to Ms. Goldman informing her that her participation was "no longer acceptable because of partisanship."

Ms. Goldman, who said Younger obviously knew about the letter signed by Assistant Attorney General Anthony Joseph, noted that more members of the task force "are talking about resigning."

"I had hoped the attorney general was sincere, but his actions have repeatedly demonstrated he is not committed to his project," Ms. Carter said.

Ms. Carter said the task force set up committees to deal with discrimination in housing, credit, education, and child care, but no "mention was made of criminal justice, law enforcement or the corrections field."

Anderson Says Memo Altered

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Columnist Jack Anderson said today alterations were made in a 1970 White House memo given Watergate investigators to delete suggestions that information from a so-called national security wiretap could be used for political purposes.

President Nixon has said he instigated wiretaps on a number of government employes and newsmen in 1969-71 to plug national security leaks.

In today's column, Anderson also said that 64 tape recordings that the Supreme Court ordered Nixon to surrender last week contain "gaps, distortions and unintelligible passages."

QUIET BUT TENSE — Trees and shrubs almost hide the comfortable ranch-style homes of the Castlewood area just outside Novato, where residents report themselves "up in arms" over a rapist. Sheriff's investigators say they've verified only one rape and a number of prowling calls.

ASSAULTS IN HOMES

Fear Transforms Area

By JEFF GREER

Fear of a rapist on the loose has turned some homes in a gracious neighborhood just outside Novato city limits into armed fortresses linked by a trembling web of rumors and a few facts.

At least one woman — but neighbors say three — has been raped in her home this month. In addition, several break-in attempts have taken place in the few square blocks of the Castlewood area.

The streets, Devonshire Drive, Haverhill Court and Hanover Court, are almost completely surrounded by Novato but sheriff's deputies must provide law enforcement.

Jeanette Prandi, sheriff's department inspector, said one rape has been verified officially. The others remain rumors in the absence of any report by other victims.

"But," Mrs. Prandi said, "I want to keep the lines open to the neighborhood about anything" that will add to clues to the rapist.

The attacker who invaded a Castlewood home July 19 and raped the woman there was a man in his 20s with long sideburns. He warned against calling "the pigs."

"Everybody's got a shotgun, waiting for the guy to come through their door," claimed one resident who declined to be identified. "Everybody's armed, it looks like a little fort," he said.

Other neighborhood residents said rumors had swept the area, but that not everyone was arming. There was general agreement that parents no longer dare leave outside doors unlocked for their teen-agers who come home late from outings.

"You've got a bunch of really uptight people," Mrs. Prandi said. She said the victim of the one confirmed rape told her Monday that she'd heard rumors of other attacks. Then when the original victim tracked them down, the rumors concerned the victim herself.

While rumors sometimes multiply the number of victims in a neighborhood, rape cases often go unreported because the victims are shy of publicity or fear questioning and possible court confrontation with a suspect.

Assistance can be given rape victims without calling in police agencies, a spokesman for the Rape Crisis Bureau of Marin said yesterday. The crisis agency, however, advises rape victims that it will be more helpful to cooperate with police to catch the rapists.

"It's got to be voluntary . . . nothing's going to change (in terms of halting rapes) until we get the victimized woman to stand up" and aid prosecution, said "Trish."

She is a volunteer who answers questions phoned in to the rape crisis switchboard at 924-2100.

"Trish" said the center helps rape victims obtain medical service, venereal disease and pregnancy testing; offers counseling by women who themselves have been rape victims, and provides referrals to other agencies for mental health and other services. The victim remains anonymous during the consultations, if she wishes.

The volunteer adviser said three legal alternatives are possible in most rape cases: Criminal prosecution of the rapist, a civil suit against him, and in some cases where an ex-husband may be involved, citation through the district attorney.

A jigsaw puzzle or 11 cities interlocking with unincorporated cities poses a serious communications problem in reacting quickly to rapes and similar violence, pointed out Novato Police Chief John Coleman.

Under emotional stress, residents of Castlewood and similar areas are likely to call city police first. Precious time is lost while the call is relayed to the proper agency.

Coleman said, however, that none of the actual or rumored Castlewood attacks and prowlings was reported to Novato police.

One answer to the communications problem is the "911" system under which a citizen can summon police, fire or ambulance crews by calling the simple, three-digit number. The state has ordered the service provided by every local agency by 1982.

Each city and district must submit a plan and a timetable for the 911 service by January 1975, said Thomas Moyer, Marin County communications director. He said the board of supervisors is encouraging all local agencies to cooperate in a countywide network with all calls going to a single dispatch center. If this is done all the cities, fire houses, ambulances and similar facilities can be linked together by a microwave radio network the county will install by next spring.

This will end dependence on telephone lines that sometimes are costly as well as slow. Moyer cited the case of Dillon Beach: Calls from there to San Rafael now are routed via Petaluma and Santa Rosa. Telephone lines to hook the remote village to the county's 911 service would cost "thousands of dollars a year" in leases, the official said.

Novato's problems are complicated because its fire district also provides ambulance service — and covers 75 square miles, much of it outside the city limits covered by police.

The best answer to the problem probably is countywide cooperation, according to Novato Fire Protection District board member Ray A. Landi — himself a resident of the jittery Castlewood neighborhood.

Both fireman Landi and sheriff's investigator Mrs. Prandi said they hope an arrest in the next few days can put an end to the tensions and fears of the otherwise pleasant neighborhood.

Blind Convention: Hotel Headache

Telephone listings and room locations must be posted in braille. Coffee shops and restaurants must adjust to orders like, "And eight ounces of your best ground beef for my labrador retriever, sitting under the table."

And bellhops, schooled to show the sightless guests how to find their closets and bathrooms, must recover from the embarrassment of pointing out a light switch no one has any use for.

The La Salle Hotel is playing host this week to the 13th annual American Council for the Blind convention, a week-long series of seminars and celebrations for the visually impaired.

Local Girl Scouts run errands and help with details and every once in awhile, a bellhop will pull an unsuspecting man from the door of the ladies restroom.

Blindness hasn't stopped conventioneers from doing the town. Fifty went on a nightclub tour of Chinatown and a visit to the Playboy Club Monday night.

MUSIC REVIEW

Little Symphony Of Marin Debuts On A Promising Note

By MARTIN FRICK

In between the lavish feast laid out for Marin music lovers last month by the Inverness Festival and the rich banquet promised by the Forest Meadows Festival opening this weekend, an ambitious independent group of 45 young people calling themselves the Little Symphony of Marin made a promising debut last night before a small, friendly audience in the College of Marin's Fine Arts Theater.

Trumpeter Jon Pankin has collected this group from high schools, colleges and performing ensembles throughout Marin County. Some are students at colleges across the country, but home in Marin for the summer. That they brought off a very respectable ensemble sound is most impressive.

Conductor Mel Margolis, an assistant conductor with the Canadian Opera Touring Company, obviously enjoys a good rapport with the players, treating them as professionals with a minimum of cueing, for which perhaps at least the lower strings are not quite ready.

The opening "March of the Little Lead Soldiers" by Gabriel Pierne was the most satisfying. Here the small string section's cohesive sound, astonishing for so new and disparate a group, did not have to compete with the other excellent sections of the orchestra.

Pizzicattos were clean and intonation extremely good, particularly when responding to the shimmering flute solo passages played by Patrick Hurtado who also sparkled as the bird in Prokofiev's "Peter and the Wolf."

Narrator Scott Beach, with his deep, raspy voice, brought out all the dramatic elements in the story of a boy and a bird who capture a wolf (who has swallowed alive a "dumb duck") and spare him from death at the hands of hunters by giving him to a zoo.

While Beach did not receive the necessary dramatic support from the chamber-size orchestra, the individual characters were all beautifully delineated by soloists and ensembles within the orchestra, especially clarinettist Patricia Mason as the cat and the French horn section as the wolf.

The brass and timpani sections buried the strings in Aaron Copland's Billy the Kid ballet suite. Yet, even here there were moments which underlined the exciting potential of the group.

A second concert is planned for Sunday, August 25 at 8:30 also in the college's Fine Arts Theater. One hopes that music better suited to their size and their name will be performed.

MOTION PICTURE GUIDE

The Marin Motion Picture and TV Council provides these ratings of movies now being shown in Marin County. The Council's findings are from the California and National Parent-Teacher Association Magazine and Parents' Magazine unless otherwise stated. More complete reviews may be obtained by calling the San Rafael City Library.

FAMILY

"Capt. Nemo" — An entertaining science-fiction fantasy inspired by Jules Verne's "Captain Nemo." Might frighten small children.

"Digby" — An English sheepdog swallows a chemical solution and grows to 30 feet. Broad English farce, delightful for children.

"Herbie Rides Again" — Helen Hayes, an eccentric granny in distress is aided by an old Volkswagen in this Disney sequel to the "Love Bug." Fun for all.

"The Wetback Hound" — A dog who escapes from Mexico is the hero of this beautifully photographed and well told Disney short story.

ADULTS AND TEENS

"Bang The Drum Slowly" — Emphasizes importance of a single life and value of human kindness. A major league baseball story worth while for adolescents. Some rough language.

"Bank Shot" — The biggest bank robbery in history. They steal not only the money, but the whole bank. A screenplay designed for maximum comedy.

"Butch Cassidy and the Sundance Kid" — The story of a pair of bank robbers whose wit, daring and humanity made headlines at the turn of the century. Escaping from the law to South America they resume their taking ways. Beautiful scenery and good camera work, but sympathy is with the robbers and violence is their way to life and death.

"Cops and Robbers" — Skillful comedy of cops turned robbers. You may end up rooting for the bad guys if your morality doesn't get in the way.

"Three Musketeers" — A spirited production of the classic story of bravery and intrigue. Richard Chamberlain and Charleton Heston head the new cast. Very entertaining. Some sex and violence.

"Uptown Saturday Night" — Delightful ghetto comedy, featuring Poitier, Cosby, Belafonte and Flip Wilson. Strong visual humor. Some coarse language.

"White Lightning" — A sordid thriller of modern moonshiners. Sex, violence, double dealing and rough language — not for those under 17.

BORDERLINE

"For Pet's Sake" — Barbara Streisand in a mediocre, zany, slapstick comedy. Housewife borrows money from the underworld to help her husband. To repay the debt she gets involved in prostitution, cattle-rustling, etc. Questionable humor, black-ethnic and black macabre comedy. Cursing. (Over 17)

"S.P.Y.S." — Primitive slapstick spoofing the CIA. Violence in a humorous context. (Product Digest)

"Steelyard Blues" — Satirical comedy about an expensive hooker and a group of zany characters attempting to rebuild a plane with stolen parts. Violence, cursing and sex.

"The Sting" — A pair of cool 1930 conmen set out to ruin a powerful Chicago racketeer. Entertaining for the mature. Cursing, violence.

ADULTS ONLY

"Chinatown" — Gruesome mystery set in Los Angeles Chinatown of 1937. Good costuming and cast. Brutal violence and nude love scenes.

"Death Wish" — Western good guys and bad guys theme. Vigilantes, violence, and gun culture explored. Charles Bronson gives it popular appeal.

"New Centurions" — Based on the best-seller about the Los Angeles police force. Violence, nudity, crime and cursing.

"White Dawn" — Rare adventure film shows true story of Eskimo life as it was. Filmed on location in Canada's Northwest Territory. Remarkable attention to detail of Eskimo culture.

Man Found Dead In Motel Room

A 30-year-old man was found dead yesterday in his bed in a room at Howard Johnson's motel on Shoreline Highway in Tamalpais Valley.

The coroner's office had no information on what may have caused the death of Robert Edmundson, a self-employed writer with no permanent address. A routine autopsy was to be conducted.

His parents, Mr. and Mrs. William Edmundson of Rancho Mirage, Riverside County, who were staying in a nearby motel room, reported that he was injured in an auto accident a year ago and was still on crutches and in pain as the result of a leg injury.

Funeral arrangements are being handled by Russell and Gooch Mortuary in Mill Valley.

Tomatoes On Road

SAN JOSE (AP) — One lane of northbound Highway 101 was closed briefly early today after a truck and empty charter bus collided, spilling one ton of tomatoes over the pavement.

Stock Loss Of Priests In Millions

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (UPI) — The Archdiocese of Reno and 25 Boston area priests lost millions when a $25 million investment went sour and had to be bailed out to save them from bankruptcy, a Catholic magazine says.

The National Catholic Reporter said in a copyrighted story this week that the investment program prospered for a time but apparently went bad two years ago. A church official from Rome stepped in to freeze further investments.

The $25 million investment became worth less than one tenth of that amount, the Reporter said. The actual loss is impossible to trace because in the first three years some gains were realized.

Earlier this year, the newspaper said the Chicago division of the Securities and Exchange Commission investigated and ruled there was some illegal activity, but apparently no fraudulent intent.

One SEC official was quoted as saying," Besides, I think the SEC was reluctant to prosecute a group of priests."

The SEC ruled bonds sold by the archdiocese and the La Sallette Fathers of Attleboro, Mass., were insufficiently backed because of investment losses of the St. Joseph Trust Fund, the paper said.

Five years ago, Father Rene Sauve, then treasurer of the La Sallette Fathers and a representative of the Chicago brokerage firm of McMahon and Hoban, approached Reno Bishop Joseph Green with an investment plan whereby the archdiocese would sell bonds to the public through the brokers, a common practice by churches to raise money.

Funds raised by the sale of bonds would be turned over to a nonprofit group, the St. Joseph Fund, run largely by Sauve.

In turn, the St. Joseph Fund would then invest the money with the expectation of large interest returns to the archdiocese and the Boston Fathers.

The newspaper said between 1969 and 1971, Bishop Green raised $3.5 million and the fathers $15 million. Other groups contributed $6.5 million.

When the collapse began two years ago, the newspaper said, the SEC gave the two investors two months to raise funds to secure the bonds. In the meantime, Bishop Green was put on medical leave and replaced April 4 by San Francisco Auxiliary Bishop Norman McFarland.

Bishops and other church organizations bailed out the two investors with gifts and lowinterest loans. One source said Cardinal John Krol of Philadelphia lent the archdiocese $250,000 for 10 years. The loan is interest free the first five years, with 6 per cent interest thereafter.

Highway Patrol Names Assistant

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — Highway Patrol Commissioner Walter Pudinski announced yesterday that Supervising Inspector Alva S. Cooper has been named assistant commissioner of the state law enforcement agency.

A patrol member for 26 years, Cooper previously served as an assistant to former assistant commissioner Eldon D. Heringer. Heringer, has been named commander of the highway patrol's Fresno office.

'Mabel And Mack' Is Off To A Good Start

By BOB THOMAS

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The critics predict that "Mack and Mabel" will settle down for a long, long run when it reaches Broadway in October. It suits Robert Preston just fine.

"Mack and Mabel" is a new musical based on a tragic love story of comedy king Mack Sennett and the star of his silent comedies and his personal life, Mabel Normand.

Although the David Merrick show is still in its early stages, reviewers deemed it a sure-fire hit.

Jerry Herman — "Hello, Dolly!" "Mame" — has written a superior score for Preston and Bernadette Peters, who plays Mabel. The book by Michael Stewart — "Bye, Bye, Birdie," "Hello, Dolly!" — artfully combines the gayety and sorrow of the Sennett-Normand saga while doing surprisingly little violence to the real facts.

ROBERT PRESTON
Pleased with musical

Gower Champion, a veteran hand with musical magic, has staged "Mack and Mabel" with even greater invention than his earlier hits — "Birdie," "Hello, Dolly!," "I Do! I Do!" "Irene."

Starting with a bare movie-stage set, he brings it to vigorous life with the antics of the Keystone Kops, the Mack Sennett Bathing Beauties and the classic comics, pulling forth two or three show-stopping numbers — except that Champion shows never stop.

All this presages long lins at New York's Majestic Theater after the break-in here, in St. Louis and Washington, C.C.

"You know what a long run means to me? Sheer heaven," commented Bob Preston after a strenuous evening as Mack Sennett.

"Yes, I know that some actors can't stand doing the same role night after night. Marlon Brando, for instance, and I say thank God for that.

"If he had stayed on the stage, we wouldn't have his marvelous performances recorded on film.

"To me, repeating a performance is like telling a joke.

"If a man tells a joke to a different audience every time, he will always get laughs and find it rewarding; only his wife is bored by hearing the same joke over and over.

"Well, when you're doing a long-run show, you have a different audience every night and you always get a new reaction. So it never gets boring."

Farm Price Recovery May Raise Food Bills

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Farm prices rebounded sharply from a four-month slump in July, and the result may be higher consumer food bills, Agriculture Department reports indicate.

The department's monthly report on farm prices said they rose 6 per cent in the month ending July 15 as livestock began recovering from depressed levels and grains rose in price from the impact of drought damage to 1974 harvests.

The resulting upward pressure on consumer food bills was considered likely to increase Agriculture Secretary Earl L. Butz's pressure on food industry middlemen to narrow their margins, which he has already criticized as too wide.

A special department committee set up by Butz to suggest ways to narrow the gap between live cattle and hog prices and consumer meat prices is scheduled to report publicly soon.

The price report said average farm prices for all meat animals jumped 16 per cent during the month but remained 21 per cent below a year earlier.

Mid-July farm prices were 1 per cent above a year earlier. They were 14 per cent below the level of February when the recent slump began and were about 15.5 per cent below the record set last August. The price of corn, the chief raw material for producing meat and other livestock products, rose from $2.57 a bushel June 15 to $2.91 on July 15 compared with $2.45 a year earlier. Wheat rose from $3.57 in mid-June to $4.04 in mid-July compared with $2.47 a year earlier.

Butz, who had appealed to consumers in advance to weigh the latest farm recovery against the earlier slump, has already predicted the July figures will mean some increases in retail costs, possibly in August.

MUSIC REVIEW

Little Symphony Of Marin Debuts On A Promising Note

By MARTIN FRICK

In between the lavish feast laid out for Marin music lovers last month by the Inverness Festival and the rich banquet promised by the Forest Meadows Festival opening this weekend, an ambitious independent group of 45 young people calling themselves the Little Symphony of Marin made a promising debut last night before a small, friendly audience in the College of Marin's Fine Arts Theater.

Trumpeter Jon Pankin has collected this group from high schools, colleges and performing ensembles throughout Marin County. Some are students at colleges across the country, but home in Marin for the summer. That they brought off a very respectable ensemble sound is most impressive.

Conductor Mel Margolis, an assistant conductor with the Canadian Opera Touring Company, obviously enjoys a good rapport with the players, treating them as professionals with a minimum of cueing, for which perhaps at least the lower strings are not quite ready.

The opening "March of the Little Lead Soldiers" by Gabriel Pierne was the most satisfying. Here the small string section's cohesive sound, astonishing for so new and disparate a group, did not have to compete with the other excellent sections of the orchestra.

Pizzicattos were clean and intonation extremely good, particularly when responding to the shimmering flute solo passages played by Patrick Hurtado who also sparkled as the bird in Prokofiev's "Peter and the Wolf."

Narrator Scott Beach, with his deep, raspy voice, brought out all the dramatic elements in the story of a boy and a bird who capture a wolf (who has swallowed alive a "dumb duck") and spare him from death at the hands of hunters by giving him to a zoo.

While Beach did not receive the necessary dramatic support from the chamber-size orchestra, the individual characters were all beautifully delineated by soloists and ensembles within the orchestra, especially clarinettist Patricia Mason as the cat and the French horn section as the wolf.

The brass and timpani sections buried the strings in Aaron Copland's Billy the Kid ballet suite. Yet, even here there were moments which underlined the exciting potential of the group.

A second concert is planned for Sunday, August 25 at 8:30 also in the college's Fine Arts Theater. One hopes that music better suited to their size and their name will be performed.

FAMILY

"Digby" — An English sheepdog swallows a chemical solution and grows to 30 feet. Broad English farce, delightful for children.

"Herbie Rides Again" — Helen Hayes, an eccentric granny in distress is aided by an old Volkswagen in this Disney sequel to the "Love Bug." Fun for all.

"The Wetback Hound" — A dog who escapes from Mexico is the hero of this beautifully photographed and well told Disney short story.

ADULTS AND TEENS

"Bang The Drum Slowly" — Emphasizes importance of a single life and value of human kindness. A major league baseball story worth while for adolescents. Some rough language.

"Bank Shot" — The biggest bank robbery in history. They steal not only the money, but the whole bank. A screenplay designed for maximum comedy.

"Butch Cassidy and the Sundance Kid" — The story of a pair of bank robbers whose wit, daring and humanity made headlines at the turn of the century. Escaping from the law to South America they resume their taking ways. Beautiful scenery and good camera work, but sympathy is with the robbers and violence is their way to life and death.

"Cops and Robbers" — Skillful comedy of cops turned robbers. You may end up rooting for the bad guys if your morality doesn't get in the way.

"Three Musketeers" — A spirited production of the classic story of bravery and intrigue. Richard Chamberlain and Charleton Heston head the new cast. Very entertaining. Some sex and violence.

"Uptown Saturday Night" — Delightful ghetto comedy, featuring Poitier, Cosby, Belafonte and Flip Wilson. Strong visual humor. Some coarse language.

"White Lightning" — A sordid thriller of modern moonshiners. Sex, violence, double dealing and rough language — not for those under 17.

BORDERLINE

"For Pet's Sake" — Barbara Streisand in a mediocre, zany, slapstick comedy. Housewife borrows money from the underworld to help her husband. To repay the debt she gets involved in prostitution, cattle-rustling, etc. Questionable humor, black-ethnic and black macabre comedy. Cursing. (Over 17)

"S.P.Y.S." — Primitive slapstick spoofing the CIA. Violence in a humorous context. (Product Digest)

"Steelyard Blues" — Satirical comedy about an expensive hooker and a group of zany characters attempting to rebuild a plane with stolen parts. Violence, cursing and sex.

"The Sting" — A pair of cool 1930 conmen set out to ruin a powerful Chicago racketeer. Entertaining for the mature. Cursing, violence.

ADULTS ONLY

"Chinatown" — Gruesome mystery set in Los Angeles Chinatown of 1937. Good costuming and cast. Brutal violence and nude love scenes.

"Death Wish" — Western good guys and bad guys theme. Vigilantes, violence, and gun culture explored. Charles Bronson gives it popular appeal.

"New Centurions" — Based on the best-seller about the Los Angeles police force. Violence, nudity, crime and cursing.

"White Dawn" — Rare adventure film shows true story of Eskimo life as it was. Filmed on location in Canada's Northwest Territory. Remarkable attention to detail of Eskimo culture.

Man Found Dead In Motel Room

A 30-year-old man was found dead yesterday in his bed in a room at Howard Johnson's motel on Shoreline Highway in Tamalpais Valley.

The coroner's office had no information on what may have caused the death of Robert Edmundson, a self-employed writer with no permanent address. A routine autopsy was to be conducted.

His parents, Mr. and Mrs. William Edmundson of Rancho Mirage, Riverside County, who were staying in a nearby motel room, reported that he was injured in an auto accident a year ago and was still on crutches and in pain as the result of a leg injury.

Funeral arrangements are being handled by Russell and Gooch Mortuary in Mill Valley.

SAN JOSE (AP) — One lane of northbound Highway 101 was closed briefly early today after a truck and empty charter bus collided, spilling one ton of tomatoes over the pavement.

Stock Loss Of Priests In Millions

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (UPI) — The Archdiocese of Reno and 25 Boston area priests lost millions when a $25 million investment went sour and had to be bailed out to save them from bankruptcy, a Catholic magazine says.

The National Catholic Reporter said in a copyrighted story this week that the investment program prospered for a time but apparently went bad two years ago. A church official from Rome stepped in to freeze further investments.

The $25 million investment became worth less than one tenth of that amount, the Reporter said. The actual loss is impossible to trace because in the first three years some gains were realized.

Earlier this year, the newspaper said the Chicago division of the Securities and Exchange Commission investigated and ruled there was some illegal activity, but apparently no fraudulent intent.

One SEC official was quoted as saying," Besides, I think the SEC was reluctant to prosecute a group of priests."

The SEC ruled bonds sold by the archdiocese and the La Sallette Fathers of Attleboro, Mass., were insufficiently backed because of investment losses of the St. Joseph Trust Fund, the paper said.

Five years ago, Father Rene Sauve, then treasurer of the La Sallette Fathers and a representative of the Chicago brokerage firm of McMahon and Hoban, approached Reno Bishop Joseph Green with an investment plan whereby the archdiocese would sell bonds to the public through the brokers, a common practice by churches to raise money.

Funds raised by the sale of bonds would be turned over to a nonprofit group, the St. Joseph Fund, run largely by Sauve.

In turn, the St. Joseph Fund would then invest the money with the expectation of large interest returns to the archdiocese and the Boston Fathers.

The newspaper said between 1969 and 1971, Bishop Green raised $3.5 million and the fathers $15 million. Other groups contributed $6.5 million.

When the collapse began two years ago, the newspaper said, the SEC gave the two investors two months to raise funds to secure the bonds. In the meantime, Bishop Green was put on medical leave and replaced April 4 by San Francisco Auxiliary Bishop Norman McFarland.

Bishops and other church organizations bailed out the two investors with gifts and lowinterest loans. One source said Cardinal John Krol of Philadelphia lent the archdiocese $250,000 for 10 years. The loan is interest free the first five years, with 6 per cent interest thereafter.

Highway Patrol Names Assistant

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — Highway Patrol Commissioner Walter Pudinski announced yesterday that Supervising Inspector Alva S. Cooper has been named assistant commissioner of the state law enforcement agency.

A patrol member for 26 years, Cooper previously served as an assistant to former assistant commissioner Eldon D. Heringer. Heringer, has been named commander of the highway patrol's Fresno office.

FIX YOUR OWN BIKE

Bearings Play Key Role

By DAVID F. SALISBURY
The Christian Science Monitor News Service

(Fourth of seven articles)

How is it that a person can travel 20, 50, or more than 100 miles on a bicycle without becoming tired?

The secret is in the hundreds of tiny ball bearings. Every bike has six sets. Hidden inside hubs, crankshaft, pedals, and headset, these tiny steel spheres, swimming in grease, make the bicycle the most efficient way to travel.

But, except for specially sealed types, bicycle bearings are not airtight. So as you ride, the grease gradually seeps out. Moisture and dirt, a bearing's arch enemies, work in.

That's why bearings must be periodically taken apart, checked, and relubricated. If this isn't done, they begin to grind, gouge, and wear themselves down. And they can overheat, too, which may cause them to turn blue and crack, wreaking even greater havoc.

A method to check wheel and crankshaft bearings was discussed in the first article in this series. A test similar to the method described there also works for pedal bearings. If you develop a feel for how a pedal should spin, you will notice when it becomes sluggish.

So, too, when the handlebars begin to turn stiffly, you know the bearings in the headset need more grease.

There are different types of bearings, however each is made up of two clusters of balls at opposing ends of the axle, spindle, or tube.

The proper way of disassembling each type of bearing is different, but the procedure for cleaning, checking, and greasing is the same:

INSPECTION. Check the balls for bluish color, pitting, or cracking. If one looks bad, replace the whole set. But make sure you get the right size replacements.

Inspect the walls of cups and cones for groving and pitting. Replace necessary parts. You should make it a practice to inspect everything you disassemble for cracks, stripped threads, and the like. It will prevent later problems.

LUBRICATION. Squeeze a thick bead of bearing grease around the cup. If the ball bearings are in a retainer ring, work the grease into the ring with your fingers. Otherwise, stick the proper number of balls into the grease in a circle. They will stay in place.

Here's how to take apart and reassemble the various bearings:

RATTRAP PEDALS. (Lube every six months.) Remove dust cap. Loosen cone nut beneath it. With crescent wrench on the inside end of the pedal, unscrew from the crank. (Caution: The pedal opposing the chain wheel has left-handed threads and untightens clockwise.) After the pedal is removed, undo the cone nut. Pull out spindle. Be prepared for loose ball bearings.

During reassembly, screw the cone down finger-tight. Back off one-quarter turn. Slide on the lockwasher. Holding the cone with a thin-bladed screwdriver, tighten down the cone nut.

If the pedal does not turn freely, loosen the nut and back the cone off one-eighth turn. The pedal should have a just-discernible amount of end-play. If it has too much, tighten the cone one-eighth turn.

WHEEL HUBS. (Lube every six months.) The procedure is almost identical to that above. But the bearings are loosened with two special wrenches called cone wrenches. These are broad and thin to fit the narrow cone and locknut used on hubs. Undo locknut and cone on one side. Disassemble. On most hubs you can remove the dust caps.

Follow the same tightening procedure used for pedals, except at the beginning back off the cone just one-eighth of a turn. To check your adjustment, hold the ends of the axle with your fingers and slowly rotate it. The wheel should not turn. If it does, the cones are too tight.

HEADSET. (Lube every 12 months.) First remove handlebars and their support (called the stem). It will be necessary to either undo the quick-release lever on the front brake or undo the cable from the front brake assembly. (You may want to mark the position of the stem.)

Loosen the bolt on top of the stem two or three turns. This attaches to a wedge that holds stem and fork together. If you unscrew it too far the wedge will fall down into the frame. Hit the head of the bolt with a mallet to jar the wedge loose.

Pull up and twist back and forth on the handlebars. It's best to have the front wheel on so you can keep the fork from twisting. After the stem is clear, remove the big chromed nut (fork cone locknut) and the washer beneath it. Next comes the adjustable cup that covers the ball bearings. Remove gingerly.

Look out for the other set of ball bearings at the bottom of the head tube. These will drop out as you remove the fork.

Turn the bicycle upside down to reassemble. Grease the lower bearing cup. Insert ball bearings. Slide the fork stem through the head tube. Hold the fork and frame tightly together to keep the bearings in place and turn the bicycle right side up. Grease the upper cup and position ball bearings.

Thread the adjustable cup onto the fork. With either wrench or pliers, depending on its design, tighten until there is no side or end-play and the fork turns freely.

Reinstalling the handlebars, be sure the stem slides at least 2½ inches into the fork. With handlebars any higher the stem may break or the frame bend.

CRANKSHAFT BEARINGS. (Lube every 12 months.) There are three types of crankshafts, and therefore three fundamentally different ways to overhaul crankshaft bearings. It is the most important bearing and the most difficult to work on. For this reason, you will probably want to get a bicycle manual that describes in detail how to take apart your type of crankshaft, or else have your bicycle shop do the job.

Petaluma Has New City Clerk

The former administrative secretary to City Manager Robert H. Meyer replaces Lillian Nommsen, who retired yesterday after 10 years in the post.

Mrs. Wilson, who was sworn in by Mayor Helen Putnam, is a native Pennsylvanian and has lived in southern Sonoma 24 years. She and her husband, Carl J. Wilson, have two children and live at 1333 McKenzie Avenue.

Alameda Barbers To Charge $4

OAKLAND (UPI) — It is going to cost $4 for a haircut in Alameda County.

Barbers Union Local 134 announced yesterday that the hike from $3.50 was necessary to keep up with inflation.

However, senior citizens will be able to get a haircut for $3.50 on weekdays except Saturdays.

Children's haircuts will go up 25 cents to $2.75 on weekdays and $3 on Saturdays.

New Transit Terminal Proposal Is Supported

Legislation to build a new downtown San Francisco transit terminal, primarily to serve Marin, Sonoma and East Bay bus commuters, was endorsed yesterday by a committee of Golden Gate Bridge District directors.

The unanimous recommendation by the public information-governmental affairs committee will go to the full bridge board at 10 a.m. on Aug. 9 in toll plaza offices.

The measure, AB 3694 by Assemblyman John F. Foran, D-San Francisco, is awaiting approval by the Assembly Ways and Means Committee. The bill would create the San Francisco Bay Area Transportation Terminal Authority to plan the project on the site of the present Transbay Transit Terminal at First and Mission streets.

The present terminal was built in 1939 to serve commuter trains from the East Bay and now is used by several bus operators, including the bridge district.

The proposed new terminal is "essential to the district's future planning," according to Gen. Mgr. Dale W. Luehring, both as a place to park the growing fleet between peak traffic hours and to handle the increasing number of Marin and Sonoma commuters using the buses.

Luehring said the new facility could be designed with a moving sidewalk to connect to the nearby Bay Area Rapid Transit District's Embarcadero station and the Ferry Building.

The present terminal is operated by the state but would be transferred to the new authority. The board's six members would be appointed by the bridge district, Alameda-Contra Costa County Transit District, San Francisco Board of Supervisors, BART, state transportation office and Metropolitan Transportation Commission.

Costs for the project have been estimated by state consultants at $10 million each for public and private transit operators and almost $73 million for the office towers above the terminal.

The consultants noted that district projections envision an average annual increse in Golden Gate Transit riders of about 6 per cent, with about 60,000 passengers a day to and from San Francisco by 1995.

Utilities Valuation Increases

The assessed valuation of public utilities in Marin rose $1.8 million during the last fiscal year, County Auditor-Controller Michael Mitchell reported yesterday.

He said the figures releated by the state show the assessed valuation at $36.5 million, which translates into an actual value of $146,192,040.

As a result of the increase, he said, the estimated county tax rate will drop .5 cent to $2.385 per $100 assessed valuation.

The assessed value of land owned by public utilities is shown at $4,486,080, up from last year's $4,407,360; improvements at $15,872,260, up from $14,972,814; and personal property at $16,189,720, up from $15,359,480.

Rules Set For Restaurant Help

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — People who work in restaurants won't have to eat there if they don't want to, and can take cash pay instead under a new California state policy.

The state Industrial Relations Department said yesterday that if an employee does choose to take meals as part of his pay, the employee can eat on company time.

The new ruling was issued, said Evelyn Whitlow, of the department's welfare section, because low-paid restaurant workers are finding it harder to make ends meet and might prefer to get the 90 cents cash instead of the breakfast that the employer deducts from their pay.

Plane Is Flown Back To Manila

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — A Philippine Air Lines DC10 has been flown back to Manila after being seized by the U.S. government for allegedly violating Civil Aeronautics Board regulations.

The plane was allowed to return to its homeland after PAL posted a $200,000 surety bond.

U.S. marshals seized the plane last week upon its landing at San Francisco International Airport. Federal officials said PAL DC10s were not authorized to land in the United States.

Mandatory Seat Belt System Said Failure

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A new study says that 41 per cent of the drivers of 1974 model cars are not wearing seatbelts despite a system which prevents them from starting their vehicles before putting on the belts.

A separate study published in the August issue of the American Journal of Public Health concludes that the buzzer-light system installed in some 1972 model cars and all 1973 models to remind drivers to use belts was "a public health failure."

Earlier model cars, though they may have had safety belts, had neither the warning nor ignition interlock systems.

In Puerto Rico, the only jurisdiction with a mandatory seat belt use law, only 18 per cent of drivers are wearing belts, says still another study, all of them publicized by the non-government Insurance Institute for Highway Safety.

The study on seat belt use in 1974 cars, conducted in late 1973 and early this year, indicates that belt use has increased among drivers in big city areas since the introduction of the so-called interlock system.

A federal standard effective Aug. 15, 1973, required a seat belt system that allows automobiles to start only under certain conditions.

"In spite of the interlock system, however, 41 per cent of drivers in the 1974 vehicles were not using any belts," said the study by Leon S. Robertson, a behavioral scientist with the non-profit institute.

Drivers were observed at 138 sites in Baltimore, Houston, Los Angeles, the New Jersey suburbs of New York City, Richmond, Va. and Washington, D.C.

Legislation is pending in the House of Representatives to allow purchasers of 1975 and later model cars to choose between ignition interlock and buzzer-light belt systems.

Flag Burning Teen-Agers Chastised

EAST LIVERPOOL, Ohio (UPI) — Two teenaged girls in this Ohio River Community of 20,000 apologized in a newspaper advertisement today for burning an American flag on a street here earlier this month.

The girls, Vicki Sue Noland, 15, and Frances Mia Curran, 16, were ordered to place the advertisement in the East Liverpool Review by a Columbiana County Juvenile Court Judge.

The ad entitled "An Apology" read:

"We have given serious thought to violation of state law and wrongful personal conduct in regard to our nation, committed when we burned an American flag July 1 on Fifth Street.

"In recognition of our own change of attitude and in compliance with the order by the juvenile court, we publicly apologize and declare we love our country."

Juvenile Court Judge Guy Mauro also ordered the girls to attend the raising and lowering of the American flag at City Hall until school starts this fall, observe a curfew for the next six months and not to communicate with each other by telephone, letter or in person for the next year.

He said he took the action to "impress upon the girls and minors generally that the American flag is something to be respected and not spit upon."

College Namesake

PITTSBURGH (UPI) — Duquesne University was named for Marquis Duquesne, the first man to bring Catholic observances here. He built Fort Duquesne in 1754 at the point where the Allegheny and Monongahela Rivers meet to form the Ohio.

Vitamin E Finding Its Proper Use

SAN DIEGO (UPI) — Vitamin E, which has stirred a tremendous amount of controversy both in the scientific and business worlds, at least appears to be finding its proper niche.

A San Diego firm, Mollenhauer Co., is using Vitamin E as a prime component in a vitamin preparation to protect people against smog and other respiratory problems.

The preparation, called Cloud Chasers, is to be introduced in August in health food stores across the country. It also contains vitamins A, C and B-12 and iodine.

Ever since it was discovered half a century ago, vitamin E has had doctors and scientists searching for its proper use. At various times, claims have been made that vitamin E is good for a vast number of conditions. In recent years it has had a remarkable sale based on a widespread belief, discounted and even refuted by scientists, that the vitamin increases virility.

The view that vitamin E is helpful in providing protection against ozone, carbon monoxide, nitrogen dioxide, sulfer dioxide and other air pollutants has been advanced in several scientific publications recently.

Dr. A. L. Tappel, professor of food technology at the University of California at Davis, wrote in Nutrition Today that vitamin E protects vitamin A, the vitamin most useful in protecting against smog and other air pollutants, from oxidizing and disintegrating. He based his conclusion on experimental administration of the vitamins to rats and their exposure to ozone and nitrogen-dioxide lung damage perils.

Dr. Jeffery Roehm of Battelle Memorial Institute reached a similar conclusion as did J.C. Somogyi, author of a book in toxicants occurring naturally in foods. However, Somogyi warned that the dosage of vitamin E must be carefully controlled because too much vitamin E could destroy the vitamin A instead of protecting it.

Nude Laundry Couple Charged

GALION, Ohio (UPI) — Linda Dolan, 32, Farmington, Mich., and James Gordinier, 38, Troy, Mich., went to a laundromat late Tuesday, undressed in their car and put their clothes in a washer.

A 14-year-old boy saw them and called police. They were sentenced to three days in jail yesterday on a charge of public indecency.

HOW TO KEEP WELL

By DR. THEODORE R. VAN DELLEN

Skim Milk In School Lunches Recommended By Researchers

Should the school cafeteria offer skim milk instead of whole milk?

Heart researchers have recommended this because they believe that avoiding foods with high cholesterol levels should start with childhood. Low-fat or skim milk contains all of the nutrients of whole milk, with none of the fat. Some types of skim milk are fortified with extra vitamins and minerals.

Studies published in the "Journal of the American Dietetic Association" showed that children and teen-agers are willing to substitute skim for whole milk. Researchers conducted the test by stocking cafeterias with whole, then skim milk during two controlled periods of time.

TO DETERMINE rate of consumption, they measured the milk remaining in individual cartons on Monday and Friday of each week during the two test periods. All students did not decrease consumption with the skim milk sampling even those in junior high, who least preferred all types of milk. Researchers were encouraged by the youngsters' ready substitution of low-fat milk.

Formaldehyde is found in clothing, shampoos, cosmetics, creams and other toiletries. It also is added to paper in paper products to strengthen it. Since only trace amounts are involved, there is no harm, unless, of course, the consumer is allergic to formaldehyde. Dr. William J. Schorr, dermatologist at the Marshfield Clinic in Wisconsin, traced the cause of dermatitis in the hands, edges of the armpits, neck and upper trunk of a number of his patients to the chemical. Women, particularly those with damaged skin, seem to be most susceptible.

DR. SCHOOR, who chemically analyzed 112 fabrics obtained from American textile manufacturers, found that all contained some free formaldehyde. The amounts were minimal, but enough to induce rashes in sensitive people.

Dr. Schorr tells women with hand dermatitis to stop using toiletries and performing all housework for at least three weeks or until healing occurs. Those with more generalized allergic reactions should wear old clothing because it has been washed many times, or that made of 100 per cent polyester knit or Orlon acrylic, which contain very little formaldehyde. A corticosteroid may be applied if inflammation exists.

Blondes who swim in chlorinated pools may surface with green hair. Temporary, greenish deposits on the hair are produced by the interaction between algicides added to pool water to retard the growth of algae and water purifiers containing copper compounds. This situation can be prevented by wearing a cap or not swimming in pools using algicides.

EAR INFECTION

M. S. writes: I had a middle ear infection two years. When it cleared up, the doctor said not to go swimming. Do you think it would be safe for me to swim this summer?

REPLY

Yes, provided the drum in the involved ear is closed. Check with your physician before you decide to swim.

HYPERTENSION

I. E. writes: Is it safe for a woman with high blood pressure to dye her hair?

REPLY

Yes, but her boyfriend's blood pressure might go up a notch or two if she gets too glamorous.

HIVES, ASTHMA

J. Z. writes: Do hives and asthma have anything in common?

REPLY

Yes. Both are allergic disorders.

CHILD IN HOSPITAL

T. L. writes: Should the mother arrange to stay the entire time at the hospital with her 4-year-old, who must be admitted for three days?

REPLY

No, her presence would upset the hospital routine. This might be worse for the child than the emotional trauma of being deprived of Mama. Hospitalized youngsters often cry when the parents get ready to leave for home, but ten minutes later, they are watching television or looking at a picture book.

B12 FOR ANEMIA

M.A.B. writes: Is anemia curable? I have been taking B12 shots for two years, but still can't pass a pre-employment physical examination.

REPLY

Many types of anemia are curable, especially those caused by a deficiency of iron or by bleeding. Pernicious anemia is easliy kept under control with vitamin B12. In my opinion, you need consultation to determine the exact cause of the anemia and whether or not the remedy you are taking is correct.

BRUSHING THE GUMS

M.V.B. writes: Some dentists recommend brushing the gums and others say it irritates them. Which position is correct?

REPLY

Brushing the gums is a form of massage and tends to make them firm and healthy. The cleansing movement should be toward the tooth. Most electric toothbrushes do this in a gentle way.

NATURE'S CAMERA

R. writes: Is it true that the pupil of the eye is just a hole?

REPLY

Yes, and it resembles the opening of a camera with a built-in light meter and range finder. It opens and closes by reflex, depending upon the amount of light and the distance of the object.

Dr. Van Dellen welcomes reader questions. While he cannot reply to them individually, he will answer those of general interest in his column. Write to Dr. Van Dellen, c/o the Independent-Journal, PO Box 330, 1040 B St., San Rafael, Ca. 94902.

Mandatory Seat Belt System Said Failure

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A new study says that 41 per cent of the drivers of 1974 model cars are not wearing seatbelts despite a system which prevents them from starting their vehicles before putting on the belts.

A separate study published in the August issue of the American Journal of Public Health concludes that the buzzer-light system installed in some 1972 model cars and all 1973 models to remind drivers to use belts was "a public health failure."

Earlier model cars, though they may have had safety belts, had neither the warning nor ignition interlock systems.

In Puerto Rico, the only jurisdiction with a mandatory seat belt use law, only 18 per cent of drivers are wearing belts, says still another study, all of them publicized by the non-government Insurance Institute for Highway Safety.

The study on seat belt use in 1974 cars, conducted in late 1973 and early this year, indicates that belt use has increased among drivers in big city areas since the introduction of the so-called interlock system.

A federal standard effective Aug. 15, 1973, required a seat belt system that allows automobiles to start only under certain conditions.

"In spite of the interlock system, however, 41 per cent of drivers in the 1974 vehicles were not using any belts," said the study by Leon S. Robertson, a behavioral scientist with the non-profit institute.

Drivers were observed at 138 sites in Baltimore, Houston, Los Angeles, the New Jersey suburbs of New York City, Richmond, Va. and Washington, D.C.

Legislation is pending in the House of Representatives to allow purchasers of 1975 and later model cars to choose between ignition interlock and buzzer-light belt systems.

Flag Burning Teen-Agers Chastised

EAST LIVERPOOL, Ohio (UPI) — Two teenaged girls in this Ohio River Community of 20,000 apologized in a newspaper advertisement today for burning an American flag on a street here earlier this month.

The girls, Vicki Sue Noland, 15, and Frances Mia Curran, 16, were ordered to place the advertisement in the East Liverpool Review by a Columbiana County Juvenile Court Judge.

The ad entitled "An Apology" read:

"We have given serious thought to violation of state law and wrongful personal conduct in regard to our nation, committed when we burned an American flag July 1 on Fifth Street.

"In recognition of our own change of attitude and in compliance with the order by the juvenile court, we publicly apologize and declare we love our country."

Juvenile Court Judge Guy Mauro also ordered the girls to attend the raising and lowering of the American flag at City Hall until school starts this fall, observe a curfew for the next six months and not to communicate with each other by telephone, letter or in person for the next year.

He said he took the action to "impress upon the girls and minors generally that the American flag is something to be respected and not spit upon."

College Namesake

PITTSBURGH (UPI) — Duquesne University was named for Marquis Duquesne, the first man to bring Catholic observances here. He built Fort Duquesne in 1754 at the point where the Allegheny and Monongahela Rivers meet to form the Ohio.

Vitamin E Finding Its Proper Use

SAN DIEGO (UPI) — Vitamin E, which has stirred a tremendous amount of controversy both in the scientific and business worlds, at least appears to be finding its proper niche.

A San Diego firm, Mollenhauer Co., is using Vitamin E as a prime component in a vitamin preparation to protect people against smog and other respiratory problems.

The preparation, called Cloud Chasers, is to be introduced in August in health food stores across the country. It also contains vitamins A, C and B-12 and iodine.

Ever since it was discovered half a century ago, vitamin E has had doctors and scientists searching for its proper use. At various times, claims have been made that vitamin E is good for a vast number of conditions. In recent years it has had a remarkable sale based on a widespread belief, discounted and even refuted by scientists, that the vitamin increases virility.

The view that vitamin E is helpful in providing protection against ozone, carbon monoxide, nitrogen dioxide, sulfer dioxide and other air pollutants has been advanced in several scientific publications recently.

Dr. A. L. Tappel, professor of food technology at the University of California at Davis, wrote in Nutrition Today that vitamin E protects vitamin A, the vitamin most useful in protecting against smog and other air pollutants, from oxidizing and disintegrating. He based his conclusion on experimental administration of the vitamins to rats and their exposure to ozone and nitrogen-dioxide lung damage perils.

Dr. Jeffery Roehm of Battelle Memorial Institute reached a similar conclusion as did J.C. Somogyi, author of a book in toxicants occurring naturally in foods. However, Somogyi warned that the dosage of vitamin E must be carefully controlled because too much vitamin E could destroy the vitamin A instead of protecting it.

Nude Laundry Couple Charged

GALION, Ohio (UPI) — Linda Dolan, 32, Farmington, Mich., and James Gordinier, 38, Troy, Mich., went to a laundromat late Tuesday, undressed in their car and put their clothes in a washer.

A 14-year-old boy saw them and called police. They were sentenced to three days in jail yesterday on a charge of public indecency.

HOW TO KEEP WELL

By DR. THEODORE R. VAN DELLEN

Skim Milk In School Lunches Recommended By Researchers

Should the school cafeteria offer skim milk instead of whole milk?

Heart researchers have recommended this because they believe that avoiding foods with high cholesterol levels should start with childhood. Low-fat or skim milk contains all of the nutrients of whole milk, with none of the fat. Some types of skim milk are fortified with extra vitamins and minerals.

Studies published in the "Journal of the American Dietetic Association" showed that children and teen-agers are willing to substitute skim for whole milk. Researchers conducted the test by stocking cafeterias with whole, then skim milk during two controlled periods of time.

TO DETERMINE rate of consumption, they measured the milk remaining in individual cartons on Monday and Friday of each week during the two test periods. All students did not decrease consumption with the skim milk sampling even those in junior high, who least preferred all types of milk. Researchers were encouraged by the youngsters' ready substitution of low-fat milk.

Formaldehyde is found in clothing, shampoos, cosmetics, creams and other toiletries. It also is added to paper in paper products to strengthen it. Since only trace amounts are involved, there is no harm, unless, of course, the consumer is allergic to formaldehyde. Dr. William J. Schorr, dermatologist at the Marshfield Clinic in Wisconsin, traced the cause of dermatitis in the hands, edges of the armpits, neck and upper trunk of a number of his patients to the chemical. Women, particularly those with damaged skin, seem to be most susceptible.

DR. SCHOOR, who chemically analyzed 112 fabrics obtained from American textile manufacturers, found that all contained some free formaldehyde. The amounts were minimal, but enough to induce rashes in sensitive people.

Dr. Schorr tells women with hand dermatitis to stop using toiletries and performing all housework for at least three weeks or until healing occurs. Those with more generalized allergic reactions should wear old clothing because it has been washed many times, or that made of 100 per cent polyester knit or Orlon acrylic, which contain very little formaldehyde. A corticosteroid may be applied if inflammation exists.

Blondes who swim in chlorinated pools may surface with green hair. Temporary, greenish deposits on the hair are produced by the interaction between algicides added to pool water to retard the growth of algae and water purifiers containing copper compounds. This situation can be prevented by wearing a cap or not swimming in pools using algicides.

EAR INFECTION

M. S. writes: I had a middle ear infection two years. When it cleared up, the doctor said not to go swimming. Do you think it would be safe for me to swim this summer?

REPLY

Yes, provided the drum in the involved ear is closed. Check with your physician before you decide to swim.

HYPERTENSION

I. E. writes: Is it safe for a woman with high blood pressure to dye her hair?

REPLY

Yes, but her boyfriend's blood pressure might go up a notch or two if she gets too glamorous.

HIVES, ASTHMA

J. Z. writes: Do hives and asthma have anything in common?

REPLY

Yes. Both are allergic disorders.

CHILD IN HOSPITAL

T. L. writes: Should the mother arrange to stay the entire time at the hospital with her 4-year-old, who must be admitted for three days?

REPLY

No, her presence would upset the hospital routine. This might be worse for the child than the emotional trauma of being deprived of Mama. Hospitalized youngsters often cry when the parents get ready to leave for home, but ten minutes later, they are watching television or looking at a picture book.

B12 FOR ANEMIA

M.A.B. writes: Is anemia curable? I have been taking B12 shots for two years, but still can't pass a pre-employment physical examination.

REPLY

Many types of anemia are curable, especially those caused by a deficiency of iron or by bleeding. Pernicious anemia is easliy kept under control with vitamin B12. In my opinion, you need consultation to determine the exact cause of the anemia and whether or not the remedy you are taking is correct.

BRUSHING THE GUMS

M.V.B. writes: Some dentists recommend brushing the gums and others say it irritates them. Which position is correct?

REPLY

Brushing the gums is a form of massage and tends to make them firm and healthy. The cleansing movement should be toward the tooth. Most electric toothbrushes do this in a gentle way.

NATURE'S CAMERA

R. writes: Is it true that the pupil of the eye is just a hole?

REPLY

Yes, and it resembles the opening of a camera with a built-in light meter and range finder. It opens and closes by reflex, depending upon the amount of light and the distance of the object.

Dr. Van Dellen welcomes reader questions. While he cannot reply to them individually, he will answer those of general interest in his column. Write to Dr. Van Dellen, c/o the Independent-Journal, PO Box 330, 1040 B St., San Rafael, Ca. 94902.

Tax Hike, Not Sewer Charge Recommended

The Corte Madera Sanitary District should finance its budget with an increased tax rate rather than sewer service charges.

This will be the recommendation of the district's advisory commission to the town council, which sits as the district board, according to Clifford E. Temps, public works director.

Earlier, the council had thought the district was stuck with maximum tax rate of 45 cents under state legislation. Since this did not prove to be the case, the commission is recommending that the tax be raised to cover capital improvements termed "high priority items."

Temps estimated the tax rate needed will be about 72 cents per $100 of assessed valuation.

Ailing Treasurer Keeping Finger On Office's Pulse

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — Ailing state Treasurer Ivy Baker Priest said Wednesday she has been running her office from bedside most of this year because of a series of health problems.

She said she has spent only "three or perhaps four weeks" this year working at the treasurer's office in Sacramento.

The remainder of the time, Mrs. Priest said, she has carried out her duties from a hospital bed, her Palm Springs home or the Southern California homes of her two daughters.

In a telephone interview from Palm Springs, the 68-year-old grandmotherly treasurer said she has suffered anemia, a sprained foot, a slipped disc and pneumonia during the past year.

She announced in January she would not seek a third term because of her ill health. At the time she was undergoing extensive tests, including some to determine if she had cancer.

"It's been persistent. It's been one thing after another. I'm sick of it," she said.

Mrs. Priest served as U.S. Treasurer from 1952-60 and was swept into the state treasurer's office by the 1966 Republican landslide.

According to the state controller's office, there is no "sick leave" for state officers. Rather, Mrs. Priest will continue receiving her $35,000-a-year salary until her term expires in January.

Mrs. Priest said the medical tests showed she had "a marked anemia — my blood count was virtually nil." Since then, she said, treatments have corrected the anemia.

Asked if the tests found cancer, she replied: "I didn't ask and my doctors didn't tell me." She said she was taking weekly injections, but did not know exactly what they were for.

Although she has spent much of 1974 hospitalized or recuperating, she said her office has been run efficiently.

"I have the finest help in the world. They carry on beautifully," she said. "I talk with them on the telephone every day and I make the decisions from this end."

IVY BAKER PRIEST
One illness after another

She also said she consults bankers in New York often about upcoming state bond sales and knows "everything that goes on in my office."

Mrs. Priest said she spent six weeks in the hospital from mid-January to March. After returning to Sacramento for a week, she fell at a San Francisco bankers meeting and sprained her foot.

After recovering in about two weeks, she returned to work for "a couple of weeks and whammo I got pneumonia."

Ever since she has been resting at her Palm Springs home or the homes of two daughters who live in Tarzana and Long Beach. She now hopes to return to work in Sacramento by Sept. 1.

TELEVISION REVIEW

Strike Won't Affect TV's Football Shows

By JAY SHARBUTT

NEW YORK (AP) — The three TV networks, electronic eyes steady and microphones ready, say their annual pro football blitz will start on schedule this month, even if some of the best-known players don't.

The 32-day-old NFL players' strike still is under way and less than 2½ weeks remain before the start of preseason play, a Cincinnati Bengals-Atlanta Falcons joust NBC will televise on Aug. 17.

Even if the strike isn't over by then, ABC, NBC and CBS officials say, there still are no current plans to drop any games from the three-network schedule of 196 games, from preseason to Pro Bowl.

The only uncertain note is sounded by a spokesman for ABC Sports President Roone Arledge, whose network has 18 pro games — including the Jan. 20 Pro Bowl in Miami — coming up this season.

Asked if ABC might not televise the games if the strike doesn't end, the spokesman replied: "That's a hard question, because we've talked about that and really haven't made a decision."

But he emphasized that as of now, ABC's schedule remains unchanged.

As if ABC doesn't have enough to worry about, its "NFL Monday Night Football" opener on Aug. 19 will, for the first time in its history, be competing against NBC's "Monday Night Baseball" game.

At CBS, and NBC, each facing an 89-game schedule, the official word is that no games will be dropped, even if the strike continues.

Industry sources say ABC, whose games are in costly prime evening time, is charging national advertisers an average of $100,000 per minute for its preseason and regular season games.

The preseason tab at CBS and NBC is $60,000 and $49,000 a minute, respectively, sources say. The networks, which decline to say what prices they're charging, each plan to air three preseason games.

Californians Eligible For Drug Refunds

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — California residents were informed yesterday by State Attorney General Evelle J. Younger that they are eligible to receive cash refunds for purchase of antibiotic drugs between 1954 and 1966.

Younger said a federal district court has determined that residents of California and five other states were overcharged by five pharmaceutical companies.

Residents of the state during the 12 years, who purchased antibiotics, are eligible for a refund, Younger said. The state is currently mailing out refund forms to all California residents.

In filling out the forms, residents must estimate how much they spent but need not provide proof of purchase. Claims for less than $150 need not be documented.

California will receive about $20 million for refunds, Younger said. It has been estimated that the alleged overcharge was about 29 cents for each dollar spent.

The drugs, which include Aureomycin, Terramycin, Achromycin, Declomycin and Archrocidin have been used to treat respiratory and ear infections, strep throat, influenza and other ailments.

The court settlement was a result of a class action suit initiated by the attorney generals' offices in California, Hawaii, Oregon, Utah, Kansas and Washington. The expected refund will be about $25 million for the six states.

The settlement against American Cyanamid, Bristol-Myers, Pfizer and Company, Olin-Mathieson and Upjohn was reached in October, 1973. There was no trial, nor were the firms found guilty.

Forty-three other states settled with the drug companies earlier and North Carolina is litigating on its own.

Bradley Drug Trial Is Postponed To Aug. 27

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — A hearing into a drug case involving Phyllis Bradley, 29-year-old daughter of Los Angeles Mayor Tom Bradley was postponed yesterday when a co-defendant asked for a continuance.

The hearing was rescheduled for Aug. 27 by Municipal Court Commissioner Nancy Brown.

Carl Jones, an attorney for James Riley, 29, requested the postponement to acquaint himself with the case. He was hired yesterday morning.

Also charged with conspiracy to furnish cocaine and possession of maijuana and amphetamines, were Riley's wife, Ann Marie, 26, and David P. Liggins. The Rileys live in West Hollywood. Liggins and Miss Bradley are residents of Baldwin Hills.

Miss Bradley also faces charges of assaulting police officers. On June 27, she was manacled hand and foot when she allegedly kicked and scratched officers trying to arrest her after a chase by three patrol cars. The pursuit began when she made an illegal turn at a downtown intersection.

Miss Bradley was placed on probation in 1967 for stealing clothes from a car, and in 1972 pleaded guilty to marijuana possession. She was placed on six months probation.

Topless Tennis, Fun; Who Won?

MONTICELLO, N.Y. (UPI) — It's not whether you win or lose, it's how you play the game —just ask the spectators at was billed as the world's first topless tennis match.

The battle pitting Maria and Sandra against Nancy and Barbara — all of them topless dancers — was viewed by 150 persons, most of them middleaged males.

Barbara listened to instructions on the game and complained, "I've only played ball once before in my life."

The match was sponsored by a motel, which donated proceeds to the Monticello Volunteer Ambulance Corps.

Tax Hike, Not Sewer Charge Recommended

The Corte Madera Sanitary District should finance its budget with an increased tax rate rather than sewer service charges.

This will be the recommendation of the district's advisory commission to the town council, which sits as the district board, according to Clifford E. Temps, public works director.

Earlier, the council had thought the district was stuck with maximum tax rate of 45 cents under state legislation. Since this did not prove to be the case, the commission is recommending that the tax be raised to cover capital improvements termed "high priority items."

Temps estimated the tax rate needed will be about 72 cents per $100 of assessed valuation.

Ailing Treasurer Keeping Finger On Office's Pulse

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — Ailing state Treasurer Ivy Baker Priest said Wednesday she has been running her office from bedside most of this year because of a series of health problems.

She said she has spent only "three or perhaps four weeks" this year working at the treasurer's office in Sacramento.

The remainder of the time, Mrs. Priest said, she has carried out her duties from a hospital bed, her Palm Springs home or the Southern California homes of her two daughters.

In a telephone interview from Palm Springs, the 68-year-old grandmotherly treasurer said she has suffered anemia, a sprained foot, a slipped disc and pneumonia during the past year.

She announced in January she would not seek a third term because of her ill health. At the time she was undergoing extensive tests, including some to determine if she had cancer.

"It's been persistent. It's been one thing after another. I'm sick of it," she said.

Mrs. Priest served as U.S. Treasurer from 1952-60 and was swept into the state treasurer's office by the 1966 Republican landslide.

According to the state controller's office, there is no "sick leave" for state officers. Rather, Mrs. Priest will continue receiving her $35,000-a-year salary until her term expires in January.

Mrs. Priest said the medical tests showed she had "a marked anemia — my blood count was virtually nil." Since then, she said, treatments have corrected the anemia.

Asked if the tests found cancer, she replied: "I didn't ask and my doctors didn't tell me." She said she was taking weekly injections, but did not know exactly what they were for.

Although she has spent much of 1974 hospitalized or recuperating, she said her office has been run efficiently.

"I have the finest help in the world. They carry on beautifully," she said. "I talk with them on the telephone every day and I make the decisions from this end."

She also said she consults bankers in New York often about upcoming state bond sales and knows "everything that goes on in my office."

Mrs. Priest said she spent six weeks in the hospital from mid-January to March. After returning to Sacramento for a week, she fell at a San Francisco bankers meeting and sprained her foot.

After recovering in about two weeks, she returned to work for "a couple of weeks and whammo I got pneumonia."

Ever since she has been resting at her Palm Springs home or the homes of two daughters who live in Tarzana and Long Beach. She now hopes to return to work in Sacramento by Sept. 1.

TELEVISION REVIEW

Strike Won't Affect TV's Football Shows

By JAY SHARBUTT

NEW YORK (AP) — The three TV networks, electronic eyes steady and microphones ready, say their annual pro football blitz will start on schedule this month, even if some of the best-known players don't.

The 32-day-old NFL players' strike still is under way and less than 2½ weeks remain before the start of preseason play, a Cincinnati Bengals-Atlanta Falcons joust NBC will televise on Aug. 17.

Even if the strike isn't over by then, ABC, NBC and CBS officials say, there still are no current plans to drop any games from the three-network schedule of 196 games, from preseason to Pro Bowl.

The only uncertain note is sounded by a spokesman for ABC Sports President Roone Arledge, whose network has 18 pro games — including the Jan. 20 Pro Bowl in Miami — coming up this season.

Asked if ABC might not televise the games if the strike doesn't end, the spokesman replied: "That's a hard question, because we've talked about that and really haven't made a decision."

But he emphasized that as of now, ABC's schedule remains unchanged.

As if ABC doesn't have enough to worry about, its "NFL Monday Night Football" opener on Aug. 19 will, for the first time in its history, be competing against NBC's "Monday Night Baseball" game.

At CBS, and NBC, each facing an 89-game schedule, the official word is that no games will be dropped, even if the strike continues.

Industry sources say ABC, whose games are in costly prime evening time, is charging national advertisers an average of $100,000 per minute for its preseason and regular season games.

The preseason tab at CBS and NBC is $60,000 and $49,000 a minute, respectively, sources say. The networks, which decline to say what prices they're charging, each plan to air three preseason games.

Californians Eligible For Drug Refunds

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — California residents were informed yesterday by State Attorney General Evelle J. Younger that they are eligible to receive cash refunds for purchase of antibiotic drugs between 1954 and 1966.

Younger said a federal district court has determined that residents of California and five other states were overcharged by five pharmaceutical companies.

Residents of the state during the 12 years, who purchased antibiotics, are eligible for a refund, Younger said. The state is currently mailing out refund forms to all California residents.

In filling out the forms, residents must estimate how much they spent but need not provide proof of purchase. Claims for less than $150 need not be documented.

California will receive about $20 million for refunds, Younger said. It has been estimated that the alleged overcharge was about 29 cents for each dollar spent.

The drugs, which include Aureomycin, Terramycin, Achromycin, Declomycin and Archrocidin have been used to treat respiratory and ear infections, strep throat, influenza and other ailments.

The court settlement was a result of a class action suit initiated by the attorney generals' offices in California, Hawaii, Oregon, Utah, Kansas and Washington. The expected refund will be about $25 million for the six states.

The settlement against American Cyanamid, Bristol-Myers, Pfizer and Company, Olin-Mathieson and Upjohn was reached in October, 1973. There was no trial, nor were the firms found guilty.

Forty-three other states settled with the drug companies earlier and North Carolina is litigating on its own.

Bradley Drug Trial Is Postponed To Aug. 27

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — A hearing into a drug case involving Phyllis Bradley, 29-year-old daughter of Los Angeles Mayor Tom Bradley was postponed yesterday when a co-defendant asked for a continuance.

The hearing was rescheduled for Aug. 27 by Municipal Court Commissioner Nancy Brown.

Carl Jones, an attorney for James Riley, 29, requested the postponement to acquaint himself with the case. He was hired yesterday morning.

Also charged with conspiracy to furnish cocaine and possession of maijuana and amphetamines, were Riley's wife, Ann Marie, 26, and David P. Liggins. The Rileys live in West Hollywood. Liggins and Miss Bradley are residents of Baldwin Hills.

Miss Bradley also faces charges of assaulting police officers. On June 27, she was manacled hand and foot when she allegedly kicked and scratched officers trying to arrest her after a chase by three patrol cars. The pursuit began when she made an illegal turn at a downtown intersection.

Miss Bradley was placed on probation in 1967 for stealing clothes from a car, and in 1972 pleaded guilty to marijuana possession. She was placed on six months probation.

Topless Tennis, Fun; Who Won?

MONTICELLO, N.Y. (UPI) — It's not whether you win or lose, it's how you play the game —just ask the spectators at was billed as the world's first topless tennis match.

The battle pitting Maria and Sandra against Nancy and Barbara — all of them topless dancers — was viewed by 150 persons, most of them middleaged males.

Barbara listened to instructions on the game and complained, "I've only played ball once before in my life."

Maria and Sandra won, but no one really paid attention to the score.

The match was sponsored by a motel, which donated proceeds to the Monticello Volunteer Ambulance Corps.

EVOLUTION ART INSTITUTE

A Goal Of Self-Sufficiency

By ERNEST MURPHY

"I used to paint human suffering," artist Bernard Baruch Zakheim recalled as he mixed a wheelbarrow of plaster at the Evolution Art Institute north of Petaluma recently.

"But then I decided that, with wars all the time and Nixon and everything, we don't need to be reminded so much.

"So I tried to think of something that everyone can appreciate, no matter what language they speak."

Zakheim gestured grandly toward two oils standing in the corner. "That's what I came up with — girls."

Zakheim, now in his 76th year but hardly showing it, was preparing the plaster so he could paint a fresco of the lovelies during the art institute's midsummer day celebration. It begins at 10 a.m. Aug. 11 at the organization's chicken house workshop at 6030 Roblar Road.

Fresco painting, the artist explained, began when civilized man learned to plaster the walls of his dwellings. The walls were bare and so artisans were employed to use paint to dim the glare of the overwhelming whiteness.

He explained how water colors are applied to a ground of damp plaster, allowing the pigments to meld with the medium into scenes of astounding vividness and clarity.

A native of Warsaw, Poland, Zakheim came to San Francisco in the 1920s to work as an upholsterer, later becoming a manufacturer of custom-made furniture.

To take his mind from his business, he continued the art studies he had begun as a youth, going to Mexico in 1930 to study with Diego Rivera. The next year he spent in Europe, studying the works of Giotto and Cimabue.

On his return to San Francisco in 1932, he won a competition to paint a fresco at the city's Jewish center. He also did one at the Alemany Health Center and one in Coit Tower atop Telegraph Hill.

Between 1936 and 1940 he executed murals at the University of California Medical Center, depicting the history of medicine.

The medical center works, which include blood-curdling scenes of wierd shamanistic rites, were criticized by faculty members, who felt they distracted the students. The murals were covered with wallpaper in 1948. (In 1968 Zakheim was commissioned to restore them. He took the job but disdainfully compared it to "trying to do what the nursery rhyme Humpty-Dumpty illustrates.")

In the years since 1941, when he moved to a farm near Sebastopol, he executed a sculptured shrine depicting the atrocities committed by the Nazis.

The shrine, in six tableaux fashioned from redwood, commemorates the Warsaw Ghetto uprising in which members of his own family were slaughtered. Critical acclaim of the work led to Zakheim's being named California artist of the year in 1972.

GETTING READY — Artist Bernard Baruch Zakheim (right) waits for Lawrence Dubey, one of the organizers of the Evolution Art Institute, to pass him some of the plaster to be prepared for use in the fresco Zakheim will create. The activity is part of a class to be taught in fresco painting at the institute. Zakheim is visiting there expressly to pass on to others his mastery of the ancient art.

According to Michael Gonzalez, president of the Evolution Art Institute, he begged Zakheim several years ago to teach him the fresco technique. Zakheim's participation in the midsummer day celebration is a fulfillment of the request.

During the celebration, which benefits the nonprofit institute, a "country luncheon" featuring organically-grown turkeys and vegetables will be served, while visitors view the works of Zakheim and the institute's craftsmen.

Gonzalez, the institute's founder, moved to Southern Sonoma from Los Angeles five years ago. At first, he said, he worked for a Sebastopol toy company, but grew restless when its commercial aspects overwhelmed the creative end.

So he took what money he received for his designs and inventions in the toy trade and invested it in a workshop which he envisioned as an "open studio" — a place where anyone could come to learn art techniques and craftsmanship.

Today, the institute has several dozen students from the area who come to learn techniques as diverse as blacksmithing, waste recycling, calligraphy, creative sewing, woodworking, plaster mold-making, ceramics, beekeeping, vegetable growing and, now, fresco painting.

"We'll learn the process from Bernard and then dispense it to others by teaching," Gonzalez said. "That's our main role here."

The institute's organizers, Gonzalez, Lawrence Dubey, Cathy Osman and Greer Upton, all are Southern Sonoma artists whose vision includes the creation of a self-supporting community of artisans something like the Baulines Craftsmen's Guild.

The turkies to be served at the luncheon were raised at the institute, and its members are now experimenting with the use of wind-driven electrical generators "so that some day we can cut loose from Pacific Gas and Electric," Miss Upton explained. Total self-sufficiency is the institute's long-range aim.

Behind the workshop stands a bathroom connected to composting tanks where sewage is broken down into burnable methane gas and compost.

The methane system, like the windmills taking shape inside the shop, is built from old 55-gallon drums and salvaged metal. Most of the materials used at the institute have been discarded as rubbish by someone else.

Right now, Miss Upton said, the ground are rented. But the institute's five-year forecast for self-sufficiency includes plans for eventual purchase of a permanent site.

After a year and a half of existence, the community of artists and craftsmen is attracting more students, and Gonzalez said it will apply in December for federal and private grants to expand its educational programs further.

NFL Players Modify Four 'Freedom Issue' Demands

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The National Football League Players Association has modified four of its "freedom issue" demands in a bid to end the 32-day old strike against the NFL owners, it was learned today.

One of the changes would allow commissioner Pete Rozelle to retain his authority over questions involving "the integrity of the game" but would provide for an impartial arbitrator to handle the day-to-day grievances between a player and his club.

The revised offer, submitted to the owners at a marathon session which broke up at 1:45 a.m. EDT today, would also allow a veteran after four years to cancel a trade or waiver deal. The players also would be given the right of first refusal on any waivers.

The union also agreed that the regular college draft should continue, but with the stipulation that if a draftee was willing to sit out his first year of pro football, he would then be free to sign with the team of his choice.

The players also have made what was described as a "substantial" cut in their economic demands, it was learned.

As the owners and the players headed back for another tough round of negotiations at 2 p.m. EDT, a source close to the union commented on the owners' attitude.

"It seems to us they are trying to break the union instead of negotiating a contract. The strike is holding up very well under incredible pressures by the owners on individual players," he said.

There have been reports of owners offering veterans between $5,000 and $10,000 to cross the picket line and report to camp. Some players have alleged that owner Joe Robbie of Miami has threatened to sue all the players on his club who remain out of camp and coach Don Shula has threatened to trade player representative Doug Swift.

The players also were reported upset in that their full negotiating committee has shown up at every session called by federal mediator W. J. Usery, Jr. while the owners have been represented only by "a token few."

Yesterday's session began at 10 a.m., recessed for lunch at 1 p.m. and then settled down for what amounted to an endurance contest at 3 p.m.

Usery declined to say whether there had been substantial progress made during the course of the long day. But he said "There have been suggestions back and forth by both sides and you know how long we've been here."

He said that during the night session the controversial freedom issues had been discussed "long and hard."

"I wouldn't minimize the differences between them," he said of the bargaining. "It's very difficult and very tough."

Most of the morning was taken up with Usery and his aides meeting separately with bargaining representatives of both sides, although there was a joint meeting of one half hour before the luncheon recess.

The NFL players received some moral support from Marvin Miller, executive director of the Major League Players Association, who blasted football owners "for misleading fans and the American public."

Miller, in lining up his union with the NFLPA, pointed out that "the football players, in seeking impartial arbitration of differences which arise concerning the meaning or application of contract provisions, are asking no more than millions of wage and salary earners have had for years, including professional athletes in baseball, basketball and hockey." The bargaining representatives for the NFL Players Association and the owners' Management Council were kept throughout the long afternoon and night without supper. In the periods when Usery was meeting separately in another room with the owners, the players' representatives worked out with weights and other exercise devices, and then later played cards occasionally.

Had they been in training camp instead of bargaining with the owners, they would have been subject to a fine for violating the curfew. Of course, the players' demands include the elimination of such curfews and resultant fines.

Ellis On Way Out, Cazzie Back In

My Golden State Warrior spies tell me that forward Joe Ellis won't be with the team this season, but forward Cazzie Russell will.

Because of his tenure with the club (eight years), Ellis' annual salary is up to the $70,000 range and that is quite a bit for a number four forward. The Warriors are in the process of looking for a team that would like Ellis' services.

Russell, on the other hand, will probably return to the Warriors because a deal with the Lakers could not be arranged. He has played out his option and apparently was headed for Los Angeles. But so far, no deal.

The forward situation was going to get crowded because three rookies appear likely to make the team, and two of them are forwards — No. 1 draftee Keith Wilkes of UCLA nad No. 3 Frank Kendrick of Purdue. The other rookie to stick will be guard Phil Smith of USF, a No. 2 choice.

One man sure of his job with the Warriors is center Nate Thurmond. He was reported to be a very strong Pong player (you know, those electronic games with the bouncing ball). But the other night in the Positively Fourth Street bar in San Rafael, he lost three straight 15-love matches to a guy who was one foot, 7 inches shorter than Nate. This goes to show you don't have to be tall to be a good Pong player. Anyway, Nate was heard to murmer, "I shall return," as he ducked out the door.

ONE YOUNG MAN taking advantage of the National Football League's player strike is Tom Wickert of Greenbrae, the Redwood High and Washington State grad trying to win a job with the Miami Dolphins. He was drafted ninth last year with the thought of playing guard for the Dolphins but reports out of the Florida training camp say that Wickert will be playing offensive tackle, with a surprisingly good chance of making the club, even when the vets report. Tom's father, Henry J., is planning to fly to Cincinnati for the Dolphins' first exhibition game, against the Bengals Saturday.

"That's some birthday present," said Henry, who will be 55 the day of the game, "to see Tom in his first professional game."

A LITTLE NEWS ITEM for all you bocci ball fans: Ron Pastorino of Larkspur is the 1974 champ of Los Altos. Ron won the Los Altos Open Invitational Bocci Ball Tournament last weekend. And sayd Vince Scarich, president of the National Bocci Ball Association: "Ron played beautifully — the best I've seem him play."

ELEVEN-YEAR-OLD David Skuse of Petaluma didn't wait very long for his first hole-in-one. The son of publicist Dick Skuse used a trusty nine-iron to ace the short 64-yard fourth hole the other day at Liberty Valley's pitch and putt course. Said Liberty Valley pro Wayne Walters: "He's the youngest golfer to ever make a hole-in-one here."

THEY SAY IF YOU want to learn the dos and don'ts of soccer, Pele's the man to see. This is now possible for the members of the Marin Youth Soccer Association. KRON-TV has donated a series of six training films to the soccer group and star of the show is Pele, the Brazilian known as the best soccer player of all time.

Title of the series is, "Pele: The Master and his Method," and said Bob Braghetta, organizer of the Marin kids soccer league, "They are the finest athletic training films I've ever seen." The film will be shown to the various youth groups in Marin. If you want a showing for your group, check with Braghetta, of Ross.

New York Is Making Game Interesting

QBs Are Thrashed By Stars

By UNITED PRESS INTERNATIONAL

If the New York Stars have one knack, it's making a game interesting, even if the opponent is reduced to using a quarterback who hasn't played the position since high school. The Stars won, 24-16.

All three of the Stars' previous games were decided in the last two minutes and last night was no exception, although both Jacksonville quarterbacks — Kay Stephenson and Kim Hammond — were on the bench in the last quarter receiving medical attention.

Quarterback Tom Sherman gave the Stars a 24-16 lead early in the third period when he leaped over a pile of defenders for a touchdown and then passed to George Sauer in the corner of the end zone for the action point.

Then the Stars' defense, led by former National Football League All-Stars Gerry Philbin and John Elliott, took over. On the last play of the third period, they descended on Stephenson as he tried to pass and he went out with cartilage damage in his knee and bruised ribs.

In came Hammond and he was thrown for a nine-yard loss in his first play and then knocked unconscious on the second when the Stars' Jerry Ellison fell on his head. That left Jacksonville without a quarterback for almost the entire last period, but the Sharks still almost managed to pull it out.

Jeff Davis, a running back from Mars Hill activated just before gametime, was inserted at quarterback and after a rocky start, he twice brought the Sharks into scoring position only to be intercepted once and have a near TD pass ruled out of bounds.

Jacksonville even went to a shotgun formation before the Stars finally held on for the 24-16 win as Davis' pass in the end zone was knocked down with ⅛ seconds to go.

Tommy Durrance, the league's leading rusher, scored first for Jacksonville on a two-yard run and also ran for the action point. Bob Gladieux tied it for New York with a four-yard run and a plunge for the action point.

Stephenson hit tight end Dennis Hughes with a 56-yard TD pass and Ricky Lake ran for the action point for a 16-8 Sharks' lead, but Andy Huff's one-yard run and Sherman's action point pass to Ray Parson tied the score 16-16 at the half.

In other WFL action, the Birmingham Americans remained unbeaten by edging the winless Detroit Wheels 21-18, the Houston Texans upset the previously unbeaten Florida Blazers 7-6 and the Philadelphia Bell routed the Portland Storm 25-7. Southern California is at Memphis in the national television game tonight.

The league had its worst week in its month-long existence as far as attendance went but that was tempered by the fact that two of the league's smallest stadiums were in use. New York drew 15,648, Detroit 14,614, Houston 16,268 and Portland 13,757.

Americans 21, Wheels 18

Matthew Reed, subbing at quarterback for the injured George Mira, blasted through two tacklers at the goal line to complete a nine-yard TD run with 2:12 left that lifted Birmingham over Detroit.

Detroit had tied the score on a 55-yard run by Jessie Mims and went ahead with 3:49 to go on Eric Guthrie's 29-yard field goal.

Texans 7, Blazers 6

Jim Nance plunged for a TD in the first period — the first touchdown of the season for Houston — and the Texans' defense held on to upend Florida. John Mallory set up Nance's score with a 59-yard interception return and the Houston defense dropped Blazer quarterback Bob Davis six times attempting to pass.

Bell 25, Storm 7

King Corcoran hit 18-of-28 passes for 182 yards and two TDs as Philadelphia manhandled Portland. Corcoran threw TD passes of three yards in the second period and nine yards in the fourth period to tight end Levell Hill and set up a 48-yard field goal by Richie Szaro in a 17-point second period outburst that also featured John Land's 31-yard TD run following a blocked punt recovery.

HOLD ON TO YOUR HAT

Correll Certain One Run Enough

ATLANTA (UPI) — Catcher Vic Correll thought Phil Niekro was pitching so effectively last night that "once we got one run, I knew we had the ball game."

Correll was right. One run would have been enough as Niekro shut out the San Francisco Giants.

But just to make sure the game didn't get away, Correll chipped in with a grand slam home run in Atlanta's 9-0 victory.

It was Correll's first home run in the major leagues.

Newsmen crowded around Correll after the game, asking him how it felt to hit his first homer, and with the bases loaded. He said he wasn't very good at describing his feelings.

"Once it went over the fence, I kinda got a big smile on my face as I ran the bases," he volunteered.

The writers kept on pressing.

"Well, I was kinda fired up about it," he said. "When I got to the dugout I was doing a lot of screaming and hollering."

Correll was entitled to do "a lot of screaming and hollering" but he had to share the spotlight with Niekro. The veteran knuckleball specialist gave up only four hits in pitching his second consecutive shutout. He is tied for the league lead in shutouts and has pitched 21 consecutive innings without giving up a run.

It was the second time Correll has been Niekro's catcher and both games have been shutouts.

"It's got to mean something," Niekro said when asked about his effectiveness with Correll. "He was mixing up the pitches a lot tonight. I was using the knuckleball less — I used three or four different pitches during the game. He just called a great game."

The win was the fourth in six games for new Atlanta manager Clyde King, who replaced Eddie Mathews during the all-star game break last week.

Outfielder Dave Augustine was returned to the Pirates' Charleston, W. Va., farm club in the International League to make room for Parker.

A's To Open Swing In Chicago

OAKLAND (UPI) — The Oakland A's open a nine-game road trip in Chicago tonight after being edged 7-6 by the Texas Rangers yesterday in Oakland.

The A.L. West leaders erupted for six third-inning runs to overcome a 5-0 Rangers' lead, but then ran smack into the relief slants of Steve Foucault and were held hitless the rest of the way.

Foucault, who fanned five in four and two-thirds innings, called the stint "my best job of the season" as he evened his record at 4-4.

"The A's have a strong team," he said, "and it will be tough to overcome their big lead in the division. But if they hit a bad slump, we can overtake them."

The Rangers are still 8½ games behind the defending champions.

"You wouldn't think that the A's are the kind of team that would have a bad slump," Foucault added, "but you never can tell. Anything can happen."

Texas pinned the loss on Oakland reliever Paul Lindblad (4-3) on the strength of Tom Grieve's eighth-inning sacrifice fly. Earlier, American League runs batted in leader Jeff Burroughs knocked in three runs with a homer and single off Jim Hunter to bring his total to 80.

Hunter has been bombed in two straight starts.

NFL Players Modify Four 'Freedom Issue' Demands

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The National Football League Players Association has modified four of its "freedom issue" demands in a bid to end the 32-day old strike against the NFL owners, it was learned today.

One of the changes would allow commissioner Pete Rozelle to retain his authority over questions involving "the integrity of the game" but would provide for an impartial arbitrator to handle the day-to-day grievances between a player and his club.

The revised offer, submitted to the owners at a marathon session which broke up at 1:45 a.m. EDT today, would also allow a veteran after four years to cancel a trade or waiver deal. The players also would be given the right of first refusal on any waivers.

The union also agreed that the regular college draft should continue, but with the stipulation that if a draftee was willing to sit out his first year of pro football, he would then be free to sign with the team of his choice.

The players also have made what was described as a "substantial" cut in their economic demands, it was learned.

As the owners and the players headed back for another tough round of negotiations at 2 p.m. EDT, a source close to the union commented on the owners' attitude.

"It seems to us they are trying to break the union instead of negotiating a contract. The strike is holding up very well under incredible pressures by the owners on individual players," he said.

There have been reports of owners offering veterans between $5,000 and $10,000 to cross the picket line and report to camp. Some players have alleged that owner Joe Robbie of Miami has threatened to sue all the players on his club who remain out of camp and coach Don Shula has threatened to trade player representative Doug Swift.

The players also were reported upset in that their full negotiating committee has shown up at every session called by federal mediator W. J. Usery, Jr. while the owners have been represented only by "a token few."

Yesterday's session began at 10 a.m., recessed for lunch at 1 p.m. and then settled down for what amounted to an endurance contest at 3 p.m.

Usery declined to say whether there had been substantial progress made during the course of the long day. But he said "There have been suggestions back and forth by both sides and you know how long we've been here."

He said that during the night session the controversial freedom issues had been discussed "long and hard."

"I wouldn't minimize the differences between them," he said of the bargaining. "It's very difficult and very tough."

Most of the morning was taken up with Usery and his aides meeting separately with bargaining representatives of both sides, although there was a joint meeting of one half hour before the luncheon recess.

The NFL players received some moral support from Marvin Miller, executive director of the Major League Players Association, who blasted football owners "for misleading fans and the American public."

Miller, in lining up his union with the NFLPA, pointed out that "the football players, in seeking impartial arbitration of differences which arise concerning the meaning or application of contract provisions, are asking no more than millions of wage and salary earners have had for years, including professional athletes in baseball, basketball and hockey." The bargaining representatives for the NFL Players Association and the owners' Management Council were kept throughout the long afternoon and night without supper. In the periods when Usery was meeting separately in another room with the owners, the players' representatives worked out with weights and other exercise devices, and then later played cards occasionally.

Had they been in training camp instead of bargaining with the owners, they would have been subject to a fine for violating the curfew. Of course, the players' demands include the elimination of such curfews and resultant fines.

Ellis On Way Out, Cazzie Back In

My Golden State Warrior spies tell me that forward Joe Ellis won't be with the team this season, but forward Cazzie Russell will.

Because of his tenure with the club (eight years), Ellis' annual salary is up to the $70,000 range and that is quite a bit for a number four forward. The Warriors are in the process of looking for a team that would like Ellis' services.

Russell, on the other hand, will probably return to the Warriors because a deal with the Lakers could not be arranged. He has played out his option and apparently was headed for Los Angeles. But so far, no deal.

The forward situation was going to get crowded because three rookies appear likely to make the team, and two of them are forwards — No. 1 draftee Keith Wilkes of UCLA nad No. 3 Frank Kendrick of Purdue. The other rookie to stick will be guard Phil Smith of USF, a No. 2 choice.

One man sure of his job with the Warriors is center Nate Thurmond. He was reported to be a very strong Pong player (you know, those electronic games with the bouncing ball). But the other night in the Positively Fourth Street bar in San Rafael, he lost three straight 15-love matches to a guy who was one foot, 7 inches shorter than Nate. This goes to show you don't have to be tall to be a good Pong player. Anyway, Nate was heard to murmer, "I shall return," as he ducked out the door.

ONE YOUNG MAN taking advantage of the National Football League's player strike is Tom Wickert of Greenbrae, the Redwood High and Washington State grad trying to win a job with the Miami Dolphins. He was drafted ninth last year with the thought of playing guard for the Dolphins but reports out of the Florida training camp say that Wickert will be playing offensive tackle, with a surprisingly good chance of making the club, even when the vets report. Tom's father, Henry J., is planning to fly to Cincinnati for the Dolphins' first exhibition game, against the Bengals Saturday.

"That's some birthday present," said Henry, who will be 55 the day of the game, "to see Tom in his first professional game."

A LITTLE NEWS ITEM for all you bocci ball fans: Ron Pastorino of Larkspur is the 1974 champ of Los Altos. Ron won the Los Altos Open Invitational Bocci Ball Tournament last weekend. And sayd Vince Scarich, president of the National Bocci Ball Association: "Ron played beautifully — the best I've seem him play."

ELEVEN-YEAR-OLD David Skuse of Petaluma didn't wait very long for his first hole-in-one. The son of publicist Dick Skuse used a trusty nine-iron to ace the short 64-yard fourth hole the other day at Liberty Valley's pitch and putt course. Said Liberty Valley pro Wayne Walters: "He's the youngest golfer to ever make a hole-in-one here."

THEY SAY IF YOU want to learn the dos and don'ts of soccer, Pele's the man to see. This is now possible for the members of the Marin Youth Soccer Association. KRON-TV has donated a series of six training films to the soccer group and star of the show is Pele, the Brazilian known as the best soccer player of all time.

Title of the series is, "Pele: The Master and his Method," and said Bob Braghetta, organizer of the Marin kids soccer league, "They are the finest athletic training films I've ever seen." The film will be shown to the various youth groups in Marin. If you want a showing for your group, check with Braghetta, of Ross.

New York Is Making Game Interesting

QBs Are Thrashed By Stars

By UNITED PRESS INTERNATIONAL

If the New York Stars have one knack, it's making a game interesting, even if the opponent is reduced to using a quarterback who hasn't played the position since high school. The Stars won, 24-16.

All three of the Stars' previous games were decided in the last two minutes and last night was no exception, although both Jacksonville quarterbacks — Kay Stephenson and Kim Hammond — were on the bench in the last quarter receiving medical attention.

Quarterback Tom Sherman gave the Stars a 24-16 lead early in the third period when he leaped over a pile of defenders for a touchdown and then passed to George Sauer in the corner of the end zone for the action point.

Then the Stars' defense, led by former National Football League All-Stars Gerry Philbin and John Elliott, took over. On the last play of the third period, they descended on Stephenson as he tried to pass and he went out with cartilage damage in his knee and bruised ribs.

In came Hammond and he was thrown for a nine-yard loss in his first play and then knocked unconscious on the second when the Stars' Jerry Ellison fell on his head. That left Jacksonville without a quarterback for almost the entire last period, but the Sharks still almost managed to pull it out.

Jeff Davis, a running back from Mars Hill activated just before gametime, was inserted at quarterback and after a rocky start, he twice brought the Sharks into scoring position only to be intercepted once and have a near TD pass ruled out of bounds.

Jacksonville even went to a shotgun formation before the Stars finally held on for the 24-16 win as Davis' pass in the end zone was knocked down with ⅛ seconds to go.

Tommy Durrance, the league's leading rusher, scored first for Jacksonville on a two-yard run and also ran for the action point. Bob Gladieux tied it for New York with a four-yard run and a plunge for the action point.

Stephenson hit tight end Dennis Hughes with a 56-yard TD pass and Ricky Lake ran for the action point for a 16-8 Sharks' lead, but Andy Huff's one-yard run and Sherman's action point pass to Ray Parson tied the score 16-16 at the half.

In other WFL action, the Birmingham Americans remained unbeaten by edging the winless Detroit Wheels 21-18, the Houston Texans upset the previously unbeaten Florida Blazers 7-6 and the Philadelphia Bell routed the Portland Storm 25-7. Southern California is at Memphis in the national television game tonight.

The league had its worst week in its month-long existence as far as attendance went but that was tempered by the fact that two of the league's smallest stadiums were in use. New York drew 15,648, Detroit 14,614, Houston 16,268 and Portland 13,757.

Americans 21, Wheels 18

Matthew Reed, subbing at quarterback for the injured George Mira, blasted through two tacklers at the goal line to complete a nine-yard TD run with 2:12 left that lifted Birmingham over Detroit.

Detroit had tied the score on a 55-yard run by Jessie Mims and went ahead with 3:49 to go on Eric Guthrie's 29-yard field goal.

Texans 7, Blazers 6

Jim Nance plunged for a TD in the first period — the first touchdown of the season for Houston — and the Texans' defense held on to upend Florida. John Mallory set up Nance's score with a 59-yard interception return and the Houston defense dropped Blazer quarterback Bob Davis six times attempting to pass.

Bell 25, Storm 7

King Corcoran hit 18-of-28 passes for 182 yards and two TDs as Philadelphia manhandled Portland. Corcoran threw TD passes of three yards in the second period and nine yards in the fourth period to tight end Levell Hill and set up a 48-yard field goal by Richie Szaro in a 17-point second period outburst that also featured John Land's 31-yard TD run following a blocked punt recovery.

HOLD ON TO YOUR HAT

Correll Certain One Run Enough

ATLANTA (UPI) — Catcher Vic Correll thought Phil Niekro was pitching so effectively last night that "once we got one run, I knew we had the ball game."

Correll was right. One run would have been enough as Niekro shut out the San Francisco Giants.

But just to make sure the game didn't get away, Correll chipped in with a grand slam home run in Atlanta's 9-0 victory.

It was Correll's first home run in the major leagues.

Newsmen crowded around Correll after the game, asking him how it felt to hit his first homer, and with the bases loaded. He said he wasn't very good at describing his feelings.

"Once it went over the fence, I kinda got a big smile on my face as I ran the bases," he volunteered.

The writers kept on pressing.

"Well, I was kinda fired up about it," he said. "When I got to the dugout I was doing a lot of screaming and hollering."

Correll was entitled to do "a lot of screaming and hollering" but he had to share the spotlight with Niekro. The veteran knuckleball specialist gave up only four hits in pitching his second consecutive shutout. He is tied for the league lead in shutouts and has pitched 21 consecutive innings without giving up a run.

It was the second time Correll has been Niekro's catcher and both games have been shutouts.

"It's got to mean something," Niekro said when asked about his effectiveness with Correll. "He was mixing up the pitches a lot tonight. I was using the knuckleball less — I used three or four different pitches during the game. He just called a great game."

The win was the fourth in six games for new Atlanta manager Clyde King, who replaced Eddie Mathews during the all-star game break last week.

A's To Open Swing In Chicago

OAKLAND (UPI) — The Oakland A's open a nine-game road trip in Chicago tonight after being edged 7-6 by the Texas Rangers yesterday in Oakland.

The A.L. West leaders erupted for six third-inning runs to overcome a 5-0 Rangers' lead, but then ran smack into the relief slants of Steve Foucault and were held hitless the rest of the way.

Foucault, who fanned five in four and two-thirds innings, called the stint "my best job of the season" as he evened his record at 4-4.

"The A's have a strong team," he said, "and it will be tough to overcome their big lead in the division. But if they hit a bad slump, we can overtake them."

The Rangers are still 8½ games behind the defending champions.

"You wouldn't think that the A's are the kind of team that would have a bad slump," Foucault added, "but you never can tell. Anything can happen."

Texas pinned the loss on Oakland reliever Paul Lindblad (4-3) on the strength of Tom Grieve's eighth-inning sacrifice fly. Earlier, American League runs batted in leader Jeff Burroughs knocked in three runs with a homer and single off Jim Hunter to bring his total to 80.

Hunter has been bombed in two straight starts.

Rookies, Free Agents In 49ers' Lineup

GOLETA, Calif. (UPI) — San Francisco 49er coach Dick Nolan has announced a starting lineup for Saturday night's exhibition game in San Diego that — assuming the National Football League players strike is settled — won't bear much resemblance on the regular season's lineup.

Two veterans who reported last week, defensive end Cedrick Hardman and linebacker Willie Harper, will be starting, but Nolan said they wouldn't play very long.

Otherwise, the 49ers will go with a variety of rookies and free agents, few of whom even figure to be around once the veterans report.

Rookie Tom Owen of Wichita will start at quarterback.

Top draft picks running back Wilbur Jackson and defensive tackle Bill Sandifer will both sit out the game, with Sandifer doubtful for most of the season following a knee operation.

Jackson has a severe ankle sprain and is not expected to play for three or four weeks.

One healthy rookie Nolan is high on his second-round choice Keith Fahnhorst of Minnesota, who can go at tight end or offensive tackle.

Nolan says the big rookie from Minnesota has shown "tremendous" blocking ability and a good ability to catch the ball, although he doesn't have great speed.

Running backs against San Diego will include Delvin Williams and Roy Snell with Mike Bettiga and Clint Haselrig as wide receivers.

One rarity may find Vic Washington, the 49ers' top rusher the past two seasons, getting a shot at defensive safety.

Oakland, Dallas May Wage War Through Air

OAKLAND (UPI) — There should be some flashy passing statistics Saturday night when Dallas and Oakland clash here in the National Football League exhibition opener.

That's because veteran Dallas quarterback Craig Morton and Raiders' star Ken Stabler both have crossed the picket lines and will start for their respective teams.

What's more, Morton will have veteran Golden Richards at one wide receiver spot, while Stabler will be able to throw to Fred Biletnikoff, the veteran who is 18th on the NFL's all-time reception list.

Stabler will hand off to 11th-round draft pick Harold Hart and nine-year veteran Pete Banaszak at running backs.

Ilana Kloss Lifts Gaters By Chicago

OAKLAND (UPI) — The Golden Gaters, two games down going into the final mixed doubles, pulled out a 6-3 win for a 25-24 World Team Tennis victory over Chicago.

Frew McMillen and Ilana Kloss, the star of last night, took the key match from Kim Warwick and Janet Young of Chicago.

Sue Stap beat Leslie Hunt of the Gaters and Miss Hunt and Miss Kloss topped Miss Stap and Miss Young to give the Gaters a one-point lead after three matches.

But then Graham Stillwell and Warwick downed McMillen Bohrnstedt in men's doubles to set up the final confrontation in mixed doubles.

"I don't think Ilana missed two shots all night. She was super," said a Gaters' spokesman afterwards. A crowd of 1,716 watched the action.

N.L. Umpire Pelekoudas In Fair Condition

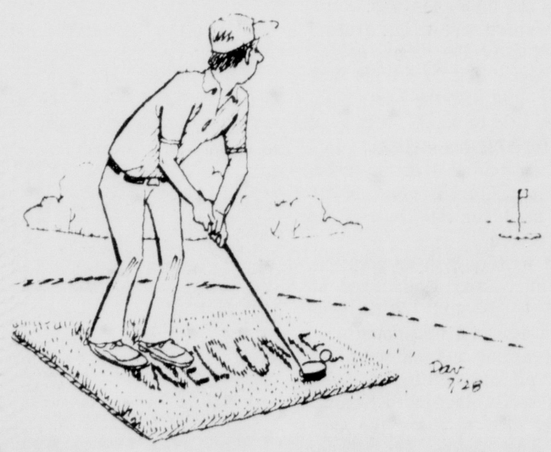
PHILADELPHIA (UPI) — National League umpire Chris Pelekoudas was reported in fair condition at Methodist Hospital early today, suffering from hypertension and high blood pressure.

Pelekoudas, 56, was rushed to the hospital when he fell ill in the second inning of the Philadelphia-St. Louis game last night.

A spokeswoman at the hospital said Pelekoudas, a resident of Sunnyvale, Calif., did not suffer a heart attack or stroke as was first believed by some onlookers at Veterans Stadium.

"He has been admitted to the hospital," the spokeswoman said. "He has hypertension and high blood pressure."

TREVINO TALKS GOLF



Those Matty Tracks

By LEE TREVINO

To be perfectly honest, some guys play matty fairways — where the turf is heavily thatched — better than I do because I beat down on the ball so hard.

Sometimes this makes the divot curl instead of fly, so the ball doesn't come off of it crisp. Well, there's different strokes for different blokes, which explains the opposing methods that Gary Player and I use on matty fairways.

Gary moves the ball up for these shots, and I play it back. It's hard to criticize a man who's won every major tournament, so I won't. He plays the ball forward, with his hands slightly behind the ball, and hits it a little cleaner than on a normal swing.

That's Gary's way. But a pro can sweep the ball off the thatch where the ordinary golfer will skull it into the next county.

My method is to play the shot from well back in the stance. The reason is that matty fairways catch the heel of the club first — like shooting from tall rough — and smothers the ball.

Choke down a mite on the grip for better club control. As you get closer to the green, shorten your swing to about three-quarters. You'll get a cleaner contact.

Royals Obtain Veteran Cepeda

Combined AP & UPI

KANSAS CITY, Mo. — The Kansas City Royals reported yesterday the acquisition of Orlando Cepeda, who hit .289 last season for the Boston Red Sox as a designated hitter while plagued by a knee ailment.

Cepeda became a free agent when he drew his release from Boston last March. The Red Sox used him last season exclusively as a designated hitter. He ranked second among all designated hitters in runs batted in, homers, doubles, hits and at bats. He hit 20 home runs and drove in 86 runs.

The 36-year-old Cepeda ranks 19th on the all-time major league home run list with 378 in a career which dates back to 1958 when he started with the San Francisco Giants and became a unanimous choice for national league rookie of the year.

Training Program In America's Cup

NEWPORT, R.I. (UPI) — Alan Bond, the real estate developer from Australia who is sponsoring that nation's America's Cup challenge, yesterday ordered all crewmembers to go on a strict training program.

Bond set a midnight curfew for all hands and ordered daily exercises at 6 a.m., hoping to get the crew in top-notch shape to challenge America's supremacy in yachting's most famous series.

The Australians, with an average age of about 28, are the oldest among the competitors, but all are veterans of yacht racing. The youngest member of the team is Rod "Rat" Sterling, 24, competing in his second America's Cup challenge.

By comparison, the average age of the American crewmembers for defending champion Intrepid and challenger Courageous is about 25, while the youngest of the crews is the French group, averaging about 21, with none having anything more than preliminary trial experience.

Observers also report that it appears the Australians are concentrating more and more on Southern Cross as the likely vessel to make that nation's challenge. The last time out for the two boats, Sunday, Southern Cross beat Gretel II by 8½ minutes.

The ships ran six legs of onehalf mile each, meaning the sail handlers had to perform about 150 maneuvers.

Following the practices, the crews and the observers compared notes in an effort to choreograph each maneuver to perfection.

It was also announced that the other United States' hopeful, Mariner, was expected to return to Newport on Saturday.

BENECIA — Novato Knickerbockers downed Benecia Industries, 6-3, yesterday in a Sacramento Rural League baseball game.

Novato pitcher Ken Siler struck out 17 and walked six in hurling his four-hit victory. Key blow of the game was a two-run double by Tom Conklin in the third inning. It put Novato ahead, 3-2, a lead it never relinquished.

Novato's league record is now 11 wins, 6 losses, two games behind division leading Santa Rosa (9-4).

Frazer Well Practiced For Tourney Of Champs

(Last of a six part series)

If George Frazer fails to win the eighth annual Marin County Tournament of Champions, it won't be because he hasn't practiced.

Frazer, nine time club champion at Meadow Club in Fairfax, plays on the average five times a week. So he'll be anything but rusty when he faces the club champs of Marin's five other regulation courses Sunday at San Geronimo National.

Sponsored by the Independent-Journal, the TOC is played on a rotating basis at all the courses. Last year at Indian Valley in Novato, Frazer finished in a tie for third with a 76.

The man he tied, Al Randig of Indian Valley, and Mat Palacio Jr., of Novato's Marin Country Club, who came in second and won the event in 1971, will also be in the field. The other three golfers will be first-timers: Jim Sherbert of San Geronimo, Elmo Petterlo of Peacock Gap in San Rafael, and Dave Cardy of Mill Valley.

Frazer, a retired real estate broker who lives in Daly City, carries a six handicap. Palacio is lowest with a two, followed by Cardy with a three and Sherbert with a five.

Stargell, Seaver To Play Key Roles in Flag Chase

By UNITED PRESS INTERNATIONAL

It has now become increasingly clear: Willie Stargell and Tom Seaver, two superstars who have gone their separate ways when the season-end baseball writers awards are given out, will once again play key roles in outcome of the National League Eastern division mini-pennant race.

The Pittsburgh Pirates and New York Mets — who've traded NL East titles back and forth since the inception of the two-division set-up, completed a three-game series yesterday with the Bucs taking an 8-3 decision.

But besides giving the Pirates two out of three at Shea Stadium, yesterday's "rubber" game also focused clearly on Stargell and Seaver.

Elsewhere in the NL, Montreal swept a doubleheader from Chicago, 7-4 and 4-0, St. Louis outlasted Philadelphia 9-8, Cincinnati blanked Houston 4-0, Atlanta whitewashed San Francisco 9-0 and Los Angeles rocked San Diego, 15-4.

Stargell, who in the last three years has suffered two bitter setbacks in the NL most valuable player sweepstakes, put the Pirates on their way with a two-run homer in the first inning. Seaver, winner of two Cy Young awards, was bombed for 12 hits and eight runs in 4 1-3 innings to suffer his seventh loss.

Dodgers 15, Padres 4

Ron Cey hit a pair of three-run home runs and drove in eight runs to set a Los Angeles club record as the Dodgers overwhelmed the Padres.

Cardinals 9, Phillies 8

A pair of big innings plus the gutty pitching of veteran Bob Gibson pushed the Cardinals into a first place tie with the Phils in the topsy-turvy East race.

Reds 4, Astros 0

Cincy southpaw Don Gullett twirled a two-hitter to gain his 13th win of the season against seven losses. The Reds bunched all their runs in the second and third innings, while Johnny Bench and Cesar Geronimo had two hits apiece and each scored a run.

Expos 7-4, Cubs 4-0

Rookie righthander Dennis Blair combined with reliever John Mantague on a two-hitter in the nightcap, while Mike Jorgensen drove in five runs — all of them unearned to power the Expos in the opener.

AMERICAN LEAGUE

Bad Times For Gaylord

By UNITED PRESS INTERNATIONAL

Just a month ago, Gaylord Perry couldn't lose. Now he can't win.

Perry, who hasn't won since July 3, was shelled for six runs in four innings by the Baltimore Orioles Wednesday night as he failed in his fifth try for his 16th victory. The Orioles wound up with a 7-4 triumph over Cleveland.

Back on July 3, Perry won his 15th straight victory to boost his record to 15-1. He was one game away from tying the American League record for consecutive victories. Now he's 15-5 and has lost four straight.

Perry is philosophical about it all.

"Generally you lose because you make pitches you shouldn't have made. An example was the 0-2 pitch I threw to (Bobby) Grich that he hit for the single in the first inning."

In the other games, Kansas City edged Minnesota 3-2, Texas nipped Oakland 7-6, California routed Chicago 14-4, Boston edged Detroit 5-4 and New York beat Milwaukee 4-3.

Red Sox 5, Tigers 4

Luis Tiant won his fifth straight complete game victory to pick up his 16th triumph and tie Wilbur Wood for the league lead as the Red Sox downed the Tigers.

Royals 3, Twins 2

Amos Otis' two-run homer in the ninth lifted Kansas City to the victory over Minnesota.

Yanks 4, Brewers 3

Dick Tidrow and Sparky Lyle combined for a six-hitter to lift the Yanks to te triumph over Milwaukee.

Angels 14, White Sox 4

Designated hitter Frank Robinson drove in three runs with a pair of doubles to lead California to the triumph over the White Sox.

Rookies, Free Agents In 49ers' Lineup

GOLETA, Calif. (UPI) — San Francisco 49er coach Dick Nolan has announced a starting lineup for Saturday night's exhibition game in San Diego that — assuming the National Football League players strike is settled — won't bear much resemblance on the regular season's lineup.

Two veterans who reported last week, defensive end Cedrick Hardman and linebacker Willie Harper, will be starting, but Nolan said they wouldn't play very long.

Otherwise, the 49ers will go with a variety of rookies and free agents, few of whom even figure to be around once the veterans report.

Rookie Tom Owen of Wichita will start at quarterback.

Top draft picks running back Wilbur Jackson and defensive tackle Bill Sandifer will both sit out the game, with Sandifer doubtful for most of the season following a knee operation.

Jackson has a severe ankle sprain and is not expected to play for three or four weeks.

Nolan says the big rookie from Minnesota has shown "tremendous" blocking ability and a good ability to catch the ball, although he doesn't have great speed.

Running backs against San Diego will include Delvin Williams and Roy Snell with Mike Bettiga and Clint Haselrig as wide receivers.

One rarity may find Vic Washington, the 49ers' top rusher the past two seasons, getting a shot at defensive safety.

Oakland, Dallas May Wage War Through Air

OAKLAND (UPI) — There should be some flashy passing statistics Saturday night when Dallas and Oakland clash here in the National Football League exhibition opener.

That's because veteran Dallas quarterback Craig Morton and Raiders' star Ken Stabler both have crossed the picket lines and will start for their respective teams.

What's more, Morton will have veteran Golden Richards at one wide receiver spot, while Stabler will be able to throw to Fred Biletnikoff, the veteran who is 18th on the NFL's all-time reception list.

Stabler will hand off to 11th-round draft pick Harold Hart and nine-year veteran Pete Banaszak at running backs.

Proceeds will go to the 20-30 Club of Petaluma for charitable activities in the area. Qualifying begins at 7:30, with the first race at 8:15.

Stargell, Seaver To Play Key Roles in Flag Chase

By UNITED PRESS INTERNATIONAL

It has now become increasingly clear: Willie Stargell and Tom Seaver, two superstars who have gone their separate ways when the season-end baseball writers awards are given out, will once again play key roles in outcome of the National League Eastern division mini-pennant race.

The Pittsburgh Pirates and New York Mets — who've traded NL East titles back and forth since the inception of the two-division set-up, completed a three-game series yesterday with the Bucs taking an 8-3 decision.

But besides giving the Pirates two out of three at Shea Stadium, yesterday's "rubber" game also focused clearly on Stargell and Seaver.

Elsewhere in the NL, Montreal swept a doubleheader from Chicago, 7-4 and 4-0, St. Louis outlasted Philadelphia 9-8, Cincinnati blanked Houston 4-0, Atlanta whitewashed San Francisco 9-0 and Los Angeles rocked San Diego, 15-4.

Stargell, who in the last three years has suffered two bitter setbacks in the NL most valuable player sweepstakes, put the Pirates on their way with a two-run homer in the first inning. Seaver, winner of two Cy Young awards, was bombed for 12 hits and eight runs in 4 1-3 innings to suffer his seventh loss.

Dodgers 15, Padres 4

Ron Cey hit a pair of three-run home runs and drove in eight runs to set a Los Angeles club record as the Dodgers overwhelmed the Padres.

Cardinals 9, Phillies 8

A pair of big innings plus the gutty pitching of veteran Bob Gibson pushed the Cardinals into a first place tie with the Phils in the topsy-turvy East race.

Reds 4, Astros 0

Cincy southpaw Don Gullett twirled a two-hitter to gain his 13th win of the season against seven losses. The Reds bunched all their runs in the second and third innings, while Johnny Bench and Cesar Geronimo had two hits apiece and each scored a run.

Expos 7-4, Cubs 4-0

Rookie righthander Dennis Blair combined with reliever John Mantague on a two-hitter in the nightcap, while Mike Jorgensen drove in five runs — all of them unearned to power the Expos in the opener.

AMERICAN LEAGUE

Bad Times For Gaylord

By UNITED PRESS INTERNATIONAL

Perry, who hasn't won since July 3, was shelled for six runs in four innings by the Baltimore Orioles Wednesday night as he failed in his fifth try for his 16th victory. The Orioles wound up with a 7-4 triumph over Cleveland.

Back on July 3, Perry won his 15th straight victory to boost his record to 15-1. He was one game away from tying the American League record for consecutive victories. Now he's 15-5 and has lost four straight.

Perry is philosophical about it all.

"Generally you lose because you make pitches you shouldn't have made. An example was the 0-2 pitch I threw to (Bobby) Grich that he hit for the single in the first inning."

In the other games, Kansas City edged Minnesota 3-2, Texas nipped Oakland 7-6, California routed Chicago 14-4, Boston edged Detroit 5-4 and New York beat Milwaukee 4-3.

Red Sox 5, Tigers 4

Luis Tiant won his fifth straight complete game victory to pick up his 16th triumph and tie Wilbur Wood for the league lead as the Red Sox downed the Tigers.

Royals 3, Twins 2

Amos Otis' two-run homer in the ninth lifted Kansas City to the victory over Minnesota.

Yanks 4, Brewers 3

Dick Tidrow and Sparky Lyle combined for a six-hitter to lift the Yanks to te triumph over Milwaukee.

Angels 14, White Sox 4

Designated hitter Frank Robinson drove in three runs with a pair of doubles to lead California to the triumph over the White Sox.

Royals Obtain Veteran Cepeda

Combined AP & UPI

KANSAS CITY, Mo. — The Kansas City Royals reported yesterday the acquisition of Orlando Cepeda, who hit .289 last season for the Boston Red Sox as a designated hitter while plagued by a knee ailment.

Cepeda became a free agent when he drew his release from Boston last March. The Red Sox used him last season exclusively as a designated hitter. He ranked second among all designated hitters in runs batted in, homers, doubles, hits and at bats. He hit 20 home runs and drove in 86 runs.

The 36-year-old Cepeda ranks 19th on the all-time major league home run list with 378 in a career which dates back to 1958 when he started with the San Francisco Giants and became a unanimous choice for national league rookie of the year.

Italian Club, which has already clinched the Southern Division of the Marin-Sonoma Joe DiMaggio Baseball League, whipped Annex Motors, 10-3 yesterday, and Bank of Marin and Toby's Truckers played to a 1-1, 10-inning tie.

It was a pitchers' duel when Bank of Marin and Toby's locked horns, Bank of Marin's Mike Bird hurling a no-hitter for six innings. He struck out 10. Toby's pitcher, Tom Cronin fanned 14 batters. The game was called after 10 innings because of darkness.

Ilana Kloss Lifts Gaters By Chicago

OAKLAND (UPI) — The Golden Gaters, two games down going into the final mixed doubles, pulled out a 6-3 win for a 25-24 World Team Tennis victory over Chicago.

Frew McMillen and Ilana Kloss, the star of last night, took the key match from Kim Warwick and Janet Young of Chicago.

Sue Stap beat Leslie Hunt of the Gaters and Miss Hunt and Miss Kloss topped Miss Stap and Miss Young to give the Gaters a one-point lead after three matches.

But then Graham Stillwell and Warwick downed McMillen Bohrnstedt in men's doubles to set up the final confrontation in mixed doubles.

"I don't think Ilana missed two shots all night. She was super," said a Gaters' spokesman afterwards. A crowd of 1,716 watched the action.

N.L. Umpire Pelekoudas In Fair Condition

PHILADELPHIA (UPI) — National League umpire Chris Pelekoudas was reported in fair condition at Methodist Hospital early today, suffering from hypertension and high blood pressure.

Pelekoudas, 56, was rushed to the hospital when he fell ill in the second inning of the Philadelphia-St. Louis game last night.

A spokeswoman at the hospital said Pelekoudas, a resident of Sunnyvale, Calif., did not suffer a heart attack or stroke as was first believed by some onlookers at Veterans Stadium.

"He has been admitted to the hospital," the spokeswoman said. "He has hypertension and high blood pressure."

Training Program In America's Cup

NEWPORT, R.I. (UPI) — Alan Bond, the real estate developer from Australia who is sponsoring that nation's America's Cup challenge, yesterday ordered all crewmembers to go on a strict training program.

Bond set a midnight curfew for all hands and ordered daily exercises at 6 a.m., hoping to get the crew in top-notch shape to challenge America's supremacy in yachting's most famous series.

The Australians, with an average age of about 28, are the oldest among the competitiors, but all are veterans of yacht racing. The youngest member of the team is Rod "Rat" Sterling, 24, competing in his second America's Cup challenge.

By comparison, the average age of the American crewmembers for defending champion Intrepid and challenger Courageous is about 25, while the youngest of the crews is the French group, averaging about 21, with none having anything more than preliminary trial experience.

Observers also report that it appears the Australians are concentrating more and more on Southern Cross as the likely vessel to make that nation's challenge. The last time out for the two boats, Sunday, Southern Cross beat Gretel II by 8½ minutes.

The ships ran six legs of onehalf mile each, meaning the sail handlers had to perform about 150 maneuvers.

Following the practices, the crews and the observers compared notes in an effort to choreograph each maneuver to perfection.

It was also announced that the other United States' hopeful, Mariner, was expected to return to Newport on Saturday.

Knicks Top Benecia In Baseball

BENECIA — Novato Knickerbockers downed Benecia Industries, 6-3, yesterday in a Sacramento Rural League baseball game.

Novato pitcher Ken Siler struck out 17 and walked six in hurling his four-hit victory. Key blow of the game was a two-run double by Tom Conklin in the third inning. It put Novato ahead, 3-2, a lead it never relinquished.

Novato's league record is now 11 wins, 6 losses, two games behind division leading Santa Rosa (9-4).

Frazer Well Practiced For Tourney Of Champs

(Last of a six part series)

If George Frazer fails to win the eighth annual Marin County Tournament of Champions, it won't be because he hasn't practiced.

Frazer, nine time club champion at Meadow Club in Fairfax, plays on the average five times a week. So he'll be anything but rusty when he faces the club champs of Marin's five other regulation courses Sunday at San Geronimo National.

Sponsored by the Independent-Journal, the TOC is played on a rotating basis at all the courses. Last year at Indian Valley in Novato, Frazer finished in a tie for third with a 76.

The man he tied, Al Randig of Indian Valley, and Mat Palacio Jr., of Novato's Marin Country Club, who came in second and won the event in 1971, will also be in the field. The other three golfers will be first-timers: Jim Sherbert of San Geronimo, Elmo Petterlo of Peacock Gap in San Rafael, and Dave Cardy of Mill Valley.

Frazer, a retired real estate broker who lives in Daly City, carries a six handicap. Palacio is lowest with a two, followed by Cardy with a three and Sherbert with a five.

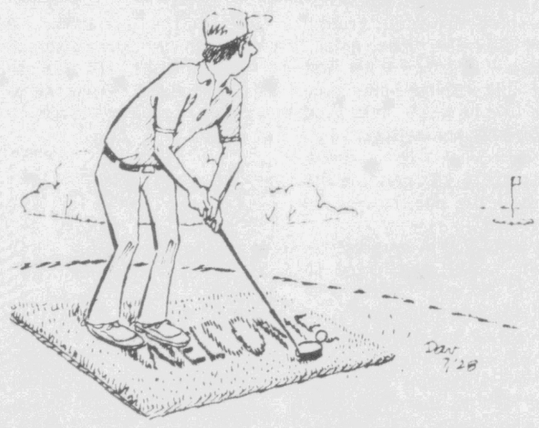
TREVINO TALKS GOLF



Those Matty Tracks

By LEE TREVINO

To be perfectly honest, some guys play matty fairways — where the turf is heavily thatched — better than I do because I beat down on the ball so hard.

Sometimes this makes the divot curl instead of fly, so the ball doesn't come off of it crisp. Well, there's different strokes for different blokes, which explains the opposing methods that Gary Player and I use on matty fairways.

Gary moves the ball up for these shots, and I play it back. It's hard to criticize a man who's won every major tournament, so I won't. He plays the ball forward, with his hands slightly behind the ball, and hits it a little cleaner than on a normal swing.

That's Gary's way. But a pro can sweep the ball off the thatch where the ordinary golfer will skull it into the next county.

My method is to play the shot from well back in the stance. The reason is that matty fairways catch the heel of the club first — like shooting from tall rough — and smothers the ball.

Choke down a mite on the grip for better club control. As you get closer to the green, shorten your swing to about three-quarters. You'll get a cleaner contact.

Stock Trading Dull With Mixed Returns

NEW YORK (UPI) — Stock prices turned mixed on the New York Stock Exchange early today in the aftermath of a five-day losing streak. Trading was dull.

Declining issues still held a strong lead over gainers, however, 602 to 397, among the 1,420 issues traded. Most stock groups were mixed in fractions with only the airlines showing general improvement. Oils took small losses with Getty, Halliburton and Kerr-McGee showing drops of more than a point.

Blue chips also registered marginal changes of less than a point in either direction.

Concern over inflation and the possibility of a further hike in record high interest rates apparently dampened investor enthusiasm.

Weekly bank loan and short-term interest rate figures due to be released after the market close could provide a clue as to the immediate path of interest rates.

Stocks on the American Exchange declined slightly in quiet trading. Standard Metals, the volume leader, rose ⅛ to 6 ⅛ on 19,100 shares.

SUCCESSFUL INVESTING

Income Sought In Bond Issues

By ROGER E. SPEAR

Q. I have $50,000 in cash to invest for income and safety. I am interested in purchasing some high rated bonds. Would you recommend two or three issues? — W.C.

A. Bell Telephone Company of Pennsylvania has recently offered $175 million in 9⅝ per cent debentures due July 15, 2014. Rated AAA, this issue is trading just under par to yield 9.65 per cent to maturity. Virginia Electric & Power has also marketed an attractive issue carrying a 10½ per cent coupon. This A-rated first mortgage bond is due July 1, 1983, but is call-protected to 1982. In recent trading, this bond has changed hands at just above par value. In the more seasoned sector, Philadelphia Electric 8¼s of 1996 has investment merit. This first mortgage bond is double A rated and is currently trading around 83. At this discounted price, the NYSE-listed bond yields 9.9 per cent currently.

Q. I am contemplating purchasing shares of Pacific Telephone & Telegraph (NYSE). I would like your opinion of this stock. — A.T.

A. Despite the 8.6 per cent yield currently available on these shares, I would be inclined to look elsewhere for income and/or growth investments. In the first half through May, earnings were off 13 per cent on an 11 per cent increase in common shares outstanding, while revenues gained 8 per cent. Thus, dividend coverage narrowed somewhat in the six-month period. Operating in a less-than-generous regulatory climate, Pacific has filed for a $290 million rate increase, while the California Public Utilities Commission has recommended a $114 million cut. However, some compromise proposal will undoubtedly be forthcoming. Without some meaningful rate relief, Pacific's earnings will be below the $1.59 per share of 1973.

The company plans to spend $975 million for construction this year. In June, a $250 million bond offering was marketed and an equity offering may be forthcoming soon to finance these expenditures. Additional debt and/or equity offerings are probable before year-end, further burdening the company's profit performance. Shares should be avoided for the present.

New French Coffee Shop Will Open In San Rafael In August

La Patisserie, a new coffee shop featuring French pastries and rolls, will open about mid-August at 1335 Fourth Street in San Rafael, the present site of Little Vienna pastry shop and coffee house.

Little Vienna, operated by Ziegfried Heidtke of San Rafael for nine and one-half years, closed yesterday. Heidtke said he plans to take it easy for a few months and has made no definite plans beyond that.

Owner of the new La Patisserie (which means pastry shop in French) will be Jean Lassus, who has owned the Le Bistro restaurant in San Anselmo, 417 San Anselmo Avenue next to the former Home Market, for the past four and one-half years. Lassus will operate both the Le Bistro and his new shop in San Rafael.

The new La Patisserie will serve coffee, pastries and rolls, featuring such items as croissants and brioches, favorite morning rolls in France. Lassus said he is remodeling the former Little Vienna site and should be ready to open about Aug. 15.

Hours at the La Patisserie will be from 8 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. Monday through Saturday.

ALBA'S FASHIONS, formerly located at 1125 Grant Avenue in Novato, has moved three blocks to 1417 Grant Avenue (former Mode O'Day location) in the Town and Country shopping center.

Alba's Fashions, established two years ago in Novato, features misses and half sizes "with the young look." Owner Alba Silva of Petaluma said her new store is much larger than the former shop, has plenty of parking, and allows her to give her customers better and more personalized service.

BOYD LANG, Marin realtor and contractor, has been appointed vice president and manager of the Marin County division of Corinthian Realty. Herb Samuels, president of the Marin and Sonoma County general brokerage firm, announced the appointment.

Lang was trained in his father's chain of about a dozen San Francisco offices and was also responsible for numerous investor-financed projects including motels, condominiums and single-family residential developments.

Corinthian Realty plans to move into its new quarters at 700 E Street in San Rafael when the building is completed later this month.

WINONA AMERICA Indian Trading Post at 814 Grant Avenue in Novato, next to the Novato Art Center, will move on Sept. 15 to Santa Fe, New Mex.

Pierre and Sylvia Bovis, who opened their store three and one-half years ago, specialize in various artifacts, books and hobbyist supplies. Bovis, an appraiser of Indian artifacts, has published books on American Indian and Eskimo basketry. Winona Trading Post is a mail order supplier and puts out a Book Catalog of more than 600 titles and a Supplies Catalog of Indian hobbyist supplies.

The Bovises announced that Santa Fe is a mecca for students and collectors of Indian lore, and their new store will be in the midst of 19 Indian pueblos.

"We hope our friends and customers will drop into Winona Trading Post in Santa Fe," said Bovis. Their new address will be PO Box 324, Santa Fe, New Mex., 87501.

MILDRED HOWIE, Marin County writer and publicist, won a third place award from the National Federation of Press Women for her work on the brochure, "California—A State of Involvement" produced for the California Arts Commission.

GEORGE J. STOLTZ of Kentfield has joined Bernadette Talbott Advertising in San Francisco as an account executive.

A veteran of 12 years in the advertising industry, Stoltz moves from radio station KFOG-FM in San Francisco. He also held management and sales positions with Volkswagen, American Broadcasting Co. and the broadcasting division of RKO.

SEVEN MARIN County agents are members of the 1974 Top Club of New York Life Insurance Company.

They are William V. Brody, Arthur P. Brody, Cyrus J. Shaw, and Jack R. DeBruin, all of San Rafael; Lowell Zellers and Cesare M. Nencini of Mill Valley; and Rolland R. Pieper of Petaluma. They have qualified to attend an educational conference in Vancouver, B.C. Top Club membership is based on 1973-74 sales records.

Taxable Sales Rise In Marin

Taxable sales in Marin County for the first quarter of 1974 were up 5.7 per cent for a total of $119,884,000, but the increase was due to higher prices and not to increased volume, according to State Board of Equalization member William M. Bennett.

Sales in the principal cities in the county were: San Rafael $53,830,000; Novato $11,218,000; Corte Madera $9,617,000; and Sausalito $8,950,000. In Southern Sonoma County, Petaluma had taxable sales of $16,821,000.

Statewide, the consumer prices during the first quarter of 1974 averaged about 8.5 per cent above the level of the comparable quarter in 1973. Prices of food for home consumption were up 17 per cent over the previous year.

Stock Trading Dull With Mixed Returns

NEW YORK (UPI) — Stock prices turned mixed on the New York Stock Exchange early today in the aftermath of a five-day losing streak. Trading was dull.

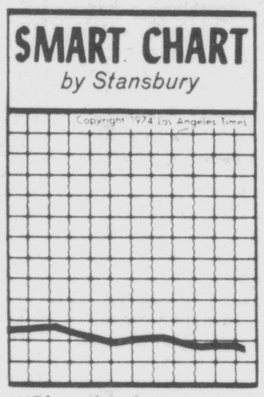
Declining issues still held a strong lead over gainers, however, 602 to 397, among the 1,420 issues traded. Most stock groups were mixed in fractions with only the airlines showing general improvement. Oils took small losses with Getty, Halliburton and Kerr-McGee showing drops of more than a point.

Blue chips also registered marginal changes of less than a point in either direction.

Concern over inflation and the possibility of a further hike in record high interest rates apparently dampened investor enthusiasm.

Weekly bank loan and short-term interest rate figures due to be released after the market close could provide a clue as to the immediate path of interest rates.

Stocks on the American Exchange declined slightly in quiet trading. Standard Metals, the volume leader, rose ⅛ to 6 ⅛ on 19,100 shares.



"The chief says our most valuable asset is people. Why don't we trade a few for money."

Acquisition Pact

SAN DIEGO (BW) — The Wickes Corp. (NYSE) has reached an agreement in principle regarding a proposed acquisition of World Service Life Insurance Co., according to a joint announcement.

SUCCESSFUL INVESTING

Income Sought In Bond Issues

By ROGER E. SPEAR

Q. I have $50,000 in cash to invest for income and safety. I am interested in purchasing some high rated bonds. Would you recommend two or three issues? — W.C.

A. Bell Telephone Company of Pennsylvania has recently offered $175 million in 9⅝ per cent debentures due July 15, 2014. Rated AAA, this issue is trading just under par to yield 9.65 per cent to maturity Virginia Electric & Power has also marketed an attractive issue carrying a 10½ per cent coupon. This A-rated first mortgage bond is due July 1, 1983, but is call-protected to 1982. In recent trading, this bond has changed hands at just above par value. In the more seasoned sector, Philadelphia Electric 8¼s of 1996 has investment merit. This first mortgage bond is double A rated and is currently trading around 83. At this discounted price, the NYSE-listed bond yields 9.9 per cent currently.

Q. I am contemplating purchasing shares of Pacific Telephone & Telegraph (NYSE). I would like your opinion of this stock. — A.T.

A. Despite the 8.6 per cent yield currently available on these shares, I would be inclined to look elsewhere for income and/or growth investments. In the first half through May, earnings were off 13 per cent on an 11 per cent increase in common shares outstanding, while revenues gained 8 per cent. Thus, dividend coverage narrowed somewhat in the six-month period. Operating in a less-than-generous regulatory climate, Pacific has filed for a $290 million rate increase, while the California Public Utilities Commission has recommended a $114 million cut. However, some compromise proposal will undoubtedly be forthcoming. Without some meaningful rate relief, Pacific's earnings will be below the $1.59 per share of 1973.

The company plans to spend $975 million for construction this year. In June, a $250 million bond offering was marketed and an equity offering may be forthcoming soon to finance these expenditures. Additional debt and/or equity offerings are probable before year-end, further burdening the company's profit performance. Shares should be avoided for the present.

New French Coffee Shop Will Open In San Rafael In August

La Patisserie, a new coffee shop featuring French pastries and rolls, will open about mid-August at 1335 Fourth Street in San Rafael, the present site of Little Vienna pastry shop and coffee house.

Little Vienna, operated by Ziegfried Heidtke of San Rafael for nine and one-half years, closed yesterday. Heidtke said he plans to take it easy for a few months and has made no definite plans beyond that.

Owner of the new La Patisserie (which means pastry shop in French) will be Jean Lassus, who has owned the Le Bistro restaurant in San Anselmo, 417 San Anselmo Avenue next to the former Home Market, for the past four and one-half years. Lassus will operate both the Le Bistro and his new shop in San Rafael.

The new La Patisserie will serve coffee, pastries and rolls, featuring such items as croissants and brioches, favorite morning rolls in France. Lassus said he is remodeling the former Little Vienna site and should be ready to open about Aug. 15.

Hours at the La Patisserie will be from 8 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. Monday through Saturday.

ALBA'S FASHIONS, formerly located at 1125 Grant Avenue in Novato, has moved three blocks to 1417 Grant Avenue (former Mode O'Day location) in the Town and Country shopping center.

Alba's Fashions, established two years ago in Novato, features misses and half sizes "with the young look." Owner Alba Silva of Petaluma said her new store is much larger than the former shop, has plenty of parking, and allows her to give her customers better and more personalized service.

BOYD LANG, Marin realtor and contractor, has been appointed vice president and manager of the Marin County division of Corinthian Realty. Herb Samuels, president of the Marin and Sonoma County general brokerage firm, announced the appointment.

Lang was trained in his father's chain of about a dozen San Francisco offices and was also responsible for numerous investor-financed projects including motels, condominiums and single-family residential developments.

Corinthian Realty plans to move into its new quarters at 700 E Street in San Rafael when the building is completed later this month.

WINONA AMERICA Indian Trading Post at 814 Grant Avenue in Novato, next to the Novato Art Center, will move on Sept. 15 to Santa Fe, New Mex.

Pierre and Sylvia Bovis, who opened their store three and one-half years ago, specialize in various artifacts, books and hobbyist supplies. Bovis, an appraiser of Indian artifacts, has published books on American Indian and Eskimo basketry. Winona Trading Post is a mail order supplier and puts out a Book Catalog of more than 600 titles and a Supplies Catalog of Indian hobbyist supplies.

The Bovises announced that Santa Fe is a mecca for students and collectors of Indian lore, and their new store will be in the midst of 19 Indian pueblos.

"We hope our friends and customers will drop into Winona Trading Post in Santa Fe," said Bovis. Their new address will be PO Box 324, Santa Fe, New Mex., 87501.

MILDRED HOWIE, Marin County writer and publicist, won a third place award from the National Federation of Press Women for her work on the brochure, "California—A State of Involvement" produced for the California Arts Commission.

GEORGE J. STOLTZ of Kentfield has joined Bernadette Talbott Advertising in San Francisco as an account executive.

A veteran of 12 years in the advertising industry, Stoltz moves from radio station KFOG-FM in San Francisco. He also held management and sales positions with Volkswagen, American Broadcasting Co. and the broadcasting division of RKO.

SEVEN MARIN County agents are members of the 1974 Top Club of New York Life Insurance Company.

They are William V. Brody, Arthur P. Brody, Cyrus J. Shaw, and Jack R. DeBruin, all of San Rafael; Lowell Zellers and Cesare M. Nencini of Mill Valley; and Rolland R. Pieper of Petaluma. They have qualified to attend an educational conference in Vancouver, B.C. Top Club membership is based on 1973-74 sales records.

Taxable Sales Rise In Marin

Taxable sales in Marin County for the first quarter of 1974 were up 5.7 per cent for a total of $119,884,000, but the increase was due to higher prices and not to increased volume, according to State Board of Equalization member William M. Bennett.

Sales in the principal cities in the county were: San Rafael $53,830,000; Novato $11,218,000; Corte Madera $9,617,000; and Sausalito $8,950,000. In Southern Sonoma County, Petaluma had taxable sales of $16,821,000.

Statewide, the consumer prices during the first quarter of 1974 averaged about 8.5 per cent above the level of the comparable quarter in 1973. Prices of food for home consumption were up 17 per cent over the previous year.

State Should Plug Food Stamp Abuses

California's welfare chief is urging reforms to plug the "appalling lack of accountability" in the food stamp program.

David Swoap, director of the Department of Benefit Payments, told newsmen at a Sacramento press conference that his recommendations for reform have been forwarded to Governor Reagan. If initiated, Swoap said the recommendations could save taxpayers $200 million in federal, state and county funds.

There are 1.3 million Californians receiving food stamps at a cost of $420 million a year to the federal government. Nationwide, the growth of the food stamp program has been rapid. As recently as 1971, it cost only $1.6 billion, but this year it is programmed for more than $4 billion. The number of people receiving food stamps nationwide rose from 6.5 million in 1970 to 13.6 million at latest count.

REFORMS TO save taxpayers' money are particularly welcome at this time, when spiralling food costs are pricing many staple food products beyond the reach of the average wage-earner. Food stamps (food dollars bought at discount) artificially increase the supply of food purchasing power and therefore contribute to price rises, as more money competes for the same amount of food commodities.

It may be argued that the demands on food staples are not affected by the amount of food stamps issued because people must have the bare necessities, stamps or no stamps. That may be true in theory, but in actual practice, we suspect that stamps do get into the hands of the undeserving and contribute to the inflationary trend.

FURTHERMORE, the laxity in the food stamp and in other public aid programs in the state encourages migration into California and contribute to the population pressures that are taxing our schools and housing facilities. Experts are predicting that California's current population of 21 million can double, to 43 million, in the next 45 years. That figure is predicated on an annual migration of 150,000 into the state.

Reforms in the food stamp program should not, and we are sure, will not victimize or harass individuals and families who are deserving. But a crackdown is overdue on the well-to-do or the children of the well-to-do who find loopholes to cash in on the program while the elderly and the moderate income families do without to stretch the inflated dollar.

MR. SWOAP'S recommendations include tightening of eligibility requirements for college students who are receiving food stamps, more accountability and stricter control to insure that the stamps are reaching their proper destinations.

The public must depend on state and county officials to crack down on abuses in this field because individual citizens are in no position to help spot violations.

WHENEVER WE see others in the grocery line paying for cartloads of fruits, vegetables, and meat with food stamps, we have a right to some assurance that they are more deserving than we of the public aid that we are helping to provide.

"The nearest thing to good news these days is when the bad news doesn't get any worse."

Women Physically Unsuited For Patrolling Of Highways

By EARL G. WATERS

Unfortunately for those who work sincerely for equal pay for equal work as it applies to the sexes, the activists in the so-called womens liberation movements constantly seem to be engaged in attempts to change what God created.

In failing to recognize that there are basic differences between man and woman, which no human can legislate otherwise, such activists more often harm than aid the cause of equal pay for equal work.

For, with reckless abandon, they seek to install women in jobs which can best or only be filled by men. Such an example is that of women seeking jobs as state traffic officers.

THERE ARE PLACES in law enforcement where women can perform as well as men, such as criminal identification and many types of investigations. Those doors should be wide open to the female sex. But when it comes to restraining violent, ruthless criminals, few women, if any, are physically or mentally suited.

And, there are assignments in the Highway Patrol which can just as well be handled by women. Such things as weigh stations and auto safety inspections are among them. However, claiming women can function as highway patrolmen because of such assignments ignores the fact that those duties are below the qualifications of state traffic officers and should not now be performed by such highly paid personnel. The patrol already has come to that conclusion regarding weigh stations and has nearly phased out the use of patrolmen in favor of lower paid civilian personnel.

BUT IN THEIR basic job of patrolling the highways the awful fact is that the state traffic officer is constantly exposed to the hazard of confrontations with desperate armed criminals. Despite this the Patrol has been mandated by the legislature to launch a pilot program to determine the practicality of employing women as state traffic officers.

To get things underway the Patrol recently held an examination to select 40 women for the pilot program. Some 1400 applicants participated in a written examination held exclusively for the women, followed by a physical fitness test. The physical test was not the same as that given to men. It was a special test, devised by the University as more suitable for women. That in itself was a recognition that women are different and cannot be judged equally or expected to possess the same strength as men.

THE VERY FACT that the written examination was held just for the women applicants thwarts the theory of equality. Since appointments to the patrol are made on the basis of those scoring the highest in a given test, true equality could only be demonstrated by having the men and women competing freely in the same exam at the same time. But, in demanding equality, the women want to be accorded special treatment. And that is the point which destroys their claims of equality.

On the women's side there are few professions or occupations where a difference in sex has any relationshiy to the ability to do the job. And those choosing one to do the job should be blindfolded as to sex. Women who attempt to force their way into those few jobs which are particularly and exclusively suited to men make themselves appear ridiculous

FOR THOSE who need specific examples, a woman can serve as a judge, governor or president just as well as a man. But one would hardly advocate a woman attendant in a men's room or a man cateringto the ladies in the sanctity of the powder room.

CAPITOL QUIPS

By PHIL DESSAUER

Gerald Ford's happiest thought is that if impeachment should come to a vote there's no way he'd have to break a tie.

Some of the pro-Nixon people wish they'd never said impeachment was the only proper way to deal with Watergate.

News reporters in Washington are stubborn. They refuse to agree that Richard Nixon's troubles began with the invention of the printing press.

There are all kinds of crime, but experts agree the greatest white collar offense is a dirty neck.

55 Mile Speed Limit Makes Good Sense

In all the various articles concerning retaining or cancelling the 55 Miles per hour speed limit I have not seen any reference to two pertinent facts.

1. The high cost of imported oil has turned our international trade balance back to red ink.

2. There is no assurance that we will not be faced again with an oil embargo.

Does it not seem good sense to conserve fuel? And one way to conserve fuel is to cut down on high speed. At the same time, I understand, it cuts down on air polution.

Recently I made a round trip to Bellingham, Wash. and stuck to the 55 mile limit. Not once did I suffer the experience of being harassed by speeders, as stated in a recent article by a columnist whose name escapes me. I do agree with his statement that the trucks are the worst offenders, and not once did I see a truck halted by the highway patrol officer.

Cities Should Not Tax To Maximum

Recently I read an article in the Independent-Journal in which the city manager of Larkspur criticized the county assessor relative to estimates made by the assessor's ofice of the assessed valuation for the City of Larkspur.

Apparently the assessor's estimated assessed valuation was higher than they actual turned out to be. The result of this difference was that the City of Larkspur had to reduce its budget to coincide with levying the maximum tax rate times the actual assessed valuation.

It seems to me that it is an irresponsible act for the City of Larkspur to attempt to set thier budget at the maximum amount allowable rather than at the amount actually needed to operate the City of Larkspur. With approximately three-fourths of the Marin homeowners having been reassessed dramatically, the tax bills would be "out of sight" if every public entity followed the City of Larkspur's maximum-tax-rate approach.

The current estimated assessed valuation of Larkspur (after the correction) is 9½ per cent higher than the preceding year. Surely this should be enough to meet the required operating costs without further "socking it to the taxpayer."

Housing Districts Would Do The Job

Your Article, this date, "County eyes Housing Unit Shift" bears the need of comment.

It is believed that the formation of "housing districts" can best serve the purpose of the people in need of assistance in the low-medium bracket and the small homeowners existing on their meagre pensions and limited income.

The President has recommended that the government get out of the housing buisness. Mr. George E. Romney, former director of HUD, resigned in protest of the absolute waste of hundreds of millions of dollars by mismanagement in this bureaucracy.

A housing district would be representative of the people they serve and preserve the basis of local autonomy in their association with all other local agencies.

Historically, this system was most successful for our Pilgrim forefathers and native Americans.

Wage Hikes Add To Economic Decline

"A worker is entitled to that which he produces" is a statement few would deny.

However, it is unfair to the community, when workers demand, not only the goods they themselves produce, but also those things in which they had no part in creating.

Wages are fair, only when they provide replacements, in keeping with their consumption, otherwise we have a wasting economy.

Recognizing the purpose of wages, should enable us to understand how wage hikes are adding to the nation's economic deterioration, simply because they do not replace that which they consume.

The impact of this diminution of supply is not readily recognizable in the economy, because its loss in value is covered by taking from the elderly, what which, required life times of hard work and savings in their creation.

If we are ever to correct our economic difficulties, we must realize that no economy can give people what they want, only what they produce.

Big Labor's Political Funds Back Democratic Campaigns

(Reprinted from The Detroit News)

At a time of unparalleled public resentment of special-interest pressures in U.S. politics, we learn that organized labor has poured more than $1 million into the 1974 political campaigns and will bring another $5 million or more to bear as needed.

This political fund, supplemented by "educational" money provided from union dues and by the free services of union volunteers and political specialists, will go largely to the campaigns of Democratic candidates for the U.S. House and Senate.

When you consider how deeply obligated to organized labor many Democratic candidates will be, if elected, you begin to understand what union leaders mean when they talk of their desire to see the country elect a "veto-proof" Congress.

A Congress so lopsided that it couldn't be restrained by a presidential veto would be bad enough under any circumstances. It would be an absolute disaster if its majority were heavily indebted to a voracious and demanding special-interest group, such as the leadership of organized labor.

The presidential veto is a valuable safeguard against congressional irresponsibility; it gives the public a court of last resort against bad legislation; it helps preserve the principle of the separation of powers.

Americans in recent months have been made aware, with vigorous help from congressional Democrats, of the hazards of irresponsible use of power. After witnessing that irresponsibility in the executive branch, will the country readily hand unbridled power to Congress?

As the politicians of organized labor warm up their money machine, the Gallup Poll reports the percentage of Americans calling themselves Republicans has fallen to an all-time low. In view of Watergate, this comes as no real surprise. The dirt on a handful of offenders has rubbed off on an entire political party, smearing the innocent along with the guilty.

Consequently, organized labor senses a rare opportunity which it intends to exploit to the full. Although most of the dropouts from the Republican Party have moved for the moment into the "independent" column, they may well be ripe for the plucking by labor-backed Democratic candidates.

Clearly, the GOP faces disaster unless in the coming months it can persuade the voters to distinguish between the Republican White House and that separate and distinct Republican Party which resides outside the White House gates. And if a GOP disaster ushers in a veto-proof Congress, the worst effects of that disaster will be felt in time by the entire nation.

Voting Delay Could Improve Nixon's Chance Of Acquittal

WASHINGTON — It was Rep. Lawrence Hogan Jr. of Maryland who put in perspective the descent of the House judiciary committee into wrangle and pettifog after the first day of noble exposition. Now, he said, we're letting the public see what our closed sessions have been like.

Yet when the final vote came on Article 1, the sense of solemn responsibility was restored.

WHATEVER THE motives, the delaying tactics of Rep. Charles W. Sandman Jr. of New Jersey and the others slowing action on what was inevitable from the first test vote did nothing to help President Nixon's cause. The public has had Watergate right up to the neck. To wake up and discover one fine morning that it has gone away is the dream of most Americans.

In the closed circle around the President there seems little or no understanding of the public mood. As so often, White House tactics are self-defeating.

The President's counsel, James St. Clair, in responding to the 8-to-0 Supreme Court decision, spoke of how monitoring the 64 tapes and readying them for the grand jury would be "time consuming." It is fair to ask why these steps were not taken long before in preparation of just this eventuality.

THE GRIM ORDEAL of impeachment still has months to go and that raises the question of how the House handles the case. If the articles of impeachment come to the floor with a rule permitting amendments, debate can go on for far more than the 60 to 100 hours which is the outside estimate. That will be true particularly if television in the House encourages grandstanding for constituents back in the districts.

The truly grim prospect is the appalling length of time the process will take under the best of circumstances. From those anticipating a vote of impeachment in the House and trying to make the essential plans, here is a probable timetable.

SHORT OF stalling tactics, the House will meet the announced deadline and vote on Aug. 23. The Senate will then go immediately into executive session to confirm the housekeeping details. This includes seating of visitors and press, the requirements of television and other matters governing the trial of a president for only the second time in history.

Most important in the closed session will be the vote on the time granted the President to prepare his defense. Majority Leader Mike Mansfield puts this at a maximum of three weeks. Minority Leader Hugh Scott believes it will be not less than four weeks.

WITH THAT OUT of the way, the Senate in open televised session will hear the House managers, the term in the Constitution for the Representatives who will in effect be prosecutors, to present the formal charges. That will take perhaps a full day.

After an over-Labor Day recess the Senate comes back to normal business until both prosecution and defense have completed their respective cases. This means start of the actual trial on Oct. 1. Optimists, Mansfield among them, say a vote can come as early as Nov. 15. This allows for a three-day recess for the Nov. 5 election.

THE PESSIMISTS, of whom Scott is one, are convinced the final vote on acquittal or conviction will be Dec. 15 or later.

Hints are coming from White House strategists that if the vote comes after the election, the President's chances of acquittal are good. Senators defeated or Republicans newly elected for a six-year term would feel free to vote their party loyalty and free the beleaguered President.

THUS THE President's neck might be saved so he could complete his term, thanks to two or three votes beyond the one-third required for acquittal. But the wholly cynical tactic of prolonging the ordeal, perhaps even into 1975, will complete the distrust and disillusionment with all institutions of government. That is an intolerable price for keeping a crippled chief executive in office.

Those who must conduct the business of the trial which now seems inevitable speak of it with dread and something like horror. It is a nightmare they had never contemplated. But they are honorable men and they mean to go through with their constitutional responsibilities to the bitter end.

White House Is Taking Pains To Avoid Impeachment Politics

By GODFREY SPERLING JR.
The Christian Science Monitor News Service

WASHINGTON D.C. — The White House has adopted a "hands-off" policy toward members of the House and Senate, indicating its current frustrations in trying to cope with mounting impeachment pressures.

From sources deep within the administration come these decisions:

— To avoid even the appearance of White House "arm twisting" with either House or Senate members. Even friendly "good will" visits to members will be stopped — unless specifically tied in with an administration bill.

— A SIMILAR "hands-off" policy will be adopted on legislation that might please legislators who could be helpful in blocking impeachment or ouster. Time is running short. And the White House asks: what helps or hurts President Nixon most, pleasing conservatives or pleasing liberals in Congress? While "conservative" legislation may be helpful in the House it might be highly detrimental in the Senate.

While "hands-off" and some other sketchy plans are emerging from new discussions high within the administration (perhaps a television address, perhaps some more speeches around the country), the White House so far seems to have been unable to shape a successful course for winning the necessary numbers in the House to anti-impeachment position.

IT IS NORMAL for the executive side to talk to and seem to persuade members of Congress to support administration-backed measures. The President's aides bring "heavy guns" at times to help them with important legislation.

Up to now there may have been little of such effort on the subject of impeachment — although even observers in the Democratic National Committee say they cannot be certain this has been going on.

BUT NOW, one White House aide says: "From now on even the most polite contact on our part might well be misinterpreted — and it might boomerang. Even a friendly 'hello' now may well be viewed as impeachment politics."

The idea of pushing bills which anti-impeachment, anti-ouster congressmen and senators might like was rejected in weeks past by White House strategists. Now it has been considered anew — and turned down again.

EARLIER, there were White House aides who saw the President's future turning on what Republicans plus conservative Democrats would do on impeachment in the House. Thus they felt that legislation with a conservative bent would be the best impeachment politics.

But now White House thinking is focusing on possible if not likely Senate impeachment action and this question is asked: What happens if we antagonize the "liberal" Republicans in the Senate?

Here the White House is thinking about Republicans in the "liberal" or "moderate" bloc in the Senate, including Lowell Weicker, Charles Percy, Mark Hatfield, Robert Packwood, Charles Mathias, Clifford Case, Edward Brooke, Milton Young, and Jacob Javits.

SAID ONE INFORMANT on White House thinking: "These senators are already less than friendly with the President. But Nixon will need his Republicans, or most of them, if he is going to avoid conviction. So he must not do anything more to irritate them."

Actually, if the White House sought to influence Congress through legislation during the last few months, such "impeachment politics" is difficult to trace with any certainty.

ONE ASSESSMENT from the Republican leadership side says this of White House legislation efforts: "If there are any impeachment politics at work, it is that the President now seems to be trying to hold hands with everybody on the Hill. He's trying to win friends with both sides. Thus, he's throwing a mix at us."

Said an assistant from the Democratic National Committee: "If there is any impeachment politics at work in the President's legislation, I can't find it. I would be delighted if I could. But I can't."

State Should Plug Food Stamp Abuses

California's welfare chief is urging reforms to plug the "appalling lack of accountability" in the food stamp program.

David Swoap, director of the Department of Benefit Payments, told newsmen at a Sacramento press conference that his recommendations for reform have been forwarded to Governor Reagan. If initiated, Swoap said the recommendations could save taxpayers $200 million in federal, state and county funds.

There are 1.3 million Californians receiving food stamps at a cost of $420 million a year to the federal government. Nationwide, the growth of the food stamp program has been rapid. As recently as 1971, it cost only $1.6 billion, but this year it is programmed for more than $4 billion. The number of people receiving food stamps nationwide rose from 6.5 million in 1970 to 13.6 million at latest count.

REFORMS TO save taxpayers' money are particularly welcome at this time, when spiralling food costs are pricing many staple food products beyond the reach of the average wage-earner. Food stamps (food dollars bought at discount) artificially increase the supply of food purchasing power and therefore contribute to price rises, as more money competes for the same amount of food commodities.

It may be argued that the demands on food staples are not affected by the amount of food stamps issued because people must have the bare necessities, stamps or no stamps. That may be true in theory, but in actual practice, we suspect that stamps do get into the hands of the undeserving and contribute to the inflationary trend.

FURTHERMORE, the laxity in the food stamp and in other public aid programs in the state encourages migration into California and contribute to the population pressures that are taxing our schools and housing facilities. Experts are predicting that California's current population of 21 million can double, to 43 million, in the next 45 years. That figure is predicated on an annual migration of 150,000 into the state.

Reforms in the food stamp program should not, and we are sure, will not victimize or harass individuals and families who are deserving. But a crackdown is overdue on the well-to-do or the children of the well-to-do who find loopholes to cash in on the program while the elderly and the moderate income families do without to stretch the inflated dollar.

MR. SWOAP'S recommendations include tightening of eligibility requirements for college students who are receiving food stamps, more accountability and stricter control to insure that the stamps are reaching their proper destinations.

The public must depend on state and county officials to crack down on abuses in this field because individual citizens are in no position to help spot violations.

WHENEVER WE see others in the grocery line paying for cartloads of fruits, vegetables, and meat with food stamps, we have a right to some assurance that they are more deserving than we of the public aid that we are helping to provide.

Women Physically Unsuited For Patrolling Of Highways

By EARL G. WATERS

Unfortunately for those who work sincerely for equal pay for equal work as it applies to the sexes, the activists in the so-called womens liberation movements constantly seem to be engaged in attempts to change what God created.

In failing to recognize that there are basic differences between man and woman, which no human can legislate otherwise, such activists more often harm than aid the cause of equal pay for equal work.

For, with reckless abandon, they seek to install women in jobs which can best or only be filled by men. Such an example is that of women seeking jobs as state traffic officers.

THERE ARE PLACES in law enforcement where women can perform as well as men, such as criminal identification and many types of investigations. Those doors should be wide open to the female sex. But when it comes to restraining violent, ruthless criminals, few women, if any, are physically or mentally suited.

And, there are assignments in the Highway Patrol which can just as well be handled by women. Such things as weigh stations and auto safety inspections are among them. However, claiming women can function as highway patrolmen because of such assignments ignores the fact that those duties are below the qualifications of state traffic officers and should not now be performed by such highly paid personnel. The patrol already has come to that conclusion regarding weigh stations and has nearly phased out the use of patrolmen in favor of lower paid civilian personnel.

BUT IN THEIR basic job of patrolling the highways the awful fact is that the state traffic officer is constantly exposed to the hazard of confrontations with desperate armed criminals. Despite this the Patrol has been mandated by the legislature to launch a pilot program to determine the practicality of employing women as state traffic officers.

To get things underway the Patrol recently held an examination to select 40 women for the pilot program. Some 1400 applicants participated in a written examination held exclusively for the women, followed by a physical fitness test. The physical test was not the same as that given to men. It was a special test, devised by the University as more suitable for women. That in itself was a recognition that women are different and cannot be judged equally or expected to possess the same strength as men.

THE VERY FACT that the written examination was held just for the women applicants thwarts the theory of equality. Since appointments to the patrol are made on the basis of those scoring the highest in a given test, true equality could only be demonstrated by having the men and women competing freely in the same exam at the same time. But, in demanding equality, the women want to be accorded special treatment. And that is the point which destroys their claims of equality.

On the women's side there are few professions or occupations where a difference in sex has any relationshiy to the ability to do the job. And those choosing one to do the job should be blindfolded as to sex. Women who attempt to force their way into those few jobs which are particularly and exclusively suited to men make themselves appear ridiculous

FOR THOSE who need specific examples, a woman can serve as a judge, governor or president just as well as a man. But one would hardly advocate a woman attendant in a men's room or a man cateringto the ladies in the sanctity of the powder room.

Gerald Ford's happiest thought is that if impeachment should come to a vote there's no way he'd have to break a tie.

Some of the pro-Nixon people wish they'd never said impeachment was the only proper way to deal with Watergate.

News reporters in Washington are stubborn. They refuse to agree that Richard Nixon's troubles began with the invention of the printing press.

There are all kinds of crime, but experts agree the greatest white collar offense is a dirty neck.

55 Mile Speed Limit Makes Good Sense

In all the various articles concerning retaining or cancelling the 55 Miles per hour speed limit I have not seen any reference to two pertinent facts.

1. The high cost of imported oil has turned our international trade balance back to red ink.

2. There is no assurance that we will not be faced again with an oil embargo.

Does it not seem good sense to conserve fuel? And one way to conserve fuel is to cut down on high speed. At the same time, I understand, it cuts down on air polution.

Recently I made a round trip to Bellingham, Wash. and stuck to the 55 mile limit. Not once did I suffer the experience of being harassed by speeders, as stated in a recent article by a columnist whose name escapes me. I do agree with his statement that the trucks are the worst offenders, and not once did I see a truck halted by the highway patrol officer.

Cities Should Not Tax To Maximum

Recently I read an article in the Independent-Journal in which the city manager of Larkspur criticized the county assessor relative to estimates made by the assessor's ofice of the assessed valuation for the City of Larkspur.

Apparently the assessor's estimated assessed valuation was higher than they actual turned out to be. The result of this difference was that the City of Larkspur had to reduce its budget to coincide with levying the maximum tax rate times the actual assessed valuation.

It seems to me that it is an irresponsible act for the City of Larkspur to attempt to set thier budget at the maximum amount allowable rather than at the amount actually needed to operate the City of Larkspur. With approximately three-fourths of the Marin homeowners having been reassessed dramatically, the tax bills would be "out of sight" if every public entity followed the City of Larkspur's maximum-tax-rate approach.

The current estimated assessed valuation of Larkspur (after the correction) is 9½ per cent higher than the preceding year. Surely this should be enough to meet the required operating costs without further "socking it to the taxpayer."

Housing Districts Would Do The Job

Your Article, this date, "County eyes Housing Unit Shift" bears the need of comment.

It is believed that the formation of "housing districts" can best serve the purpose of the people in need of assistance in the low-medium bracket and the small homeowners existing on their meagre pensions and limited income.

The President has recommended that the government get out of the housing buisness. Mr. George E. Romney, former director of HUD, resigned in protest of the absolute waste of hundreds of millions of dollars by mismanagement in this bureaucracy.

A housing district would be representative of the people they serve and preserve the basis of local autonomy in their association with all other local agencies.

Historically, this system was most successful for our Pilgrim forefathers and native Americans.

Wage Hikes Add To Economic Decline

"A worker is entitled to that which he produces" is a statement few would deny.

However, it is unfair to the community, when workers demand, not only the goods they themselves produce, but also those things in which they had no part in creating.

Wages are fair, only when they provide replacements, in keeping with their consumption, otherwise we have a wasting economy.

Recognizing the purpose of wages, should enable us to understand how wage hikes are adding to the nation's economic deterioration, simply because they do not replace that which they consume.

The impact of this diminution of supply is not readily recognizable in the economy, because its loss in value is covered by taking from the elderly, what which, required life times of hard work and savings in their creation.

If we are ever to correct our economic difficulties, we must realize that no economy can give people what they want, only what they produce.

Big Labor's Political Funds Back Democratic Campaigns

(Reprinted from The Detroit News)

At a time of unparalleled public resentment of special-interest pressures in U.S. politics, we learn that organized labor has poured more than $1 million into the 1974 political campaigns and will bring another $5 million or more to bear as needed.

This political fund, supplemented by "educational" money provided from union dues and by the free services of union volunteers and political specialists, will go largely to the campaigns of Democratic candidates for the U.S. House and Senate.

When you consider how deeply obligated to organized labor many Democratic candidates will be, if elected, you begin to understand what union leaders mean when they talk of their desire to see the country elect a "veto-proof" Congress.

A Congress so lopsided that it couldn't be restrained by a presidential veto would be bad enough under any circumstances. It would be an absolute disaster if its majority were heavily indebted to a voracious and demanding special-interest group, such as the leadership of organized labor.

The presidential veto is a valuable safeguard against congressional irresponsibility; it gives the public a court of last resort against bad legislation; it helps preserve the principle of the separation of powers.

Americans in recent months have been made aware, with vigorous help from congressional Democrats, of the hazards of irresponsible use of power. After witnessing that irresponsibility in the executive branch, will the country readily hand unbridled power to Congress?

As the politicians of organized labor warm up their money machine, the Gallup Poll reports the percentage of Americans calling themselves Republicans has fallen to an all-time low. In view of Watergate, this comes as no real surprise. The dirt on a handful of offenders has rubbed off on an entire political party, smearing the innocent along with the guilty.

Consequently, organized labor senses a rare opportunity which it intends to exploit to the full. Although most of the dropouts from the Republican Party have moved for the moment into the "independent" column, they may well be ripe for the plucking by labor-backed Democratic candidates.

Clearly, the GOP faces disaster unless in the coming months it can persuade the voters to distinguish between the Republican White House and that separate and distinct Republican Party which resides outside the White House gates. And if a GOP disaster ushers in a veto-proof Congress, the worst effects of that disaster will be felt in time by the entire nation.

Voting Delay Could Improve Nixon's Chance Of Acquittal

WASHINGTON — It was Rep. Lawrence Hogan Jr. of Maryland who put in perspective the descent of the House judiciary committee into wrangle and pettifog after the first day of noble exposition. Now, he said, we're letting the public see what our closed sessions have been like.

Yet when the final vote came on Article 1, the sense of solemn responsibility was restored.

WHATEVER THE motives, the delaying tactics of Rep. Charles W. Sandman Jr. of New Jersey and the others slowing action on what was inevitable from the first test vote did nothing to help President Nixon's cause. The public has had Watergate right up to the neck. To wake up and discover one fine morning that it has gone away is the dream of most Americans.

In the closed circle around the President there seems little or no understanding of the public mood. As so often, White House tactics are self-defeating.

The President's counsel, James St. Clair, in responding to the 8-to-0 Supreme Court decision, spoke of how monitoring the 64 tapes and readying them for the grand jury would be "time consuming." It is fair to ask why these steps were not taken long before in preparation of just this eventuality.

THE GRIM ORDEAL of impeachment still has months to go and that raises the question of how the House handles the case. If the articles of impeachment come to the floor with a rule permitting amendments, debate can go on for far more than the 60 to 100 hours which is the outside estimate. That will be true particularly if television in the House encourages grandstanding for constituents back in the districts.

The truly grim prospect is the appalling length of time the process will take under the best of circumstances. From those anticipating a vote of impeachment in the House and trying to make the essential plans, here is a probable timetable.

This includes seating of visitors and press, the requirements of television and other matters governing the trial of a president for only the second time in history.

Most important in the closed session will be the vote on the time granted the President to prepare his defense. Majority Leader Mike Mansfield puts this at a maximum of three weeks. Minority Leader Hugh Scott believes it will be not less than four weeks.

WITH THAT OUT of the way, the Senate in open televised session will hear the House managers, the term in the Constitution for the Representatives who will in effect be prosecutors, to present the formal charges. That will take perhaps a full day.

After an over-Labor Day recess the Senate comes back to normal business until both prosecution and defense have completed their respective cases. This means start of the actual trial on Oct. 1. Optimists, Mansfield among them, say a vote can come as early as Nov. 15. This allows for a three-day recess for the Nov. 5 election.

THE PESSIMISTS, of whom Scott is one, are convinced the final vote on acquittal or conviction will be Dec. 15 or later.

Hints are coming from White House strategists that if the vote comes after the election, the President's chances of acquittal are good. Senators defeated or Republicans newly elected for a six-year term would feel free to vote their party loyalty and free the beleaguered President.

THUS THE President's neck might be saved so he could complete his term, thanks to two or three votes beyond the one-third required for acquittal. But the wholly cynical tactic of prolonging the ordeal, perhaps even into 1975, will complete the distrust and disillusionment with all institutions of government. That is an intolerable price for keeping a crippled chief executive in office.

Those who must conduct the business of the trial which now seems inevitable speak of it with dread and something like horror. It is a nightmare they had never contemplated. But they are honorable men and they mean to go through with their constitutional responsibilities to the bitter end.

White House Is Taking Pains To Avoid Impeachment Politics

Fred Zelinsky Is Giving Up Piece-Meal Planning Method

At last after many years, landowner Fred G. Zelinsky of Belvedere has come up with master plans for the 14 or so acres of land he owns in downtown Tiburon.

(City staff estimate that he owns about one-third of the remaining open property in the city's central core).

FOR A LONG time, Zelinsky has been a colorful and sometimes frustrating character for the city planning staff and commission to work with. Like many, he seems to think that much of the red tape connected with building projects is unnecessary. According to the planning department, it was not unusual for him to come in of an afternoon with his plans sketched out on the back of a cocktail napkin or a skirt cardboard and announce that the bulldozers would be there shortly.

Needless to say, he had many run-ins with the bureaucracy.

A few months ago, the planning commission told him that he could no longer go on developing on a piecemeal basis — a building here, a building there.

HE WOULD HAVE to bring in a total long range plan for all his property, just as Southern Pacific Railroad has done for its 36 acres in downtown Tiburon.

The city council later modified that dictum and said Zelinsky could split his land into two projects — one for acreage north of Tiburon Boulevard and one for land to the south.

So he has presented the plans for the two areas. Of course, that doesn't mean that he can't and won't change his mind again.

THE FINANCIALLY troubled Mill Valley School District, which will ask voters in November for permission to increase spending per pupil, estimated recently that 330 district children go to private instead of public schools.

At $1,223 per pupil, which was the revenue spending limit set for the district in 1973-74, this means an annual loss of $403,590 in income for the district.

THESE DISSATISFIED pupils would add another 10 per cent to district enrollment if they came back to the fold.

Curry Eckelhoff, a Tamalpais Valley mother, now claims that another 23 6th graders will drop out of the Mill Valley system next fall because their parents don't want them in the Mill Valley Middle School, which has been the center of recent controversy.

Most of these children, she says, will go to Our Lady of Mount Carmel in Mill Valley or St. Hilary's in Tiburon.

Impeachment Speeches Aimed At Improving Public Images

WASHINGTON — Now that the House is going to vote on impeachment, every congressman is feverishly at work writing a speech which will not only be seen and heard by 220 million Americans but, more important, by his own constituents.

Since their political futures are hanging in the balance, most congressmen are asking for all the help they can get.

I RECEIVED a call from my good friend Congressman Turntable yesterday. "You have to help me with my impeachment speech," he said.

"No problem," I said. "I've written a lot of impeachment speeches in my time. Now the first thing you have to do is set the right tone. What kind of decision will you have to make?"

"The most agonizing and painful decision of my life."

"That's good," I said. "And what do you have to throw away?"

"All partisan considerations."

"WHAT DO YOU plan to vote with?" I asked.

"My hand?"

"No, stupid. Your conscience. And don't forget you also have to search your soul."

"Listen, can you go a little slower so I can write this down?"

"Right. Now what kind of obligation do you have as a congressman?"

"An important obligation?"

"NO! NO! NO! A sacred obligation. Don't forget you took a solemn oath to uphold the Constitution of the land."

"Which the forefathers of our country in their wisdom provided us."

"That's good, Turntable. Now let's get to the heart of the speech. What is no man in the United States above?"

"The law?"

"YOU GOT IT. And, therefore, you, as a chosen representative of the people — all the people — must face up to a certain kind of question. What kind?"

"Uh, uh, uh. Can you give me a hint?"

"A momentous question, a question that troubles you, a question that you have been wrestling with for over a year."

"What's the question?" Turntable asked.

"CAN THIS GREAT nation survive when criminal acts by those in high power go unpunished?"

"When do I get to say 'on the other hand'?"

"I'm coming to that. On the other hand you have to have evidence. What kind of evidence, Turntable?"

"Beats me."

"Clear and convincing evidence."

"That's the best kind," Turntable agreed.

"YOU MUST WEIGH the evidence carefully, because the only thing you are searching for is the truth. Now to sum up on a personal note. What will you have to do every morning for the rest of your life?"

"Eat breakfast?"

"No, damn it. You have to look in the mirror every morning and ask yourself, 'Have I done what's best for America?' "

"That's got a nice ring to it," Turntable said.

"NOW, WHO are you going to ask for guidance in this grave hour of crisis, when your vote will affect future generations of Americans for all time to come?"

"My wife?"

"Try again."

"My campaign manager?"

"God, Turntable, GOD!"

"Of course," he said happily. "Why didn't I think of that myself?"

Guam Debates Death Penalty

AGANA, Guam (UPI) — The legislature yesterday debated proposed legislation to impose the death penalty for certain crimes.

At present the death penalty can be imposed only for persons convicted of slaying law enforcement officers, the governor or the lieutenant governor.

Civil courts in Guam have never ordered an execution. The last persons executed were of two Air Force men convicted of raping and slaying a civil service employe, Ruth Farnsworth. They were hanged in 1948 at Andersen Air Force Base.

The unsolved murders of three young persons last week apparently prompted the legislature to re-examine existing capital punishment laws.

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — A suit seeking a total of $36 million in damages has been filed by two independent movie producers against three movie companies.

The action, against Metro Goldwyn-Mayer, Inc., United Artists Corp., and Cinema International Corp., of the Netherlands, charges conspiracy to restrain trade.

The suit was filed by Walter Seltzer Productions and Russell Thacher Productions, Inc.

Specific charges include failure to distribute movies as contracted.

MGM in 1973 went out of the film distribution business and United Artists then took over all of the movies MGM had been handling.

I-J REPORTER'S NOTEBOOK

By REBECCA LARSEN

Fred Zelinsky Is Giving Up Piece-Meal Planning Method

At last after many years, landowner Fred G. Zelinsky of Belvedere has come up with master plans for the 14 or so acres of land he owns in downtown Tiburon.

(City staff estimate that he owns about one-third of the remaining open property in the city's central core).

FOR A LONG time, Zelinsky has been a colorful and sometimes frustrating character for the city planning staff and commission to work with. Like many, he seems to think that much of the red tape connected with building projects is unnecessary. According to the planning department, it was not unusual for him to come in of an afternoon with his plans sketched out on the back of a cocktail napkin or a skirt cardboard and announce that the bulldozers would be there shortly.

Needless to say, he had many run-ins with the bureaucracy.

A few months ago, the planning commission told him that he could no longer go on developing on a piecemeal basis — a building here, a building there.

HE WOULD HAVE to bring in a total long range plan for all his property, just as Southern Pacific Railroad has done for its 36 acres in downtown Tiburon.

The city council later modified that dictum and said Zelinsky could split his land into two projects — one for acreage north of Tiburon Boulevard and one for land to the south.

So he has presented the plans for the two areas. Of course, that doesn't mean that he can't and won't change his mind again.

THE FINANCIALLY troubled Mill Valley School District, which will ask voters in November for permission to increase spending per pupil, estimated recently that 330 district children go to private instead of public schools.

At $1,223 per pupil, which was the revenue spending limit set for the district in 1973-74, this means an annual loss of $403,590 in income for the district.

THESE DISSATISFIED pupils would add another 10 per cent to district enrollment if they came back to the fold.

Curry Eckelhoff, a Tamalpais Valley mother, now claims that another 23 6th graders will drop out of the Mill Valley system next fall because their parents don't want them in the Mill Valley Middle School, which has been the center of recent controversy.

Most of these children, she says, will go to Our Lady of Mount Carmel in Mill Valley or St. Hilary's in Tiburon.

Impeachment Speeches Aimed At Improving Public Images

WASHINGTON — Now that the House is going to vote on impeachment, every congressman is feverishly at work writing a speech which will not only be seen and heard by 220 million Americans but, more important, by his own constituents.

Since their political futures are hanging in the balance, most congressmen are asking for all the help they can get.

I RECEIVED a call from my good friend Congressman Turntable yesterday. "You have to help me with my impeachment speech," he said.

"No problem," I said. "I've written a lot of impeachment speeches in my time. Now the first thing you have to do is set the right tone. What kind of decision will you have to make?"

"The most agonizing and painful decision of my life."

"That's good," I said. "And what do you have to throw away?"

"All partisan considerations."

"WHAT DO YOU plan to vote with?" I asked.

"My hand?"

"No, stupid. Your conscience. And don't forget you also have to search your soul."

"Listen, can you go a little slower so I can write this down?"

"Right. Now what kind of obligation do you have as a congressman?"

"An important obligation?"

"NO! NO! NO! A sacred obligation. Don't forget you took a solemn oath to uphold the Constitution of the land."

"Which the forefathers of our country in their wisdom provided us."

"That's good, Turntable. Now let's get to the heart of the speech. What is no man in the United States above?"

"The law?"

"YOU GOT IT. And, therefore, you, as a chosen representative of the people — all the people — must face up to a certain kind of question. What kind?"

"Uh, uh, uh. Can you give me a hint?"

"A momentous question, a question that troubles you, a question that you have been wrestling with for over a year."

"What's the question?" Turntable asked.

"CAN THIS GREAT nation survive when criminal acts by those in high power go unpunished?"

"When do I get to say 'on the other hand'?"

"I'm coming to that. On the other hand you have to have evidence. What kind of evidence, Turntable?"

"Beats me."

"Clear and convincing evidence."

"That's the best kind," Turntable agreed.

"YOU MUST WEIGH the evidence carefully, because the only thing you are searching for is the truth. Now to sum up on a personal note. What will you have to do every morning for the rest of your life?"

"Eat breakfast?"

"No, damn it. You have to look in the mirror every morning and ask yourself, 'Have I done what's best for America?' "

"That's got a nice ring to it," Turntable said.

"NOW, WHO are you going to ask for guidance in this grave hour of crisis, when your vote will affect future generations of Americans for all time to come?"

"My wife?"

"Try again."

"My campaign manager?"

"God, Turntable, GOD!"

"Of course," he said happily. "Why didn't I think of that myself?"

Guam Debates Death Penalty

AGANA, Guam (UPI) — The legislature yesterday debated proposed legislation to impose the death penalty for certain crimes.

At present the death penalty can be imposed only for persons convicted of slaying law enforcement officers, the governor or the lieutenant governor.

Civil courts in Guam have never ordered an execution. The last persons executed were of two Air Force men convicted of raping and slaying a civil service employe, Ruth Farnsworth. They were hanged in 1948 at Andersen Air Force Base.

The unsolved murders of three young persons last week apparently prompted the legislature to re-examine existing capital punishment laws.

IMPEACHMENT ADVOCATE — Rep. Lawrence J. Hogan, R-Md., who was the only member of his party on the House Judicary Committee to vote for all three of the adopted articles of impeachment, said yesterday that while a year ago he thought impeachment of President Nixon was unthinkable he now believes it unthinkable that Nixon not be removed from office.

San Rafael General Plan Is Drafted

By NELS JOHNSON

The San Rafael Planning Commission — after meeting in 27 public sessions to revise and refine an inch-thick general plan proposed in January by consultants Duncan and Jones — has drafted a 22-page version of the document.

The plan, published in tabloid edition and distributed this week to every residence in the San Rafael planning area, is a compendium of proposals by commissioners, consultants, city staff and citizens.

The commission, after airing the document in a public hearing set for 9:30 a.m. Saturday in city hall, is expected to approve the plan and pass it to the city council.

The proposal is similar in some respects to the document submitted by Duncan and Jones. There are, however, sweeping differences, with the commission deleting or substantially revising several key proposals.

The commission's plan abandons consultant proposals for underground people-movers downtown, a downtown "multimodal" transportation hub and a major new freeway interchange near Second Street.

The commission's plan also abandons the consultant proposals for an annual growth quota, encouraging duplex and triplex units in single-family residential neighborhoods, and boosting the proportion of moderate and low income housing in San Rafael.

Most extensive revision is apparent in commission drafts of the housing and transportation elements. The consultants' housing chapter was angrily rejected by the commission in May after city officials declared it failed to reflect commission viewpoints. City staff rewrote the chapter.

The commission plan, in rejecting notions of growth quotas, proposes instead to control residential growth by linking it with environmental "holding capacity" and availability of services. "The appropriate densities in the built-up and newly developing areas will be determined based upon a thorough evaluation of the environmental capacities of the various neighborhoods, and, eventually, on the specific plans to be developed for each neighborhood," according to the plan.

Under a "residential review procedure" all major project proposals will be batched and submitted to the planning commission on a quarterly basis. A review of services, utilities and environmental criteria will then determine appropriate density levels.

(While the plan proposes no mechanism to convert environmental and other criteria to numerical density levels, planning director Herbert G. Hotch-

Reinecke Says He'll Resign Voluntarily

No Date Suggested By Lieutenant Governor

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — Republican Lt. Gov. Ed Reinecke, convicted last week of lying to a Senate committee, announced today he will voluntarily quit his office.

In a five paragraph statement delivered to newsmen, Reinecke said Attorney General Evelle J. Younger has ruled that "I may continue to serve as lieutenant governor until the judgement is entered.

"I would like to publicly state that the office of lieutenant governor will never have to be vacated through legal action by the state. I will voluntarily resign prior to such an action being necessary."

In a prepared statement, the 50-year-old state official and one-time heir-apparent to Gov. Ronald Reagan did not say precisely when he would resign.

Reinecke issued the statement a few minutes before Younger, a fellow Republican, called a news conference to publicly disclose his opinion on whether or not and for how long the lieutenant governor could remain in office.

Only yesterday, Democratic Secretary of State Edmund G. Brown Jr., his party's nominee for governor, demanded that Reinecke resign immediately.

"The news media, the general public and other state elected officials have been considerate of my situation, my rights and my continued ability to function as lieutenant governor, and I thank them for their fairness," Reinecke said.

He insisted again he was "absolutely not guilty" of perjury and repeated that he ordered his lawyers to "take every possible legal step to get the decision reversed."

The state constitution excludes convicted perjurers from holding office, but legal questions have surfaced on when the prohibition was effective at the time a jury returns its verdict, or when a sentence was formally imposed or when appeals were exhausted.

Reinecke told reporters yesterday that "I want to serve out my term. I was elected to a four year term, and I intend to serve it out unless precluded by law."

In his statement today, he said there was never "any question in my own mind that I would not abide by the law and constitution of the state of California, and it was at my request that the attorney general studied this issue."

Reinecke was convicted of one count of perjury in connection with his 1972 testimony to the Senate Judiciary Committee regarding his knowledge of an offer by International Telephone and Telegraph Co. to help finance the GOP National Convention then planned for San Diego.

Meantime in Washington, Reinecke's attorneys asked that his conviction be reversed. In a motion filed in U.S. District Court, they contended the testimony on which he was convicted was "literally true" and should not be considered perjury.

Rhodes Agonizes On Impeachment

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Sen. Henry M. Jackson, D-Wash., taking issue with Senate Democratic leaders and two conservative supporters of President Nixon's policies, said today an impeachment trial would have to start over if this Congress ended without a verdict.

Jackson, a probable Democratic presidential candidate in 1976, said that he did not think there was any question that the entire impeachment process — including the preliminary House invesgiation —would have to start over if the proceedings dragged on to 12:01 p.m. EDT on Jan 3, 1975, when the two-year tenure of the 93rd Congress expires.

Jackson's view was in direct conflict with that of Senate Democratic Leader Mike Mansfield of Montana and his assistant, Robert C. Byrd of West Virginia. They contended that a trial could continue, even though some senators would not take office until Jan. 3.

The Senate is in the process of trying to shape the rules under which it will try Nixon if, as expected, the House votes impeachment.

Sens. John G. Tower, R-Tex., and James B. Allen, D-Ala., who generally have supported Nixon's policies although they are not necessarily on his side in the impeachment fight, agreed with Mansfield and Byrd. They also said they did not believe a Senate decision to carry over the trial could be appealed to the courts.

Jackson was asked on the NBC-TV Today program if he felt an uncompleted trial would have to start over in absence of a decision by Jan. 3.

"Yes, I do," he replied. "I don't think there is any question qbout it."

He said "I believe our authority expires Jan. 3 at 12:01" and if there is no decision by noon, "we would be in a real mess."

In reply to another question, Jackson said he felt that if the issue was not resolved, the entire impeachment process would have to begin anew from scratch —going back to the House Judiciary Committee's investigation.

Although Mansfield, along with most senators, is determined to complete a trial before the end of the year, the possibility has been raised it could spill over into the 94th Congress, which meets in January.

That raises the prospect of

Bruce Given Inside Track For Top San Anselmo Post

By MARC LITTMAN

The San Anselmo City Council last night gave Alan Bruce, former Marin County administrator, the edge for the post of city administrator-controller but postponed final decision until the council's next meeting.

Only two San Anselmo residents attended the 11th hour open session discussion, a departure from the council's own past practice and the common practice everywhere (except recently in Fairfax) of interviewing applicants for city managerial posts in closed session.

Bruce, 51, one of three candidates interviewed for the job last night, garnered initial support from councilmen John H. Colteaux, Kenneth Anderson and Vice Mayor Woodrow V. Capurro, who concurred that Bruce's administrative experience and interest in San Anselmo as a resident would be a valuable asset to the city.

Anderson commented, "We're lucky to have a candidate who knows and loves the territory like the back of his hand."

Councilman Pieter Toal stressed that the city needed a younger man for the post, someone with more modern insight than Bruce and who could better handle the city's affairs in the long run.

Mayor Martin G. Blinder ended the half hour discussion at midnight warning his colleagues that they would "rue the day" should Bruce be appointed city administrator.

Mayor Blinder said that Bruce, who was fidgeting nervously during his interview, gave him the impression of "sitting atop a volcano."

"It's only a matter of time, perhaps six months, before it'll become uncorked," Mayor Blinder explained.

Appearing for separate, 45-minute interviews in addition to

Could Next Senate Continue Nixon's Impeachment Trial?

WASHINGTON (UPI) — House Republican leader John J. Rhodes was portrayed today as anguished over whether to call for President Nixon's impeachment.

Another influential conservative Republican, Rep. John M. Ashbrook of Ohio, predicted Nixon would be impeached by a 3-1 margin in the House.

Ashbrook, who endorsed impeachment over the weekend, said the President would go into a Senate trial as an underdog and would be "hard pressed" to find the 34 Senate votes required to stay in office.

Nixon resumed today the time consuming task of listening to Watergate tapes to be turned over to a federal court.

Deputy Press Secretary Gerald L. Warren said Nixon put off a morning meeting with his economic advisers so he could listen to the tapes and so that the aides could have more time to prepare their reports.

Warren and other White House assistants again denied Nixon planned to resign. But some aides privately gave a pessimistic assessment of impeachment in the House because of changing attitudes among some congressmen.

"A regrouping is going on," said one official. He indicated Nixon has not yet devised a concrete new strategy to shore up his position.

Rep. Charles E. Wiggins, R-Calif., who led Nixon's defense during the House Judiciary Committee sessions which approved three articles of impeachment, said, "Everybody's been telling me about Republican erosions but I don't find any."

But Republicans who called

House Hit For Limit On Nuclear Liability

By PAUL E. PETERZELL

A spokesman for a nationwide conservation organization last night sharply criticized the recent action of the House of Representatives in renewing legislation limiting the liability of utilities in a nuclear power plant disaster.

James Harding of Friends of the Earth, speaking at a Marin Alternative forum on the pros and cons of nuclear power, said that without that legislation the energy industry cannot afford the risk of nuclear plants, which his group opposes.

The Senate has yet to approve the renewal of the Price-Anderson Act, he said. The measure limits a utility's liability in case of nuclear accident to $560 million. The real damage to life and property has been estimated at up to $30 billion, he said.

To illustrate how much energy the U.S. consumes, Harding said the amount was equivalent to every citizen downing a martini every 90 seconds around the clock.

Other panelists, however, insisted the only alternatives to nuclear plants are devastating strip mining of coal and oil shale, or crippling dependence on Arab oil.

The crowd of about 75 persons at the forum in the Marin Civic Center, voiced agreement with Harding, but after the meeting many nevertheless rode elevators down instead of walking the two flights.

Arguing against nuclear plants, Harding also asserted their "stupendous toxicity" cannot be assured, since human beings are fallible.

A coal-powered generating plant that would cost $400 million would cost $700 million if it used nuclear fuel, he said. The utilities can afford the higher cost of nuclear plants because of government subsidies, Harding said.

"Even the Atomic Energy Commission," he added, has said solar energy could provide 25 per cent of the nation's energy by the year 2000, and at less cost than nuclear plants.

An international ceiling on energy consumption shold be

Dairy Group Pleads Guilty, Draws Contributions Fine

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The nation's largest milk cooperative pleaded guilty and was fined the maximum $35,000 today for conspiracy and making illegal campaign contributions to both Republicans and Democrats.

The charges stated that Associated Milk Producers Inc. (AMPI) gave corporate funds to the political campaigns of such Democrats as Sen. Hubert H. Humphrey and Edmund S. Muskie as well as to Herbert W. Kalmbach, President Nixon's personal lawyer and a chief fundraiser for his 1972 reelection campaign.

It was AMPI's contributions and a pledge of $2 million to Nixon's campaign that prompted Watergate prosecutors to look into milk producers' donations and led to the indictment earlier this week of former Treasury Secretary John B. Connally.

"We've learned the bitter experience by giving too much power to a few," AMPI lawyer E. C. Heininger said during the court proceedings. He said the 40,000 AMPI members from Minnesota to Texas "are going to bear the cross of this for years to come."

Heininger said the management of AMPI had changed since the offenses took place.

AMPI was charged on one count, punishable by a $10,000

Judge Rejects Kidnap Mistrial

ATLANTA (UPI) — A federal judge rejected today a defense motion for a mistrial in the trial of William A.H. Williams for extorting $700,000 ransom in the kidnaping of Atlanta Constitution editor Reg Murphy.

Attorney Tyrus Atkinson argued that "a small army" of FBI agents who crashed into Williams' home Feb. 23 to arrest him and his wife created an "implied coercive situation."

U.S. District Judge William C. O'Kelley denied the motion as he had a similar one in pretrial arguments, and the prosecution resumed presentation of the last of its witnesses.

AC Drivers Reject Pact

OAKLAND (UPI) — AC Transit bus drivers yesterday rejected a proposed contract which would have ended their month-long strike.

Members of the Amalgamated Transit Union Division 192 turned down the offer 554-349. The union represents 1,650 drivers, clerks and maintenance workers.

Division 192's negotiating committee had recommended acceptance of the pact which was ironed out with the help of the state Conciliation Service.

Velde Replaces His Former Boss

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Nixon has appointed Richard W. Velde to head the Law Enforcement Assistance Administration, replacing Donald E. Santarelli who resigned under fire May 30.

Velde, 42, had been deputy to Santarelli, who resigned after he was quoted as saying Nixon should resign.

Gold Purchase Bill Approved

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The House has passed a bill allowing Americans to buy, own and trade gold for the first time since the Depression.

The bill was sent to President Nixon, who is expected to sign it soon, according to a statement by Treasury Secretary William E. Simon.

The legislation passed the House late yesterday with no debate on a voice vote after the House accepted a Senate amendment providing that no existing law can conflict with private ownership of gold.

WORLD NEWS IN BRIEF

Vesco Denies Gun Smuggling

SAN JOSE, Costa Rica (UPI) — Fugitive financier Robert L. Vesco says reports that weapons were smuggled into Costa Rica for his use were "completely false and even ridiculous."

Vesco

In a letter to Security Minister Mario Charpentier, Vesco denied the published reports and said it was a harassment campaign against him "directed from the United States."

The text of Vesco's letter was published yesterday in the newspaper La Nacion.

The published reports said Vesco was smuggling guns into this Central American country to arm his personal bodyguards.

They also quoted "knowledgeable sources" as saying the financier was secretly flying in prostitutes. There was no reference to that charge in Vesco's letter.

Since coming here two years ago from the Bahamas, the 38-year-old Vesco has invested at least $25 million in Costa Rica, the financier says.

Security Order

BANGKOK (UPI) — American military officials ordered beefed-up security on United States arms convoys traveling to Cambodia after authorities discovered 15 bombs and large amounts of ammunition have been stolen.

U.S. military authorities said 15 500-pound bombs, 446,880 rounds of M16 ammunition, 29,600 rounds of 7.62 ammunition, 23,100 rounds of .50-caliber ammunition and assorted other ammunitions have been found missing from convoys since June 25.

Death Quiz

BELFAST (UPI) — Police questioned eight Protestant women and a man today about the murder of a 31-year-old Protestant woman, who was beaten to death with nail studded clubs.

Police said Anne Ogilby was apparently bludgeoned to death in what police said could be a power struggle between the paramilitary Ulster Defense Association and the outlawed Ulster Volunteer Force. They refused to elaborate.

Her body was found beside a south Belfast road Monday, about five days after she was killed.

Pentagon Funds

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The House Appropriations Committee today approved an $83.3 billion 1975 Pentagon money bill, some $3.7 billion below the administration's request but $9.2 billion more than the 1974 figure.

The committee action came months earlier than usual as Congress struggled to clear essential legislation before a lengthy impeachment trial ties up the Senate.

The size of the appropriation was sharply challenged by one liberal member, Rep. Joseph P. Addabbo, D-N.Y., who noted the increase comes one year afterthe end of U.S. participation in the Indochina War.

Back In Public

HONG KONG (UPI) — Yang Cheng-wu, a former Chinese military commander fired in 1968 as a plotter, has reappeared in Peking at celebrations marking the 47th anniversary of the divided Communist army.

Yang attended an army day reception in the Chinese capital last night, making his first known public appearance in six years.

Premier Chou En-lai, who has been hospitalized for a reported heart attack, also turned up at the reception in the banquet room of the Great Hall of the People.

Fifteen other members of the powerful 26 member Politburo of the Communist Party's Central Committee were present at the banquet.

Meningitis

SAO PAULO (UPI) — Hundreds of Brazilians died and thousands more were infected by a meningitis epidemic that swept through the country during July, government officials said today.

Sources said the epidemic is on the rise, but Brazilian health authorities said the outbreak is under control and reports of deaths from the disease are declining.

According to unofficial figures, 345 persons in Sao Paulo died of the diease in July. Another 4,000 were treated during the month.

DaNang Push

SAIGON (UPI) — Communist columns pushed ahead with a two-week drive against Da Nang today, overrunning two villages and seizing a pair of outposts near South Vietnam's second largest city.

Field reports said Viet Cong troops captured Son Thang and Son Lanh, twin villages 27 miles southwest of Da Nang, taking most of the 5,000 residents hostage.

The reports said the militia defenders fled at the Communist approach.

In Cambodia, rebel forces increased harassment of government outposts north of Phnom Penh, killing three defenders and wounding 17. Insurgent losses were not known.

Field reports said most of the hit-and-run attacks yesterday were against government positions along Highway 5. The rest were aimed at outposts along the banks of the Tonle Sap and Mekong rivers.

Talks On Oil

PARIS (UPI) — Experts from the Arab world and the European Common Market began working out the details today of a breakthrough plan to trade Middle East oil for Western industrial know-how.

The Europeans and Arabs assigned economic specialists to lay the groundwork for a meeting in the fall of a task force to propose projects to expand economic relations between the two regions.

The nine-nation Common Market and 18-country Arab League agreed yesterday to create a permanent commission to speed up economic cooperation between the two trade blocs.

French Foreign Minister Jean Sauvagnargues and Kuwaiti Sheikh Sabah El Ahmed Al Jaber said they led to "a historic beginning" in their relations.

Subway Attacks

NEW YORK (UPI) — Just 12 hours after Mayor Abraham Beame unveiled a new program for fighting subway crime during off-hours, one woman was fatally shot in the back and another woman was sexually molested during yesterday's rush hour.

Gloria Brooks, 38, was shot and killed while waiting for a southbound train at an elevated station. It was the ninth subway killing so far this year, matching the total for all of 1973.

Carl Johnson, 25, was arrested a few hours later and charged with homicide and illegal possession of a weapon.

Both incidents occurred some 12 hours after Beame ordered the rear half of most subway trains closed from 8 p.m. to 4 a.m. to double police protection for riders.

Cereal Attack

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A group of consumer and health organizations today asked the Food and Drug Administration (FDA) to put a limit on the amount of sugar in breakfast cereals.

They suggested that no cereal have more than 10 per cent sugar, and that those which exceed that amount be forced to carry a warning on the label saying "frequent use contributes to tooth decay and other health problems."

Cyprus Cease-Fire Is Nearing Collapse

The Cyprus cease-fire threatened to crumble today, with reports of major Turkish truce violations and a Soviet veto blocking the United Nations from expanding peacekeeping efforts on the war-torn island.

Turkish warships anchored off the northern Cypriot port of Kyrenia shelled two Greek Cypriot towns yesterday, less than 24 hours after the signing of a three-nation cease-fire agreement in Geneva.

Greek Cypriot leaders denounced the attacks as "gross violations" of the truce and accused Turkey of sending more reinforcements to occupied sections of the embattled island.

At the United Nations, Soviet Ambassador Yakov A. Malik rushed to the security council from vacation and vetoed a resolution calling for peackeeping forces to expand their duties on Cyprus in accordance with the Geneva peace agreement.

Immediately after the dramatic vote, Secretary General Kurt Waldheim said Turkey's military commander on Cyprus had demanded U.N. withdrawal from Turkish enclaves. Waldheim said he had no choice but to comply.

In Moscow, the official Soviet news agency Tass said Malik "foiled the attempts" by some North Atlantic Treaty Organization members to impose a change in the U.N. role without "sufficient sounding out."

In Athens, Greece's new civilian government began demobilizing its forces today, 12 days after Turkey's invasion of Cyprus brought the nation to the brink of war.

Britain, Greece and Turkey signed the Geneva agreement Tuesday, imposing a standstill cease-fire and adopting a de facto partition of the former British colony between the majority Greeks and minority Turks.

UPI Correspondent Richard C. Gross said Turkish forces shelled the Greek Cypriot villages of Karavas and Lapithos, 10 miles west of Kyrenia o the northern coast.

A U.N. military source said the villages had been shelled by a Turkish warship anchored off Kyrenia in the Mediterranean, forcing withdrawal of Greek-led Cypriot national guard troops in the area.

Greek Cypriot President Glafkos Clerides protested to the United Nations that Turkish troops moved reinforcements into areas east of Kyrenia and into Karavas, on the western side of the harbor town.

Foreign Minister Dimmy Dimitriou accused Turkey of "gross violations" of the ceasefire but said Greek Cypriot troops were under orders not to engage the Turks in battle.

"The government has ordered all Greek Cypriot troops not to fire if fired upon and withdraw if necessary," he said.

The International Red Cross, which has taken over from the United Nations in supplying refugees with food and medical supplies, accused the Turks of "flagrant violations" of the Geneva convention.

Red Cross sources said the estimated 30,000 Turkish troops on the island have been looting Greek Cypriot villages and shipping to Turkey vehicles left behind by fleeing foreign nationals.

Hyperactivity Measures Recommended By Doctor

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — Four million children across the nation are affected by hyperactivity which results in learning problems and aggressive and unpredictable behavior, according to a noted allergist.

Dr. Ben F. Feingold, chief emeritus of the Department of Allergy at Kaiser-Permanente Medical Center in San Francisco, discussed the "epidemic" of hyperactivity in testimony yesterday at a state Senate Education Committee hearing.

Feingold declared hyperactivity is a "serious situation of epidemic proportion that is undermining the very fiber of our children and threatening the stability of our future generations."

He described hyperactive children as "comparable to a revved up motor with the throttle stuck."

Feingold recommended foods containing artificial flavoring or coloring be clearly labeled to help solve the problem.

He has reported successful treatment of hyperactivity by altering a child's diet to remove foods with artificial flavoring or coloring and other substances such as aspirin.

He estimated that ultimately 40 to 60 per cent of the cases can be treated successfully with such a diet.

Until recently most hyperactive children, whose behavior disrupts classrooms, have been treated with the use of stimulants such as amphetamines. The stimulatnts have the effect of calming the children, but some medical authorities contend many children, who are not actually hyperactive, are being wrongfully drugged.

The problem affects 70,000 to 360,000 California youngsters, said a Senate Education Committee staff report.

The report added "that in some cases school personnel have encouraged drug treatment of hyperactivity beyond their legal bounds and that chemical therapy to alter a child's behavior to conform to 'acceptable' classroom conduct raises grave moral questions."

Hpyeractivity usually affects boys between the ages of five and 12 with generally only one child in a family being afflicted.

Cause of the ailment is not known, but Feingold suggested it may have a genetic origin. He advocated research into the effect of artificial flavorings and coloring during conception and pregnancy.

In making his recommendation on labeling, Feingold said that in many cases the information on labels is "inadequate," and "when the chemicals are indicated, they may be illegible or in terms that are meaningless to the average consumer."

He recommended a "symbol be adopted to designate complete absence of artificial colors and flavors in the food product."

Another witness, Hugh D'Andrade of the CIBA Pharmaceutical Co., which makes one of the drugs used to treat hyperactivity, said "We know of no facts to substantiate" assertions that twice as many children receive stimulant medication for hyperactivity as need it.

Economic Plan Is Proposed

WASHINGTON (UPI) — In a reply to President Nixon's speech last week urging less consumer spending and more patience, Sen. Lloyd Bentsen, D-Tex., has proposed a sixpoint plan for economic recovery.

In a nationally televised speech on behalf of the Democratic party yesterday, Bentsen said Nixon's economic initiatives have been a "patchwork" with "too many changing policies, replacing one another; too many conflicting voices, contradicting one another; too many trials, and far too many errors.

"Sadly, only four things have really been steady —steadily rising prices, steadily dwindling confidence, steadily cheerful assurances from the administration —followed by steadily worsening results."

Nixon planned to meet with his economic advisers today.

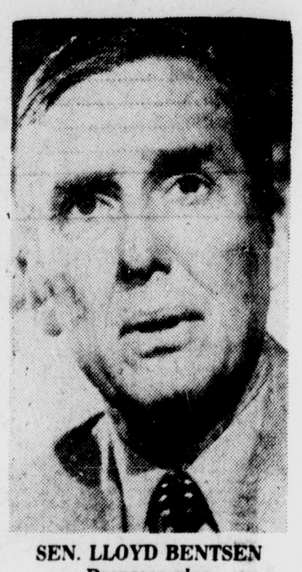
Yesterday, administration economic coordinator Kenneth Rush said the threat of impeachment is a "disturbing influence on the economy."

But he also said impeachment "would have no effect on the economy. The policy we are following is the one we think is correct and people should realize it's going to continue."

Bentsen is a freshman senator and a possible contender for the presidential nomination.

"It seemed to me, as I listened, almost as if the clock had been turned back 40 years," he said in reference to Herbert Hoover's Depression promise that "prosperity is just around the corner."

Bentsen said, "The President told us that our present economic troubles are everyone's fault —except his and his advisers.' I felt I was hearing the language of economic cover-up."



SEN. LLOYD BENTSEN
Proposes plan

Bentsen's proposed "workable program" included three immediate steps and three longer-term goals:

Channeling loan money to the neediest and most productive industries, such as housing.

Establishing a cost of living task force to keep track of price increases and wage settlements and to provide guidance to business and labor.

A "step up (in) our efforts to rein in federal spending."

Reform of the tax system.

An "action" plan to increase productivity in business and industry.

The administration's putting "its own economic house in order."

Muir Woods Plans Open To Comment

Plans to preserve and enhance the natural environment of Muir Woods National Monument are available for public review and comment Superintendent Richard B. Hardin announced today.

Some of the proposals in the Natural Resources Management Plan for Muir Woods National Monument could be put into operation this fall, Hardin added.

Proposals include:

Study to determine whether the number of persons visiting the park at one time, limited to approximately 1,100 persons at present, should be reduced or expanded.

A vegetative history study of the Redwood Creek watershed and the management of the forest undergrowth to reduce adverse effects of visitors.

Stream bank stabilization along Redwood Creek and the removal of downed vegetation where it obstructs visitor access.

Reduction of eucalyptus and various cultured plants that are foreign to the woods.

Extension of fencing and hard surfacing on the main trail from Cathedral Grove to the fourth bridge, as has been done on the lower section of the trail.

The National Park Service's study and review during the assessment process indicated that there would be no significant environmental impact from the proposed actions, according to Hardin.

Copies of the plans are available at Muir Woods or at the Western Regional Office of the National Park Service in San Francisco. Written comments should be submitted by Aug. 31 to Superintendent Hardin at Muir Woods National Monument, Mill Valley.

Five-Minute Gap In Another Tape

WASHINGTON (UPI) — White House lawyers have revealed there is a gap of more than five minutes on a Watergate tape surrendered by President Nixon after a bitter court battle to keep the tapes secret.

Existence of the gap was disclosed yesterday by presidential defense attorney James D. St. Clair, who at the same time asked a federal court to keep another 48 minutes of presidential conversations out of the hands of Watergate prosecutors on grounds of executive privilege.

He said the gap was discovered in the tape of a meeting Nixon had on April 17, 1973, with key aides H.R. Haldeman and John D. Ehrlichman —one of 20 tapes Nixon surrendered to U.S. District Judge John J. Sirica Tuesday under terms of last week's Supreme Court order.

"Judging from the notations on the tape boxes, the tape ran out and was replaced in the midst of this conversation," St. Clair told Sirica in a written analysis.

"A timing of the two segments indicates that approximately 5 minutes and 12 seconds of conversation were never recorded."

Prosecutors had noted an apparent gap by scanning notations on the tape boxes when they were delivered to court. St. Clair said then he didn't think anything was missing but his subsequent check proved the prosecutors right.

St. Clair's index and analysis was submitted to describe the 20 tapes surrendered to Sirica, who now will listen to them and decide which portions special prosecutor Leon Jaworski should have for the Watergate cover-up trial due to start Sept. 9.

Though the White House included all 20 conversations in the edited transcripts it released April 30, the transcript of the April 17 meeting gives no indication that any of the conversation is missing.

It was the third major disclosure of problems with subpoenaed White House tapes.

Last fall, after another losing court battle to keep tapes secret, the White House said two sought-after conversations never were recorded and a third had an 18 ½ minute gap.

Nixon is to surrender 44 other tapes for Sirica's review promptly. His lawyers are to give the judge a progress report on Friday.

In his analysis, St. Clair lodged Nixon's formal claims of executive privilege for 23 segments on 10 of the surrendered tapes totaling 48 minutes and 18 seconds.

The segments Nixon wants Sirica to keep out of Jaworski's hands range in length from 25 seconds to 8 minutes, 1 second.

Ten come at the beginning or end of conversations, indicating the discussion shifted to or from Watergate at those points. The others all come in the middle of conversations that dealt solely with the bugging scandal.

Sirica must rule on all of Nixon's assertions of privilege. Last fall he did uphold several such claims and did not pass on the disputed segments to Jaworski.

Burglars Pull Off Two Jobs

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Police said the same burglars that got $8,000 worth of goods from the home of actress Candice Bergen apparently made off with $50,000 worth of jewelry and silver from the home of her neighbor, the consul general of the Ivory Coast.

The thieves entered both the home of Miss Bergen, daughter of the famous ventriloquist and comedian, and the house of Herbert Hischemoeller, consul general of the Ivory Coast, police said yesterday.

Greece Plans To Return To 1952 Constitution

ATHENS (UPI) — Greece's new civilian government has decided to return to a 1952 constitution without restoring the abolished monarchy of King Constantine II, government officials said today.

The officials said a decree restoring the constitution, which was replaced with a new one by the military junta in 1968, would be published later today.

They said no decision had yet been taken about the possible return of King Constantine or a national referendum on the monarchy, and the 1952 constitution would be applied without the clauses relating to the monarchy.

The king was deposed 13 months ago by then Premier George Papadopoulos who declared Greece a republic and was elected its first president. Constantine, now living in London, fled Greece in 1967 and has been in exile since.

The decree by Greece's first civilian government in seven years also will restore to the defense minister all the powers he lost under the military regime and reinstate all the professors and students expelled from universities for allegedly antigovernment activities.

Greece began demobilization today of its forces that had been kept on a war footing throughout the Geneva talks on Cyprus.

Several thousand reservists have already returned and the sources said a general scale-down in the nation's forces had been ordered.

San Rafael's Plan Is Drafted By Panel

ner said a formula will be developed before the plan is considered for adoption by the city council.)

The plans also reflects the commission's view that the city should "maintain as a minimum" the existing proportion of low and moderate income housing and "increase where ever possible" housing opportunities for low and moderate income persons.

The commission plan suggests a number of methods of maintaining the city's current mix of moderate and low income housing. Among them is a proposal to allocate property tax revenue from increased assessments throughout the city to fund "nonprofit housing, rental or interest subsidies, land banking and subsidy financing."

This controversial system of tax increment financing is used by the city redevelopment agency, and was at the heart of the controversy over agency formation.

Says the plan: "The City of San Rafael, with the exclusion of the present redevelopment area, can be declared a tax increment district allowing a percentage of the revenues to be returned to the city for use in subsidizing housing rental or purchase, public improvements, and the acquisition of land for the construction of housing."

The commission plan recommends the redevelopment agency assume a broad role in municipal affairs. "It need not be limited to the downtown project area; it could establish project areas elsewhere in the city to accomplish similar public purposes."

The commission plan recommends that downtown traffic congestion be eased by a new roadway running along a railroad spur from A and Second streets through East San Rafael to Bellam and Andersen drives.

The commission also recommends creation of about four miles of paved roadway through undeveloped lands for use by municipal safety vehicles in emergencies.

The plan is based on six goals similar in scope to those of the Marin County General Plan, and proposes 14 "basic policies." The policies include creation of a greenbelt open space system, encouragement of local groups to engage in neighborhood planning and a requirement "that all public and private proposals which are likely to alter the environment significantly should explicitly show cause why such changes are justified."

Other highlights of the commission plan include:

A proposal that environmental hazards and geo-seismic data should play a major part in determining land use and a requirement that developers perform various levels of "geotechnical analysis" for development on sites within various environmental "risk zones".

A proposal that the San Rafael Canal be converted into a "water-oriented recreational open space use are," and a proposal that the bayshore east of Highway 17 be converted into a water-oriented recreational area, perhaps including a boat harbor.

A proposal that urban development be intensified in downtown San Rafael and in the Northgate shopping center area.

The commission plan includes no cost estimate of the proposals it makes.

Document Is Opposed By Group

A draft of San Rafael's general plan proposed by the city planning commission has drawn opposition from a local citizens' group.

Norman Higby, spokesman for the Home and Business Preservation League, said several hundred league members are expected to appear at a public hearing at 9:30 a.m. Saturday in city hall to protest various aspects of the plan.

Among league concerns is a proposal by the commission to freeze assessed valuation throughout the city and use revenues resulting from future increases to subsidize low and moderate income housing, Higby said.

A league newsletter claims the proposal amounts to creation of a new "city agency" that would be empowered to "issue bonds, trade parcels of property to builders, reduce taxes on their own properties, give concessions to themselves, make deals, lower interest rates. . . Experience indicates graft often enters into such a program."

Higby also said the league opposes any expansion of the city redevelopment agency as proposed in the plan.

Higby also said the league is urging a "land capability analysis" before open space bond money is spent, and said that bond money should be spent for maintenance of open space lands, including firefighting equipment, as well as land.

set. Harding proposed, to prevent overheating of the earth's atmosphere. Even a few degrees increase can lead to catastrophic climatic changes, such as melting of the polar ice caps, he argued.

Siding with Harding was Neill Smith, Tiburon architect and founder of Marin Environmental Cooperative. To continue using energy at the current rate, he declared, "is committing social suicide."

The only alternative, Smith said, is to "find a balance based on the biological balance of the earth." Either stop trying to squeeze the last drop of energy out of the earth, he said, or face "a totally downhill direction."

Defending the energy industry were Hugo Simens, a safety engineer for Bechtel Corp., builder of power plants, and Kit Newton of Pacific Gas and Electric Company's public information office. Both agreed on the need to conserve energy, but argued the public would not tolerate it if the energy industry failed to meet its demand for energy.

Modern agriculture uses enormous amounts of energy, Simens noted, yet "a lot of it goes to feed the starving millions of the world." It takes 10 calories of energy in chemicals, machinery and transportation to produce one calorie of energy in an agricultural crop, he said.

Simens insisted that the demand for energy "is the consensus speaking — it's what the people want." Arguing nuclear power plants can be safe, he said the alternative of getting oil from domestic shale would mean "tearing down the Rocky Mountains."

It would be far better to spend billions building nuclear power plants than giving it to the Arabs for oil, Simens asserted.

Newton added that "we're the Arabs of the coal world," but said most of it is reachable only by massive and "environmentally objectionable" strip mining. Other possible sources of energy such as the sun will not be engineered for several decades, thus nuclear power plants must fill the gap in the interim, he said.

AMPI was the 12th corporation to be charged in Watergate related matters and the second to be charged with a felony. Harold S. Nelson, AMPI's former general manager, and David L. Parr, its former special counsel, pleaded guilty to similar violatons within recent days.

Bruce were John W. De Weerd, 33, former manager of Cerritos, Los Angeles County and Thomas J. Meyers, 42, former city manager of Miami Springs, Fla.

Both De Weerd and Meyers said they would move to San Anselmo if hired, and each said he thought he could handle the city's $2 million budget.

Bruce, a resident of San Anselmo for 14 years, living at 88 Tamalpais Avenue, told the council that although he is familar with the budget process having worked with county budgets in excess of $30 million, he has had no background in accounting or bookkeeping.

De Weerd holds a bachelor of arts degree from California State College at Fullerton and is continuing postgraduate work at Loyola University of Law and the University of Southern California School of Public Administration.

He worked seven years as a management systems analyst for North American Rockwell Corporation, two years as assistant manager of the City of Cerritos in Los Angeles County, two years as finance manager of Xerox Corp., three years as city manager of Cerritos and is currently employed as chief finance officer of the Orange County Manpower Commission.

De Weerd told the council that in addition to his background in finance, he acquired experience in environmental control while guiding commercial and land development in Cerritos.

Meyers, recovering from surgery and presently unemployed, holds a bachelor of science degree from Ohio State University and a master's in public administration from California State College at Los Angeles.

He worked for 18 years in management in private industry, four years as administrative assistant for the City of Beverly Hills, one year as city manager of Miami Springs, Fla. and for the past year as a private consultant to governmental agencies.

Meyers told the council that his greatest asset is his ability to get people to work together. He added that he had no problems drafting a $3.5 million budget for Beverly Hills nor in making budgets for Miami Springs.

Bruce, 51, held the job as Marin County administrator from 1960 to 1971 and served before that as assistant to former county administrator Donald Jensen. During his tenure he earned a reputation as a hard working administrator with exceptional ability in budget matters.

He also earned a reputation as a controversial public figure and ultimately resigned under pressure from supervisors after seeking the resignation of key administrative personel.

Since his resignation, Bruce has worked two years as vice president and director of planning at Redwood Bank in San Rafael and recently as senior associate with McDonald and Smart public policy consultants in San Francisco.

Bruce told the council that he has learned from his past mistakes and is seeking a permanent position free of the "constand pressure" he experienced with the county.

He admitted that he would need some back-up help in the supervision of accounting and fiscal reporting but volunteered to work unpaid with city-administrator-controller Alfred C. Kaeppel until the latter's retirement in September.

The council will announce its decision at its meeting Aug. 13.

Those two candidates were James R. Garrett, 49, executive vice president of the Alameda County Taxpayers Association, and Clinton G. Malloy, 44, city administrator of Rocklin, Placer County. A third candidate, William E. Haden, 36, assistant city manager of Pittsburg has since accepted the post of Fairfax city manager.

In other action last night the city council agreed to begin contract negotiations with Albert Solnit, former Marin County chief of advanced planning, to complete San Anselmo's general plan.

senators, sworn in next year, voting to convict or exonerate Nixon without hearing all the evidence.

It also raises the possibility of House members voting on impeachment this year and moving to the Senate in January to vote again.

Tower, chairman of the Senate Republican Policy Committee, said some provision must be made to let senatorselect monitor the trial, possibly sitting in the spectator galleries.

He added: "It is also my view that such a decision is not subject to challenge by the judiciary."

IMPEACH

themselves undecided on impeachment said privately the vote by eight of the Judiciary Committee's 17 Republicans to recommend impeachment made it "respectable" for a Republican to vote to impeach.

An aide described Rhodes, who succeeded Gerald R. Ford as House GOP leader, as "anguished" over what position to take.

His office said Rhodes was drafting a statement, to be issued next week, on whether he would support impeachment.

A spot check of House members found scant support for a plan under which Nixon would call upon the House to impeach him so as to speedily settle his fate in the Senate. Patrick Buchanan, White House speechwriter, said such a plan was "under active consideration."

But Rhodes dismissed it as a "gimmick," and Rep. David Dennis, R-Ind., a leading Nixon defender, called it "a cop-out." Members of both parties said the House had a constitutional obligation to weigh and pass upon whether the evidence warrants impeachment.

Ashbrook said he could understand why the White House would consider such a plan. If Nixon is impeached by an overwhelming House vote, that will help seal his doom in the Senate, he said.

In any event, Ashbrook predicted that about 70 of the 187 Republicans in the House and about 300 of the 435 members would vote to impeach Nixon.

Unless he receives at least that number, Nixon will be removed from office if the Senate votes.

Rep. Lawrence J. Hogan, R-Md., one of eight Republicans on the Judiciary Committee to recommend impeachment, said in a letter to his colleagues that he has been called a traitor by other Republicans.

"Many of these letters, telecome from my fellow Republicome from my fellow Repulicans, condemning my decision, and addressing me as 'Judas' Hogan and 'Benedict Arnold' Hogan and 'Brutus' Hogan and asking what I would do with my "thirty pieces of silver."

No other Republicans on the panel who voted to recommend impeachment reported any such response.

Hogan, a candidate for the Republican gubernatorial nomination in Maryland, urged his Republican colleagues to "welcome and demand" Nixon's removal and Vice President Gerald R. Ford's elevation.

A year ago, he said, he would have considered Nixon's impeachment unthinkable but now "after having thoroughly studied the evidence for several him from office."

He was born in Las Vegas, N.M., but had lived in California 30 years.

He is survived by his wife, Sharon, who is expecting their first child; three stepsons, Billy, Brian and Bradley; his parents, Manuel and Culice Quintana; three brothers, Tony, Ray and Roger; two sisters, Aurora Hutchings and Febe Herbel, and a stepbrother, Armando Garcia.

MOUNT TAMALPAIS CEMETERY Marin's Peaceful Place of final rest

The beauty of this setting is guarded, too, by an ever-growing endowment fund which guarantees the care of this property in the years ahead.

Perhaps—like many Marin families—you will want to consider the advantages of making final arrangements at Mount Tamalpais now. This thoughtfulness can spare loved ones difficult decisions in time of sorrow. We invite your visit, or suggest that you write for our brochure which explains our facilities.

Arkansas Rainmaker Moving On

NORTH LITTLE ROCK, Ark. (UPI) — Homer Berry, the Arkansas rainmaker who claims he can air condition a city or order up a cloudburst, has folded up his umbrella.

He no longer rides around dusty cottonfields in his pickup truck stoking a 50-gallon drum of silver iodide to produce rain.

Despite a near drought in the Southwest, and lack of a good gully-washing rain in Arkansas in weeks, Berry said he has received only one call for his services.

"That was about a week ago when a coupla big farmers down below Pine Bluff called me," he said. "The next day they got a scattered shower so they didn't need me then."

Berry, 68, a retired Air Force major, plans to stow his raincoat and move to arid Arizona.

He says he's been making it rain for 28 years but hasn't taken on a commercial rainmaking job in about two years. He said he's out of the rain business, except for a close friend or someone who "stuck by me in the early days."

"The only thing that could get me out again would be for someone who did me a favor or for someone who believed in me in the early days when I was just starting," he said. "I don't advertise any more."

Four years ago, Berry rolled his banged-up red pickup into Aspermont, Tex., where he had a $10,000 contract to bring five inches of rain. It fell three inches short.

The Texas Water Development Board later told Berry he could be jailed for trying to modify weather without a permit.

"I hate to dub myself a weather control authority," he said during his West Texas attempts. "But I can stop a storm and I can bring on a hail. I can bring snow in winter or summer. I can raise the temperature in the winter and lower it in the summer."

Berry said he's retiring because his eyes were damaged by "stirring that pot" for so many years. He also said the price of the silver-based chemical has increased so much it makes the operation too expensive for many farmers.

An "air dynamics expert" while in the Air Force, Berry said he took up rainmaking as a hobby after suffering a heart attack. He first started in 1946 and "really got going good" in 1947 out West.

He once tried to contract with the city North Little Rock to "air-condition the city," but he said city officials told him they would lose $55,000 a month in water bills if people no longer needed to water their lawns and gardens.

His air-conditioning plan, he explained, called for controlling showers so that it would rain about every 48 hours after business hours.

LET IT RAIN — Arkansas rainmaker Homer Berry fires up his rainmaking equipment one last time to show a photographer how it works. After more than 20 years of rainmaking in the central United States, 68-year-old Berry is packing up and moving off to Arizona.

Magee's Sentencing Is Delayed

SAN JOSE (AP) — U.S. Supreme Court Justice William O. Douglas has ordered an indefinite stay in the sentencing of San Quentin convict Ruchell Magee for the 1970 Marin County courthouse escape try in which four persons died.

Magee was to have been sentenced today.

Douglas notified the Santa Clara County Superior Court clerk yesterday that he was studying Magee's appeal of a state court decision prohibiting him from reversing a guilty plea to the charge of aggravated kidnaping.

Magee, 34, pleaded guilty during trial preliminaries here last month, but three days later asked Judge William Ingram to let him withdraw the plea.

Magee told the judge he had been so frustrated over not being allowed to serve as his own counsel that he decided to plead guilty "to get it all over with."

Ingram refused to allow the convict to reverse his plea, and Magee launched a series of appeals.

The charge against Magee stems from an August, 1970 attempted escape from the Marin County courthouse in San Rafael, north of San Francisco. Superior Court Judge Harold J. Haley, two convicts and an accomplice were killed.

The kidnaping charge carries a sentence of life imprisonment with no possibility of parole. Magee is currently serving a life term for a $10 kidnap-robbery conviction in Los Angeles.

Grumman Aerospace Ordered To Keep Loans From Market

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Navy has told Grumman Aerospace Corp., to stop playing the stock market with money the government loaned it to meet emergency bills and payrolls.

Critics complained that the Navy was lending Grumman money —up to $100 million —at bargain basement rates, 9 ⅛ per cent. The firm then invested the money for a few days or weeks at the market rate, 12 ½ per cent, until its bills and payrolls came due.

Assistant Navy Secretary David Potter said yesterday the loans were at 9 ⅛ per cent interest because that is the prevailing Treasury rate, which the Pentagon makes a policy of following.

In hearings last week, the Senate Armed Services Committee learned that Grumman, builder of the F14 Tomcat Fighter, had been taking low interest Navy loans and reinvesting them elsewhere at a profitable rate.

Potter said the new arrangement with Grumman forbids them from investing any of the loan and requires that the firm produce the bills it is paying before the Navy releases any money.

Potter also said the loan would be made at the prime rate, now 12 per cent, plus one-half per cent or the Treasury rate, whichever is higher.

BARELY BEARABLE

It's been terribly hot for people during a heat wave in St. Louis that has persisted for several weeks, but it's even worse for a bear with his large size and heavy fur. This grizzly at the St. Louis Zoo made the heat a little more bearable by perching himself on a water fountain atop his den and letting the water gush over his body while licking some of the drops. Diphtheria Found In Los Angeles County

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Two cases of diphtheria have occurred in Los Angeles County and health authorities said yesterday if further cases appear, a wide-spread immunization program may be needed.

Liston Witherill, health services director, said the two cases are under control but the occurrence of the disease in two areas "suggests some possible danger of further transmission by yet undiscovered carriers in the community."

Union Official Wants Pickets

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — A Teamsters Union official called for informational picketing today at Yellow Cab Co. installations in Oakland, San Jose and Daly City as the result of a San Francisco strike.

The company's 1,000 union drivers in San Francisco struck Tuesday in a labor contract dispute involving pay and a fare increase demanded from the city's Board of Supervisors.

Imports Of Beef Show A Decline

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Beef imports in the first half of 1974 were down 7 per cent from last year, according to the Agriculture Department.

January-June imports were 555.9 million pounds and further decreases were forecast in the second half of the year. The department has lowered the 1974 meat import estimate from 1.575 billion pounds to 1.210 billion pounds. The new estimate is 144 million pounds, or 10.6 per cent, below 1973 imports.

Probation, Social Workers Put In 'Enriched' Retirement Plan

Negotiators for the county and probation-social workers union tentatively agreed yesterday to place welfare eligibility workers under Marin's "enriched retirement system."

As it stands, eligibility workers will rejoin the system this month after having been shifted to a lesser retirement system in June.

Audidor-controller Michael Mitchell said the decision means about 75 eligibility workers will pay 7.6 per cent of their salaries toward retirement instead of 5.3 per cent.

They will receive between 20 and 25 per cent more in retirement benefits, however, he said.

Eligibility workers determine whether those seeking public assistance are entitled.

Negotiators are still dickering over placing the county's nine correctional workers in the improved system. No agreement has been reached on other welfare and probation workers.

The issue stems from a suit brought against the county by the union, Local 535 of the Service Employees International Union, which claimed it was not properly consulted when the county changed its retirement program two years ago.

Its members stayed out of the new retirement program, forcing the county to have two systems.

The union won the suit with tye court directing the county to negotiate the new program with Local 535.

The eligibility and correctional workers were dropped from the new system earlier this year when they voted to join the union. To reenter, they must "buy in" to make up the dollar difference in monthly payments between the old and new system.

While the union has agreed to this point for its new members, it maintains other probation and welfare workers should not be required to "buy in" at their expense.

They argue the county should pay that amount because they were not consulted when the system was started. Union officials plan to make that appeal to county supervisors and the county retirement board.

Eagleton Claims Nixon Broke Law

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Sen. Thomas F. Eagleton, D-Mo., says President Nixon violated the law when he allowed Marines to go ashore in Cyprus last week to help evacuate American civilians.

Eagleton said yesterday that Nixon failed to comply with the War Powers Act by not notifying Congress of the action within the required 48 hours. A White House spokesman said, "We don't consider a violation of the War Powers Act has occurred."

No Accord On Constitution

AUSTIN, Tex. (UPI) — The Texas Constitutional Convention adjourned yesterday without agreeing on a new document after seven months of work at a cost of $5 million.

According to the rules of the convention, two-thirds or 121 of the delegates had to approve any proposed charter. In a final vote, 118 delegates voted for passing the latest revision, 62 voted against and one delegate abstained.

The impasse resulted because of a struggle between labor and business leaders over a right to work law. Labor vowed to defeat any constitution that elevated right to work (a prohibition against union shops) from a statute to constitutional law.

Water District Fills Two Posts

Directors of the Marin Municipal Water District yesterday named a manager of engineering and created and filled a new post — assistant to the general manager.

Bernie Heare, who has served as acting engineering manager since December, was chosen to fill the $24,036-a-year position permanently. He replaces J. Dietrich Stroeh who is now the water district's general manager.

The board appointed Jules Tham as assistant to Stroeh. The 32-year-old Tham currently is administrative assistant for engineering.

The vote was unanimous on both appointments.

Heare, 47, has been with Marin Municipal for 17 years and was a principal engineer for the district before being named acting manager.

He began with Marin Municipal was a junior engineer and subsequently became assistant engineer, associate engineer and senior engineer.

He has been involved in developing ordinances for the district, water supply planning and supervision and administration of engineering projects.

Heare received his engineering degree from the University of Texas in 1950 and is working toward a master's degree in business administration at San Francisco State University. He worked for Bechtel Corp. and a utility company in Montana before joining the water district.

He and his wife Margaret live in East San Rafael. The couple has three children.

Tham has been with the district for seven years. During that time he has served as personnel assistant, personnel analyst and personnel director.

He has a bachleor's degree in business administration from the University of San Francisco and currently is working on his master's degree in management at San Francisco State University.

He and his wife, Annette, live in Glen Ellen.

The post of assistant to the general manager was created on the recommendation of the San Francisco consulting firm of Cresap, McCormick and Paget which recently completed a management study of the district. The job pays $18,792 a year.

The study suggested that Stroeh should have an assistant to shoulder some of the general manager's daily work load.

In his new job Tham will, among other things, assist Stroeh in coordinating district policies and programs, work on various study projects, represent the general manager at some meetings and draft communications and speeches for use by the manager.

New Theory Advanced On Connection Ban

A group of lawyers which has been studying the Marin Municipal Water District's moratorium on new connections believes that local agencies can continue to halt development even if the ban is lifted.

Attorney Denis T. Rice told the district board yesterday that the self-appointed committee of lawyers contends that local agencies, such as city councils and planning commissions must take water supply into account when granting permits for projects which require water.

Rice pointed out that Marin Superior Court Judge E. Warren McGuire, in his recent ruling striking down the connection ban, did say that the district's finding that a "threatened water shortage" exists within Marin Municipal was based on reasonable grounds.

(The district currently is appealing McGuire's ruling.)

Since the judge admitted a threatened shortage exists, city councils and planning commissions and county agencies can reject projects which use water until the threatened shortage is alleviated, Rice and the other attorneys contend. This would be possible even if the district lifts the moratorium or if the courts uphold McGuire's ruling, he told the board.

The agencies could take this action on the grounds that a water shortage would cause "acute environmental problems," Rice told the water district board.

Marin Municipal Water District Board Also:

CONSUMPTION — Learned that during fiscal 1973-74 the district's customers used a total of 30,987 acre feet of water, up 1 per cent from the 30,790 acre feet used during the previous fiscal year. Directors also were told that 500 new services — approved before the district connection moratorium went into effect — were added during 1973-74 as compared to 1,131 in 1972-73.

PROPERTY — Postponed, until a date to be announced, consideration of an agreement for water through the North Marin intertie, a proposed pipeline which could bring 4,000 acre feet of water to the district annually.

LIBRARY — Agreed to spend up to $2,300 to set up a district research library which would be used both by employees and members of the public.

LAND — Approved spending $190,000 for 10 acres in East San Rafael which will be used for a pipe storage yard.

EMPLOYMENT — Authorized the general manager to recruit a senior engineer to supervise water supply planning in the district.

Ross Budget On Agenda For Council

The Ross Town Council will consider a proposed 1974-75 budget of $407,780 when it meets at 8 p.m. next Thursday in the town hall.

The spending program, up from the past year's budget of $359,675, will allow the tax rate to be decreased from $1.75 to $1.66 because of increased assessed valuation of property in the town.

The proposed budget as prepared by councilmen Alan P. Maginnis and John H. Chase contains no new major expenditures but mainly reflects rising costs.

Among the larger proposed expenditures are $12,000 for tree removal and planting, $4,100 for a new police car and $10,000 for street overlay.

The proposed departmental expenditures for 1974-75 with the actual amounts spent in the 1973-74 in parentheses are:

Fire Department, $65,317 ($62,064); police department, $93,253 ($80,248); street department, $39,656 ($30,373); general government, $59,317 ($55,225); parks and boulevards, $56,117 ($52,677); storm drains and flood control, $25,599 ($22,924); capital expenditures from reserve fund, $29,270 ($42,843); retirement fund, $22,580 ($15,862); workmen's compensation and health benefits, $14,200 ($12,377); planning $0 ($813), reserves, $2,471.

Carson Loses Privacy Case

ST. LOUIS (UPI) — His name and image, said entertainer Johnny Carson in a lawsuit, are "his valuable creation, which is protected from the wrongful use by others."

Not so in Nebraska, Carson's home state, said the the U.S. Court of Appeals for the Eighth Circuit Tuesday.

The court threw out a suit Carson filed against a Lincoln, Neb., travel agency for $125,000 in damages for using his name without his consent.

The appeals court agreed with a lower court's ruling that Nebraska was one of four states which "has expressly refused to recognize a right of privacy."

Travel Unlimited, Inc., used Carson's picture on brochures and advertisements to publicize a tour while Carson was in Las Vegas.

Walter Brennan Is Hospitalized

Brennan was admitted to St. John's Hospital last Thursday, his 80th birthday.

He lives on a ranch in the Simi Valley, on the northern fringe of the Los Angeles area. His family said Brennan's emphysema had been made worse by smog.

Dinosaur Prints Found In Mine

BIG FEET — Miner Raymond Garcia carries one of the fossilized dinosaur footprints found in the Carbon Fuel Co.'s No. 3 Mine near Martin, Utah last weekend. Miners discovered the field of prints, some as long as four feet, 1,200 feet underground in what was once a tar pit. Dinosaur tracks have been found in most mines in the area.

(UPI Telephoto)

MARTIN, Utah (UPI) — Miners in Utah's Carbon County have been plucking coal from between the toes of dinosaur prints.

It's a tricky business, and they have to guard against having the petrified footprints fall on them.

The dinosaurs, of course, died 100 million years ago, but they left prints as they walked across prehistoric swamps. The reptile tracks filled with sand and other minerals, which formed slick, scaly casts as the swamp slowly turned into a coal bed.

Miners discovered a large field of the fossilized footprints 1,200 feet underground in a tunnel of the Carbon Fuel Co. No. 3 mine. They carried five of the three-toed fossils from the mine last weekend.

"The prints are nothing new," said Mine Maintenance Superintendent Claude Wheeler of Price. "All the mines around here have them, but this latest bunch is an unusually large concentration."

Since dinosaurs walked on top of the swamp, the prints are on the ceiling of the mine tunnel. Some weight as much as 150-200 pounds.

"Most of them are one or two feet long," Wheeler said. "I haven't seen it myself, but the men tell me there is one imprint in the ceiling four feet long."

Wheeler said the size and composition of the footprints present a safety hazard for the miners.

"Usually where you find dinosaur tracks, you have what they call a bad top. The surrounding material is loose and has a tendency to crumble," he said.

"These things are real slick," he added. "They can just drop out and hit a man. You either have to take them down or support them up there."

Wheeler said he did not know of any serious injuries resulting from the footprints falling from the ceiling.

But Jim Madsen, curator of dinosaur exhibits at the Utah Museum of Natural History, said he had heard stories about miners being killed "in the old days" when they relied more on picks and shovels than on machinery to dig out the coal.

Madsen said the fossils were made either duckbilled, plant-eating dinosaurs or the large, vicious, meat-eating reptiles that roamed the swamps 100 million years ago.

"Both groups were bipedal and had three toes on the hind foot," the scientist said.

University of Utah Geology Prof. William L. Stokes said the coal mine tracks were the only known evidence of a group of two-legged dinosaurs about twice the size of the fearsome tyranosaurus rex.

"We found prints 4 ½ feet long from a dinosaur with a stride of 12 feet," Stokes said. "A tyranosaurus had a foot about half that size."

Wheeler said prints are considered a nuisance in the mine and many of the larger ones are broken and destroyed when they are removed.

"The smaller ones usually end up in flower gardens," he added. "I have one on my front porch."

Sunset Articles Feature Sonoma

The farms and unusual nurseries in Sonoma County are featured in two articles in the August issue of Sunset Magazine.

Ten specialty nurseries, covered on a 40-mile tour on roads from Cotati to Occidental, that grow unique plants ranging from maidenhair to South African heather are detailed in one article.

The other article features Sonoma County Farm Trails, the organization of farmers and ranchers that promotes visits to the area's roadside stands and shops.

Rock Writer Finds Bonds

NEW YORK (UPI) — Nicholas Schiralli, a 26-year-old songwriter and rock band manager, discovered $800,000 in missing securities in an envelope lying behind a bush in Central Park.

The nonnegotiable securities were returned yesterday to the brokerage firm of Merrill, Lynch, Pierce, Fenner and Smith, which reported them missing Feb. 12.

Schiralli, manager and chief songwriter of a rock band named "Mushroom," was asked if he wished that the stocks had been negotiable.

"I'd rather have a hit record," he replied. "Wall Street is just a jam on my head."

Black Group Raps Ford's Avoidance

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — Vice President Gerald Ford was rapped yesterday for not discussing the nation's employment problems before a National Urban League convention whose theme was the jobless.

"I'm not sure he heard us on this issue," said Executive Director Vernon E. Jordan Jr., at a press conference.

Ford gave a speech before the national convention earlier in the week but "didn't address himself" to the league's push for full employment in the U.S., Jordan said.

Jordan and league president Donald H. McGannon, New York, said a new spiral of joblessness appeared "inescapable" as government and industry seek to reduce inflation by curtailing spending and some production.

McGannon, president and board chairman of Westinghouse Broadcasting Corp., said the Nixon administration must anticipate the unemployment rise and earmark funds already available to meet the crisis.

He said anti-inflation efforts will "grind heavily" on the poor and minorities and that government must "recognize the human needs they will produce."

Jordan said make-work programs would not be necessary but that the government could stimulate jobs by investing in ecology, day-care and other projects to alleviate unemployment.

Dog Is A Delicacy In Philippine Town

By LEON DANIEL

"Before martial law, people around here would even steal pet dogs and sell them to those who wanted to cook them," a guest told me at a buffet dinner where the main course was dog meat.

"That doesn't happen anymore," he said rather proudly.

Until then, I thought I had heard all of the justifications for martial law, imposed by President Ferdinand E. Marcos 22 months ago.

The dinner was hosted by a government official at the guest house of the presidential mansion to entertain newsmen covering a tour of the Philippines by the Miss Universe beauty pageant finalists.

The dog meat was served in what appeared to be a stew.

Two Spanish journalists, a husband and wife team, were eating from heaping plates with gusto until another guest inquired in broken Spanish if they were enjoying their dog meat.

They quickly set their plates down and ate no more.

"Try some," a guest urged me.

I heaped my plate protectively with steamed rice.

The moment of decision had come. I wasn't in the least curious as to the taste of dog meat but I didn't want to offend my host. So I decided to compromise.

Gingerly, I forked from a steaming bowl what I fervently hope —and will forever insist — was a small piece of carrot.

"I'd like to interview the chef," I said, setting down my plate and heading toward the kitchen.

"What I look for is a small black dog, about nine months to a year old," said Alfredo Mundo, a wiry little man who proudly acknowledged that he had prepared the meal.

Mundo, who said he served as a cook with U.S. forces on Guam during World War II, said there are lots of ways to cook dog meat.

He said it is particularly popular adobo style, a Philippine way of barbecuing. He said the best dog meat costs more than 60 cents a pound.

Still Up There

MOSCOW (UPI) — The Salyut 3 space station, home of the two Soyuz 14 cosmonauts for two weeks last month, is continuing to orbit the earth and function normally, the Tass news agency said today.

Butz Says Pet Purge Could Ease Food Crisis

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Agriculture Secretary Earl L. Butz says "fuzzy thinking dogooders" who want Americans to eat less meat in order to save grain for the starving abroad could accomplish the same goal by doing away with half the nation's pet dogs, cats and horses.

Butz made the joking suggestion in a yesterday Wednesday before the American Society of Animal Science. He stressed that it was not meant to be taken seriously.

There are about 32 million dogs and 22 million cats in the nation, he said, and eight million horses, mules and asses, "which no longer pull the plow or dray."

"It takes a lot of food —a lot of grain products —to keep that many animals alive, sleek and contented. If some people are really serious about proposing that we cut back on hamburgers ... then I want to know how they feel about the horses and dogs and cats that they own."

He was referring to proposals such as one advanced by Sen. Hubert H. Humphrey, D-Minn., who suggested people consider eating one less hamburger a week so some of the huge amount of grain now fed to cattle could be available.

Butz called the crusaders "ill-informed, fuzzy-thinking dogooders," and said "... they could make the first onslaught on this noble goal by reducing our dog and cat population.

Ford Motor Earnings Fall 61.5%

DETROIT (UPI) — Ford Motor Co. reported yesterday that its first half earnings declined 61.5 per cent from last year, completing an industry cycle that plunged profits to their lowest level since 1961.

Ford said its earnings in the first six months of the year were $291 million, or $3.11 a share, compared with $755 million, or $7.57 a share, for the same period last year.

Over all, the big three automakers reported first half earnings of $746 million, down from the record $2.56 billion last year. Not since they reported profits of $633.6 million in 1961 had over all earnings dipped below $1 billion.

Like its industry rivals, Ford blamed the profit slump on sharp increases in material and labor costs and to the energy crisis-induced sales decline.

Ford also said a strike at its key Chiciago stamping plant earlier this year cut second quarter earnings by 29 cents a share.

Worldwide sales for the first six months of the year, Ford said, totaled $11.4 billion compared with $12.4 billion last year, a decline of just over 8 per cent.

For the second quarter, Ford said its earnings totaled $168 million compared with $394 million last year, a drop of 57.4 per cent. It was equivalent to $1.80 per share compared with $3.98 last year.

Sales in the second quarter totaled $6 billion, down 5 per cent from the figure in 1973, with worldwide vehicle sales totaling 1.45 million compared with 1.65 million for the same period last year.

Brown Favors Free TV Time

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — California Secretary of State Edmund Brown Jr., the Democratic candidate for governor, says the nation's television stations should be required to provide free broadcast time to office seekers.

Brown made the comment in testimony before a hearing of the Assembly Committee on Elections and Reapportionment.

He said candidates for major office should be prohibited from purchasing television commercials in general election campaigns.

"Skyrocketing costs are turning candidates into beggars who must go hat-in-hand to lobbyists and special interest groups," he said.

Today is Thursday, Aug. 1, the 213th day of 1974 with 152 to follow.

The moon is approaching its full phase. The morning stars are Mercury, Venus, Jupiter and Saturn. The evening star is Mars.

Francis Scott Key, who wrote the Star Spangled Banner, was born Aug. 1, 1779.

On this day in history:

In 1790, the first U.S. census showed a population of 3,929,214 persons in 17 states.

In 1946, the United States Atomic Energy Commission was founded.

In 1973, the Senate Watergate committee revealed a White House memorandum said to implicate President Nixon in settlement of an ITT antitrust case.

A thought for the day: In the American national anthem, Francis Scott Key wrote these rousing words, "Tis the star spangled banner; O, long may it wave o'er the land of the free and the home of the brave!"

Don't Peek, Study South's Hand For The Correct Finesse

When you have three finesses to take but can take only one of them, how do you make the choice? Study today's hand and see if you can choose the right finesse.

COUNTS TRICKS

South won the opening lead with the king of clubs, counting his eight tricks: Two top spades, one heart, two diamonds and three clubs. He saw that a successful finesse in any suit but clubs would give him a ninth trick.

Before making up his mind, South cashed the ace of clubs, led a spade to dummy's king and cashed the queen of clubs, discarding a heart from his hand. But now he had to decide.

Put yourself in South's place. Which finesse would you take?

ALL CHOICES LOSE

As it happens, any of the three finesses will lose. But don't complain about your hard luck if you take a finesse and fail to make the contract. The point is that you have no business taking a finesse (even though you might still manage to make the contract).

Just lead a club from dummy and let West win the trick. Since there are no green cards in the deck, West must return a spade, a heart or a diamond. Any such return gives you a free finesse for your ninth trick.

The moral is very clear: Never do a job by yourself if you can get an opponent to do it for you.

DAILY QUESTION

Partner opens with one no-trump (16 to 18 points) and the next player doubles.

You hold:
♠ - Q 10 5
♥ - K 6
♦ - Q 10 8 2
♣ - J 10 9 8

What do you say?

ANSWER: Redouble.

Your side has at least 24 points, which means that the opponents can have only 16 at most. You may be able to murder the opponents at any contract, and the redouble announces this pious hope to your partner.

CALL ME WHEN IT COOLS DOWN

Oregon's Willamette Valley has been sweltering under near 100 degree temperatures for five days, and Nancy Knox, 14, beats the heat the natural way. Her cool shower is a small waterfall on Mill Creek near Salem.

Mill Valley, And Sanitary Districts Agree To Share

The Mill Valley City Council and representatives of sanitary districts which pump their sewage to the city for treatment agreed last night to base each one's share of new sewer permits available in the Mill Valley area on each share of the total Mill Valley area assessed valuation.

City Mgr. Ronald L. Usher said that representatives of the Kay Park, Almonte and Homestead Valley districts will go back to their boards with this for sharing 651 uncommitted sewer permits.

Usher said another 100 connections still available would be held in a reserve pool, not to be used unless some development came along which a board or the city found highly desirable for their community.

The assessed valuation formula would be derived by averaging assessor's figures for the last three years.

Using only last year's figures, Usher estimated that Mill Valley would get 498 permits, Kay Park 13, Almonte 48 and Homestead Valley 68. Another 23 would go to Alto Sanitary District which did not attend last night's meeting.

The city and the districts will meet again in six months to discuss the arrangement and perhaps reallocate leftover permits.

Usher said he does not expect the permits to be used up rapidly since the districts and city do not have many major developments now being prepared.

The tentative agreement could settle a struggle that has gone on between the districts and city ever since the Regional Water Quality Control Board partially lifted a ban on sewer connections in the Mill Valley area.

Also last night, the Mill Valley council introduced a special ordinance designed to ration the sewer permits it now has. The ordinance requires all developers of projects needing two or more hookups to go before the planning commission for permission for connections as well as for approvals for their plans. Once they have their hookups, these developers would have to start building within six months.

Official Tries To Block Rate Hike

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — A member of the State Board of Equalization yesterday challenged a rate increase of $183.3 million granted the Pacific Telephone Co. by the Public Utilities Commission.

William Bennett of Kentfield, equalization board member, pointed out in his petition for rehearing that the decision ignored a recommendation by the commission's own staff to reduce the rate by $114 million.

He said the increase violates a decision by the California Supreme Court holding that Pacific Telephone could not charge its customers more for taxes than the company actually paid.

Miners To Honor Memory Of Dead

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The United Mine Workers will halt coal production for 10 days this summer to honor the estimated 100,000 coal miners killed since 1900, according to UMW President Arnold Miller.

Miller said, in the UMW Journal, that the union had the right to set aside 10 days as a memorial period under the 1971 contract with the Bituminous Coal Operators Association.

$334,830 Budgeted In Marinwood District

The Marinwood Community Services District Board last night adopted a $334,830 budget for 1974-75, up from this year's $275,660.

The budget is expected to require a tax rate of $1.24 per $100 of assessed valuation, up one cent from this year's rate, according to Genevieve T. Bolding, district manager.

Increase of the spending program is primarily due to inclusion of a 7.5 per cent salary increase for the district's 11 employees, she said.

The budget includes $15,400 for street lighting, up from $14,020; $157,290 for fire department, up from $118,918, and $162,140 for parks and recreation, up from $142,725.

The board last night also approved a $4,000 expenditure for supplies needed to construct a footbridge over Miller Creek.

The board next meets at 8 p.m. Aug. 19.

JOEL GREENBERG
To Sonoma state job

Greenberg Fills Post At College

Joel Greenberg, 32, has been promoted to the post of career planning and placement director at Sonoma State College, according to college President Marjorie Wagner.

Greenberg arrived at the Rohnert Park campus Monday from his post as director of special programs at California State University, Los Angeles. He primarily was responsible for providing services for veterans, handicapped students and residents of on-campus housing.

He previously held several other positions involving job placement and employment counseling in the state college system and the former state Department of Employment.

Greenberg said one of his duties at Sonoma State will be to offset "the increasing uncertainty that a college degree will have a direct outcome of employment." He said the office will stress providing students with skills and experience as well as academic training.

Sale Of Bugging Gear Restricted

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Senate has voted to require prior congressional approval of all foreign sales of American-made electronic bugging devices and police equipment.

The proposed requirement was contained in an amendment offered by Sen. Henry M. Jackson, D-Wash., to an extension of the Export Administration Act.

Jackson disclosed last week that sophisticated U.S. surveillance equipment was to be displayed at a Soviet trade fair next month. He said inadequate controls on exports of such equipment only served to aid "repressive dictatorships."

Author Reception

Author Stephen Levine will be on hand to promote his new book, "Planet Steward" Wednesday at 8 p.m. at the Tides Bookstore, 749 Bridgeway, Sausalito. Wine will be served at the reception, open to the public, and Levine will discuss his book, which shows how a return to the land is also a return to original nature.

ORGANIZING PERSONAL MOVIES

Many movie-makers leave their processed 8mm and super 8 films permanently in their original 50-foot lengths. We earnestly recommend carrying home movie production two steps farther. One is to splice the short lengths together so as to fill reels holding 200 or 400 feet of film. The second is to edit these larger reels into a smooth-flowing story.

Movies in the form we recommend are much easier to show and much more enjoyable to look at than the 50-foot reels. They are much easier to keep track of and store. And they are much less likely to be damaged, go astray, deteriorate through aging, and pick up dust, lint and dirt.

The steps involved in organizing home movies are briefly described here. We will be happy to supply further details on the procedure at our store. You would especially want to consult us about editing of sound film.

HERE ARE SOME TIPS ... Splice the 50-foot lengths of film together onto large reels ... Rearrange scenes, as may seem advisable into a more logical order ... Delete blank and badly exposed film, and shots that are poorly posed ... Provide about three feet of leader film at the start an end of each reel ... A desirable step is to shoot and splice in titles ... Provide labeled cans for your reels and store them in a reel chest ...

TOPNOTCH HORSE TRAINER

By PAT BALMES

"I cut cattle strictly for my own pleasure; it's a busman's holiday," said Mrs. Harry Lehman, who trains horses in the indoor arena at her home in Lagunitas and spends almost every other weekend on the road with horses and students, competing at horse shows.

Eight out of every 10 persons who ride today are women. There are about 10 million horsewomen in the United States, and most of them compete in horse shows, according to California Horse Review, the state's largest all-breeds news magazine.

Last week at Circle V Stables Mrs. Lehman, astride her Arabian Tu-Riff, demonstrated cutting — separating a cow from the herd. The difficult, cowhond's skill is used to handle cattle in corrals on ranches.

To a trained horse, cutting becomes a game. He learns to keep a cow separated by wheeling and pivoting without commands from his rider who just indicates which cow to cut, she said.

"I TRY to anticipate which way the cow will go; once in awhile I get left. The horse is right 99 per cent of the time," she said.

Cutting is a kind of a disease once you catch it, and it is expensive because it takes a lot of cattle. Forty cows are necessary to give six or eight cutting horses practice, she said.

Unlike roping, cutting is not hard on cattle. Capital Planning Co. owner of Circle V and its cattle, would allow them to cut anytime, she said.

However the club cuts only once a week to prevent the cattle from becoming sour. It is bad for a horse's spirit to be bumped or kicked by a defiant cow, she explained.

The 16 cutters, some of whom are Redwood Empire Cutting Horse Association members, range from businessmen to housewives. They cut for recreation and to train cutting horses to show locally.

"I bring the cattle down from the hill and get them ready for Tuesday nights. I started with Ed Smith in 1965 who used to own Circle V. I was his turn back (helper)," siad Mrs. Lehman, who was then a college girl training horses at Circle V.

She was born in Marin. Her father was the Ross fire chief for 25 years. A graduate of Ross Grammer School and Redwood High School, she studied two years at California State Univeristy, San Francisco, planning to become a high school teacher until she realized she "did not want to be indoors."

She switched to the Sonoma State College pre-veterinarian program but gave it up two years later to accept a partnership in the now closed Sleepy Hollow Stables.

WHEN SHE married Harry Lehman, also a horse enthusiast, he built her her own training stable on their property. There she regularly trains two or three outside horses besides the Lehmans' own show Arabians. Mrs. Lehman often has students' horses in her barn temporarily for training, correction and tune-up for the horse shows.

"We still take in a kid who cannot get along with her horse," said Mrs. Lehman, who enjoys all phases of the horse business.

"Every horse I have has a lot of stock horse training. I like a horse to be part of me. When I turn around, he better come with me," she said with a determined grin.

Edie and Harry Lehman enjoy trail riding and last weekend led the Tamalpais Trail Riders overnight ride at the Stewart Ranch's Horse Camp at Point Reyes.

Mrs. Lehman prides herself on training a good trail horse, teaching him to be safe outside as well as in the show ring. Her Arabians Tu-Riff and Ragayl won first and second place in the adult trail competition at the Sonoma County Fair in July.

PROFESSIONAL HORSEWOMAN Edie Lehman of Lagunitas believes that horse training is not a matter of strenght; "you are supposed to outsmart the horse." She is in a booming industry where eight out of 10 riders are women. Here her trained Arabian Tu-Riff works without command separating a cow from the herd at Circle V Stables in Fairfax.

Former Nixon Aide And Family Settling Into New Tiburon Home

By MOLLY MARIN

Getting settled in a new home in Tiburon are Mr. and Mrs. Paul Haerle who were married at a small ceremony at the First Baptist Church of Clarendon in Arlington, Va., July 12.

The bride, the former Mrs. Nola Smith, chief assistant to President Richard M. Nixon for executive recruitment, resigned that position when she was married. She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Elmer Ball of Madison, W. Va., and has one daughter, Angela, 17. Mrs. Haerle has lived in Austin, Tex., for over 15 years and has also maintained a residence in Washington, D. C.

Haerle is the son of George W. Haerle of Portland,Ore., and the late Mrs. Haerle. He has two children, Karen, 18, and David, 15, by a previous marriage. The bridegroom is an attorney and a partner with the San Francisco law firm of Thelen, Marrin, Johnson and Bridges. He is vice chairman of the California State Republic Central Committee.

After the intimate church ceremony for family members and a few close friends, a large reception was held in the banquet rooms of the Crystal Towers Apartments in the capitol. Among the guests were Senator John G. Tower of Texas, whose 1972 campaign the bride had managed, and Mrs. Anne Armstrong, counselor to the president for women's activities. Mrs. Armstrong is the only woman in the administration with cabinet rank.

The new Mrs. Haerle was appointed to the president's staff in September, 1973, to assist with locating qualified women for high level positions in the administration.

"It is work that needs doing," she said, "but it's too long a commute from California."

The couple went to Bermuda on a wedding trip before traveling to their home in Marin County.

MR. AND MRS. Jerome M. Kennedy of Novato traveled to Denver for the wedding of their daughter, Patrice Michelle Kennedy of Denver, and Clark Kent Gestring of Aurora, Colo. on June 22.

Also attending the wedding was the bride's brother, Michael J. Kennedy of Novato.

The newlyweds are living in Cedar City, Utah., where the bridegroom is a project geologist with Earth Sciences, Inc.

The bride was graduated from San Rafael High School and attended College of Marin. She has the bachelor of arts degree from Loretto Heights College in Denver and master of science degree from Creighton University in Omaha, Neb.

MRS. PAT Omizollo's new home in Novato was the setting Saturday for her "vacant house party."

A former resident of the Marin Country Club Estates, Mrs. Omizollo invited guests to her home before the furniture arrived.

MR. AND MRS. Donald Du Pertius of Mill Valley have returned from a fishing vacation in the Feather River country.

MR. AND MRS. William King have invited 65 guests to their home in San Rafael for a cocktail party on Saturday, which will feature Naida, a belly dancer, and Sam Pietro, a guitarist from San Francisco, who will entertain the guests.

LIVING IN San Anselmo after their marriage in New York on June 21 are Mr. and Mrs. William Dreskin. The bride is the former Wendy Rosenblatt, director of the Learning Exchange school in Sausalito.

The wedding was given in the garden of the home of the bridegroom's cousin, Mrs. Barbara Brenner in Nyack, N. Y., where family members baked the traditional breads for the reception which followed the ceremony conducted by Rabbi Andre Ungar.

The bride is the daughter of Mrs. Freda Birnbaum of New York City and of Philip Rosenblatt, also of New York City. The bridegroom is the son of Leon Dreskin of Newark, N. J., and Mrs. Mildred Dodge of Chicago, Ill.

The couple was in New York a week, then returned to California for a back-packing trip in the Trinity Alps. Wendy attended the University of Chicago, was graduated from the University of California at Berkeley and studied for the elementary school credential at Dominican College.

Dreskin attended Bard College in Annandale, N. Y., and was graduated from the University of California at Berkeley. He received the master of arts degree from the California Institute of Arts in Valencia (Calif.) and earned elementary and secondary teaching credentials from Dominican College.

GENERATION RAP

by Helen and Sue Bottel

Strict Mother Has Daughter Almost At End Of Her Wits

RAP:
I don't know whether to kill myself or run away.

My Mum thinks only vampires go out at night. I'm 15 and not allowed out after 9 p.m. I can't have boys call. I can walk to school only with my dumb sister, not my friends. She spies on me and reports to my folks.

If I'm asked to a party, Mum gets a migrain. No boys till 18; no dances till the 11th grade, and then Dad has to take me. I have to wear only dresses to school.

Don't say talk to a neighbor. There's no one I can trust. And our priest is Mum's best friend. Dad does whatever she tells him, so he's no help.

I'm a popular chick. A lotta good it does me! This has got me so nervous that I smoke (weed and cigarettes), pop pills and drink and get low grades.

I was good and didn't talk back to Mum for two weeks, but my dumb sister picked a fight and now things are worse than ever.

I just may walk in front of a car. — HELP IF YOU CAN

HIYC:
Your mother's restrictions are much too tough, but you're doing your best (or worst) to make her believe she's right! A "popular chick" who smokes, pops pills and drinks would earn a D- confidence rating even from a relaxed parent. Get straight, and maybe (let's hope) she'll gradually get less tight.. — HELEN

HIYC:
But it will take more than two weeks! Getting straight is like going on a diet: the first few days are worst because temptations are greatest, no one notices but you, and you figure what's the use because it won't work anyway.

But it's your only hope. So try "being good" for the rest of the summer; then let us know whether things are better at your house. — SUE

RAP:
Do you think older teen-agers should be allowed to read magazines like Playboy and Penthouse?

Half of my friends read them, and quite often at home where their parents subscribe to them and don't mind.

But my folks buy these magazines and then hide them so my little mind won't be contaminated! Should I tell them I've got my own set hidden in my closet? — ALMOST 16

DEAR ALMOST:
Why not? Teen-agers should be allowed to read any magazine that's "fit" for their parents. (And if parents don't think it's fit, they shouldn't buy it.)

Besides, think of the money saved if you could share the same magazines. — HELEN AND SUE

P.S. Seriously, it seems to us that parents who "protect" older teens from their own girlie magazines aren't very aware. They should know kids will read them elsewhere, if they're so inclined.

RAP:
I'm a new husband and I've just discovered my wife's idea of equal rights is — the husband brings home the paycheck and the wife spends it. Except she spends more than I make. What should I tell her? — UNLIBERATED HUSBAND.

DEAR HUSBAND:
We'd suggest she work out a firm budget with your help, or get a job. Or both. — HELEN AND SUE

Commission Discussion Set Monday

The second discussion meeting for those interested in forming a Status of Women Commission in Sonoma County will be held Monday at 7:30 p.m. at the Penngrove Women's Center, 9595 Petaluma Hill Road, Penngrove.

If approved and appointed by the county Board of Supervisors, it would be a county-funded commission serving as a sounding board and investigative body on behalf of all women in Sonoma, according to Ann Byrd, chairman of the ad hoc committee.

Women and women's organizations interested in the establishment of the commission can assist the ad hoc committee by distributing questionnaires surveying women's needs in their area, sending a letter to the supervisors endorsing the commission, and considering women they would like to see appointed to the commission, added Miss Byrd.

WATCHING TO see that Tiger steps through the bars without touching, Edie Lehman prepares Scott Alexander, 13, of San Anselmo for trailhorse show competition. A project leader for Marin Mounted 4-H, Mrs. Lehman enjoys coaching children as much as training horses, she said.

Arabian Horse Association Show at Scottsdale, Ariz., in February.

They take another, midsummer, break to let their campaigning show horses rest and give their less experienced students and horses an opportunity to compete at small local shows.

Mrs. Lehman takes time out to teach the Marin Mounted 4-H group. For the past four years she has been co-leader because not many adult leaders ride, she said. She trained some of the children to be a color guard for their shows and taught them basic horsemanship, grooming and feeding. Currently she is their veterinary science instructor.

SHE WILL teach horsemanship at the Girl Scout resident camp at Forest Farm in Forest Knolls in August.

"I'll get there at 7 a.m. and not leave until 11 or 12 p.m. I get into these things," she said with a smile.

Asked about the prospects for a women horse trainer, she said that any woman who wants to get into the field ought to be able to do it.

"A lot of people think women are better trainers; I do not necessarily agree. But it is not a matter of physical strength. You are supposed to outsmart the horse. Horses are kind, or else people could not do what they do with horses," the horsewoman said.

Treat A Summer Cold Just Like One In Winter

A summer cold can be just as discomforting as a winter one, and summer is no time for hot toddies, except in areas of the world where in mid-summer the temperature drops to below 40 degrees.

How does one treat a summer cold? The same as you did in the winter — and according to one gentleman, that's with contempt.

However, if you can't ignore the stuffed-up runny nose, you can use nose drops or spray, take some aspirin, and stretch out on a comfortable lounge chair on the patio or near the pool.

Air conditioning that is too cold will probably make you feel uncomfortable and is best avoided. But, physicians tell us, the number of ice cubes you put in your Scotch and water is not a matter of medical record, but purely one of taste.

Childbirth Association Has Coaches

The Education For Childbirth Association of Marin, Inc., has seven women trained as coaches for any pregnant woman planning to use one of the methods of prepared childbirth. The labor coach will be with her during her labor and delivery.

The seven coaches were trained in a series of eight classes in the Bradley, Lamaze and Fitzhugh/Dick-Read methods of childbirth preparation, the physiology and psychology of pregnancy and childbirth, and the routine of hospital and home births.

The labor coaches will be on call and available to any laboring woman, but ECA hopes that a woman will contact the association early in her pregnancy "so that she and her coach may establish a strong, trusting relationship that will enable them to work together in labor," said Kerry Mazzoni, president of ECA.

The service is open to both single mothers and couples.

MR. AND MRS. AVARD WALKER III
Married at St. Isabella's Church
(Photo by Richard Miller)

Jane M. Keenan and Avard L. Walker III, both of San Rafael, were married July 20 at St. Isabella's Church in Terra Linda. They are now traveling through California before returning to live in Terra Linda.

The bride's parents are Mr. and Mrs. Maurice Sulla of La Jolla and the late John J. Keenan. Her sister, Mary Mutterstein of Los Angeles, was matron of honor. She has three brothers, John of Stony Brook, N.Y., Robert of Norton, Mass., and Timothy of La Jolla.

The bridegroom's parents are Mrs. Elisabeth Walker of Owls Head, Maine, and the late Avard L. Walker. His best man was his brother Robert of Yarmouth, Maine, and two other brothers, Peter, of Yarmouth and John of Ellsworth, Maine, were ushers. He has another brother, Frederick of Owls Head, and three sisters: Carol of Owls Head, Mrs. Carl Meyerhuber of State College, Pa., and Mrs. Jack McCann of South Addison, Maine.

A reception followed at the Marin Art and Garden Center in Ross.

The new Mrs. Walker was graduated from St. Mary's High School in Manhasset, N.Y., and attended Marymount Junior College in Boca Raton, Fla. She is employed at Letterman Army Medical Center in San Francisco.

Her husband attended Rockland Maine High School and is a graduate of the University of Maine. He is employed by Bechtel Corp. in San Francisco.

Style Important For Mature Woman

The mature woman is no longer expected to dress like Whistler's mother, in plain clothes, dark or pastel colors and sensible shoes. But she should choose styles that flatter and conceal her weak points.

Choose dresses and blouses with sleeves if upper arms are either thin or flabby. Wear stand up collars or fill in V necks with a scarf for neckline problems.

Coats For Fall

Fur coats for fall and winter '74 follow the cloth coat trend to big, loose shapes, ponchos and capes.

QUIET BUT TENSE — Trees and shrubs almost hide the comfortable ranch-style homes of the Castlewood area just outside Novato, where residents report themselves "up in arms" over a rapist. Sheriff's investigators say they've verified only one rape and a number of prowling calls.

(Photo by Ty Barbour)

ASSAULTS IN HOMES

Fear Transforms Area

By JEFF GREER

Fear of a rapist on the loose has turned some homes in a gracious neighborhood just outside Novato city limits into armed fortresses linked by a trembling web of rumors and a few facts.

At least one woman — but neighbors say three — has been raped in her home this month. In addition, several break-in attempts have taken place in the few square blocks of the Castlewood area.

The streets, Devonshire Drive, Haverhill Court and Hanover Court, are almost completely surrounded by Novato but sheriff's deputies must provide law enforcement.

Jeanette Prandi, sheriff's department inspector, said one rape has been verified officially. The others remain rumors in the absence of any report by other victims.

"But," Mrs. Prandi said, "I want to keep the lines open to the neighborhood about anything" that will add to clues to the rapist.

The attacker who invaded a Castlewood home July 19 and raped the woman there was a man in his 20s with long sideburns. He warned against calling "the pigs."

"Everybody's got a shotgun, waiting for the guy to come through their door," claimed one resident who declined to be identified. "Everybody's armed, it looks like a little fort," he said.

Other neighborhood residents said rumors had swept the area, but that not everyone was arming. There was general agreement that parents no longer dare leave outside doors unlocked for their teen-agers who come home late from outings.

"You've got a bunch of really uptight people," Mrs. Prandi said. She said the victim of the one confirmed rape told her Monday that she'd heard rumors of other attacks. Then when the original victim tracked them down, the rumors concerned the victim herself.

While rumors sometimes multiply the number of victims in a neighborhood, rape cases often go unreported because the victims are shy of publicity or fear questioning and possible court confrontation with a suspect.

Assistance can be given rape victims without calling in police agencies, a spokesman for the Rape Crisis Bureau of Marin said yesterday. The crisis agency, however, advises rape victims that it will be more helpful to cooperate with police to catch the rapists.

"It's got to be voluntary . . . nothing's going to change (in terms of halting rapes) until we get the victimized woman to stand up" and aid prosecution, said "Trish."

She is a volunteer who answers questions phoned in to the rape crisis switchboard at 924-2100.

"Trish" said the center helps rape victims obtain medical service, venereal disease and pregnancy testing; offers counseling by women who themselves have been rape victims, and provides referrals to other agencies for mental health and other services. The victim remains anonymous during the consultations, if she wishes.

The volunteer adviser said three legal alternatives are possible in most rape cases: Criminal prosecution of the rapist, a civil suit against him, and in some cases where an ex-husband may be involved, citation through the district attorney.

A jigsaw puzzle or 11 cities interlocking with unincorporated cities poses a serious communications problem in reacting quickly to rapes and similar violence, pointed out Novato Police Chief John Coleman.

Under emotional stress, residents of Castlewood and similar areas are likely to call city police first. Precious time is lost while the call is relayed to the proper agency.

Coleman said, however, that none of the actual or rumored Castlewood attacks and prowlings was reported to Novato police.

One answer to the communications problem is the "911" system under which a citizen can summon police, fire or ambulance crews by calling the simple, three-digit number. The state has ordered the service provided by every local agency by 1982.

Each city and district must submit a plan and a timetable for the 911 service by January 1975, said Thomas Moyer, Marin County communications director. He said the board of supervisors is encouraging all local agencies to cooperate in a countywide network with all calls going to a single dispatch center. If this is done all the cities, fire houses, ambulances and similar facilities can be linked together by a microwave radio network the county will install by next spring.

This will end dependence on telephone lines that sometimes are costly as well as slow. Moyer cited the case of Dillon Beach: Calls from there to San Rafael now are routed via Petaluma and Santa Rosa. Telephone lines to hook the remote village to the county's 911 service would cost "thousands of dollars a year" in leases, the official said.

Novato's problems are complicated because its fire district also provides ambulance service — and covers 75 square miles, much of it outside the city limits covered by police.

The best answer to the problem probably is countywide cooperation, according to Novato Fire Protection District board member Ray A. Landi — himself a resident of the jittery Castlewood neighborhood.

Both fireman Landi and sheriff's investigator Mrs. Prandi said they hope an arrest in the next few days can put an end to the tensions and fears of the otherwise pleasant neighborhood.

Blind Convention: Hotel Headache

Telephone listings and room locations must be posted in braille. Coffee shops and restaurants must adjust to orders like, "And eight ounces of your best ground beef for my labrador retriever, sitting under the table."

And bellhops, schooled to show the sightless guests how to find their closets and bathrooms, must recover from the embarrassment of pointing out a light switch no one has any use for.

The La Salle Hotel is playing host this week to the 13th annual American Council for the Blind convention, a week-long series of seminars and celebrations for the visually impaired.

Local Girl Scouts run errands and help with details and every once in awhile, a bellhop will pull an unsuspecting man from the door of the ladies restroom.

Blindness hasn't stopped conventioneers from doing the town. Fifty went on a nightclub tour of Chinatown and a visit to the Playboy Club Monday night.

And a young girl, trailing her seeing eye dog, went off to the Sears Tower. "When I get back," she said, "I want to tell about the world's tallest building."

The council's director, Durward McDaniel, said 702 persons were registered by Tuesday and that the number would reach 1,000 before the end of the week.

McDaniel, who is blind himself, said that until yesterday, various blind vocational and interest groups meet for seminars in their fields.

Starting yesterday, however, the agenda shifted to matters of general interest for the blind — sessions on organized recreation, civil rights laws, supplementary incomes, vocational rehabilitation and medical progress in the field of blindness.

"Or in the field of sight, if you prefer," McDaniel said.

"We consider blindness a social problem," he said. "It's one the government should be dealing with. Not everyone has a visual problem, but who knows who will be struck with it next?"

Younger's Women's Task Force Called Tokenist By Ex-Member

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — A former member of Attorney General Evelle Younger's Women's Rights Task Force who was fired became "she pushed too hard" said yesterday Younger's drive for female equality is politically motivated.

Two more members of the tast force also announced they had resigned because of the tast force's "tokenism."

Younger, who earlier this year appointed a 30-person tast force to look into discrimination against women, is seeking a second term on the Republican ticket as attorney general.

"I think the creation of the tast force was politically motivated," said Mari Goldman, a legislative employe who was asked to resign from the task force. "But I think they made a mistake when they appointed me when they were not sincere."

Younger said earlier this year in a press release that he would push for women's equality because discrimination in California was evident.

At the same time, Virginia Carter, another member of Younger's task force, announced yesterday she has resigned "because it is just a token group."

"Younger has thrown one woman Ms. Goldman off the group simply because she wanted to make it effective," said Ms. Carter, west coast vice president of the Women's Lobby.

Younger's office was not immediately available for comment on the resignations.

Loren Miller, well-known Los Angeles attorney and one of three men on the task force, announced he also would resign from the task force, citing the firing of Ms. Goldman and the "tokenism" of the group.

The simmering dispute between Younger and his task force members broke out after a letter was sent to Ms. Goldman informing her that her participation was "no longer acceptable because of partisanship."

Ms. Goldman, who said Younger obviously knew about the letter signed by Assistant Attorney General Anthony Joseph, noted that more members of the task force "are talking about resigning."

"I had hoped the attorney general was sincere, but his actions have repeatedly demonstrated he is not committed to his project," Ms. Carter said.

Ms. Carter said the task force set up committees to deal with discrimination in housing, credit, education, and child care, but no "mention was made of criminal justice, law enforcement or the corrections field."

Anderson Says Memo Altered

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Columnist Jack Anderson said today alterations were made in a 1970 White House memo given Watergate investigators to delete suggestions that information from a so-called national security wiretap could be used for political purposes.

President Nixon has said he instigated wiretaps on a number of government employes and newsmen in 1969-71 to plug national security leaks.

In today's column, Anderson also said that 64 tape recordings that the Supreme Court ordered Nixon to surrender last week contain "gaps, distortions and unintelligible passages."

MUSIC REVIEW

Little Symphony Of Marin Debuts On A Promising Note

By MARTIN FRICK

In between the lavish feast laid out for Marin music lovers last month by the Inverness Festival and the rich banquet promised by the Forest Meadows Festival opening this weekend, an ambitious independent group of 45 young people calling themselves the Little Symphony of Marin made a promising debut last night before a small, friendly audience in the College of Marin's Fine Arts Theater.

Trumpeter Jon Pankin has collected this group from high schools, colleges and performing ensembles throughout Marin County. Some are students at colleges across the country, but home in Marin for the summer. That they brought off a very respectable ensemble sound is most impressive.

Conductor Mel Margolis, an assistant conductor with the Canadian Opera Touring Company, obviously enjoys a good rapport with the players, treating them as professionals with a minimum of cueing, for which perhaps at least the lower strings are not quite ready.

The opening "March of the Little Lead Soldiers" by Gabriel Pierne was the most satisfying. Here the small string section's cohesive sound, astonishing for so new and disparate a group, did not have to compete with the other excellent sections of the orchestra.

Pizzicattos were clean and intonation extremely good, particularly when responding to the shimmering flute solo passages played by Patrick Hurtado who also sparkled as the bird in Prokofiev's "Peter and the Wolf."

Narrator Scott Beach, with his deep, raspy voice, brought out all the dramatic elements in the story of a boy and a bird who capture a wolf (who has swallowed alive a "dumb duck") and spare him from death at the hands of hunters by giving him to a zoo.

While Beach did not receive the necessary dramatic support from the chamber-size orchestra, the individual characters were all beautifully delineated by soloists and ensembles within the orchestra, especially clarinettist Patricia Mason as the cat and the French horn section as the wolf.

The brass and timpani sections buried the strings in Aaron Copland's Billy the Kid ballet suite. Yet, even here there were moments which underlined the exciting potential of the group.

A second concert is planned for Sunday, August 25 at 8:30 also in the college's Fine Arts Theater. One hopes that music better suited to their size and their name will be performed.

MOTION PICTURE GUIDE

FAMILY

"Capt. Nemo" — An entertaining science-fiction fantasy inspired by Jules Verne's "Captain Nemo." Might frighten small children.

"Digby" — An English sheepdog swallows a chemical solution and grows to 30 feet. Broad English farce, delightful for children.

"Herbie Rides Again" — Helen Hayes, an eccentric granny in distress is aided by an old Volkswagen in this Disney sequel to the "Love Bug." Fun for all.

"The Wetback Hound" — A dog who escapes from Mexico is the hero of this beautifully photographed and well told Disney short story.

ADULTS AND TEENS

"Bang The Drum Slowly" — Emphasizes importance of a single life and value of human kindness. A major league baseball story worth while for adolescents. Some rough language.

"Bank Shot" — The biggest bank robbery in history. They steal not only the money, but the whole bank. A screenplay designed for maximum comedy.

"Butch Cassidy and the Sundance Kid" — The story of a pair of bank robbers whose wit, daring and humanity made headlines at the turn of the century. Escaping from the law to South America they resume their taking ways. Beautiful scenery and good camera work, but sympathy is with the robbers and violence is their way to life and death.

"Cops and Robbers" — Skillful comedy of cops turned robbers. You may end up rooting for the bad guys if your morality doesn't get in the way.

"Three Musketeers" — A spirited production of the classic story of bravery and intrigue. Richard Chamberlain and Charleton Heston head the new cast. Very entertaining. Some sex and violence.

"Uptown Saturday Night" — Delightful ghetto comedy, featuring Poitier, Cosby, Belafonte and Flip Wilson. Strong visual humor. Some coarse language.

"White Lightning" — A sordid thriller of modern moonshiners. Sex, violence, double dealing and rough language — not for those under 17.

BORDERLINE

"For Pet's Sake" — Barbara Streisand in a mediocre, zany, slapstick comedy. Housewife borrows money from the underworld to help her husband. To repay the debt she gets involved in prostitution, cattle-rustling, etc. Questionable humor, black-ethnic and black macabre comedy. Cursing. (Over 17)

"S.P.Y.S." — Primitive slapstick spoofing the CIA. Violence in a humorous context. (Product Digest)

"Steelyard Blues" — Satirical comedy about an expensive hooker and a group of zany characters attempting to rebuild a plane with stolen parts. Violence, cursing and sex.

"The Sting" — A pair of cool 1930 conmen set out to ruin a powerful Chicago racketeer. Entertaining for the mature. Cursing, violence.

ADULTS ONLY

"Chinatown" — Gruesome mystery set in Los Angeles Chinatown of 1937. Good costuming and cast. Brutal violence and nude love scenes.

"Death Wish" — Western good guys and bad guys theme. Vigilantes, violence, and gun culture explored. Charles Bronson gives it popular appeal.

"New Centurions" — Based on the best-seller about the Los Angeles police force. Violence, nudity, crime and cursing.

"White Dawn" — Rare adventure film shows true story of Eskimo life as it was. Filmed on location in Canada's Northwest Territory. Remarkable attention to detail of Eskimo culture.

Man Found Dead In Motel Room

A 30-year-old man was found dead yesterday in his bed in a room at Howard Johnson's motel on Shoreline Highway in Tamalpais Valley.

The coroner's office had no information on what may have caused the death of Robert Edmundson, a self-employed writer with no permanent address. A routine autopsy was to be conducted.

His parents, Mr. and Mrs. William Edmundson of Rancho Mirage, Riverside County, who were staying in a nearby motel room, reported that he was injured in an auto accident a year ago and was still on crutches and in pain as the result of a leg injury.

Funeral arrangements are being handled by Russell and Gooch Mortuary in Mill Valley.

SAN JOSE (AP) — One lane of northbound Highway 101 was closed briefly early today after a truck and empty charter bus collided, spilling one ton of tomatoes over the pavement.

Stock Loss Of Priests In Millions

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (UPI) — The Archdiocese of Reno and 25 Boston area priests lost millions when a $25 million investment went sour and had to be bailed out to save them from bankruptcy, a Catholic magazine says.

The National Catholic Reporter said in a copyrighted story this week that the investment program prospered for a time but apparently went bad two years ago. A church official from Rome stepped in to freeze further investments.

The $25 million investment became worth less than one tenth of that amount, the Reporter said. The actual loss is impossible to trace because in the first three years some gains were realized.

Earlier this year, the newspaper said the Chicago division of the Securities and Exchange Commission investigated and ruled there was some illegal activity, but apparently no fraudulent intent.

One SEC official was quoted as saying," Besides, I think the SEC was reluctant to prosecute a group of priests."

The SEC ruled bonds sold by the archdiocese and the La Sallette Fathers of Attleboro, Mass., were insufficiently backed because of investment losses of the St. Joseph Trust Fund, the paper said.

Five years ago, Father Rene Sauve, then treasurer of the La Sallette Fathers and a representative of the Chicago brokerage firm of McMahon and Hoban, approached Reno Bishop Joseph Green with an investment plan whereby the archdiocese would sell bonds to the public through the brokers, a common practice by churches to raise money.

Funds raised by the sale of bonds would be turned over to a nonprofit group, the St. Joseph Fund, run largely by Sauve.

In turn, the St. Joseph Fund would then invest the money with the expectation of large interest returns to the archdiocese and the Boston Fathers.

The newspaper said between 1969 and 1971, Bishop Green raised $3.5 million and the fathers $15 million. Other groups contributed $6.5 million.

When the collapse began two years ago, the newspaper said, the SEC gave the two investors two months to raise funds to secure the bonds. In the meantime, Bishop Green was put on medical leave and replaced April 4 by San Francisco Auxiliary Bishop Norman McFarland.

Bishops and other church organizations bailed out the two investors with gifts and lowinterest loans. One source said Cardinal John Krol of Philadelphia lent the archdiocese $250,000 for 10 years. The loan is interest free the first five years, with 6 per cent interest thereafter.

Highway Patrol Names Assistant

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — Highway Patrol Commissioner Walter Pudinski announced yesterday that Supervising Inspector Alva S. Cooper has been named assistant commissioner of the state law enforcement agency.

A patrol member for 26 years, Cooper previously served as an assistant to former assistant commissioner Eldon D. Heringer. Heringer, has been named commander of the highway patrol's Fresno office.

'Mabel And Mack' Is Off To A Good Start

By BOB THOMAS

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The critics predict that "Mack and Mabel" will settle down for a long, long run when it reaches Broadway in October. It suits Robert Preston just fine.

"Mack and Mabel" is a new musical based on a tragic love story of comedy king Mack Sennett and the star of his silent comedies and his personal life, Mabel Normand.

Although the David Merrick show is still in its early stages, reviewers deemed it a sure-fire hit.

Jerry Herman — "Hello, Dolly!" "Mame" — has written a superior score for Preston and Bernadette Peters, who plays Mabel. The book by Michael Stewart — "Bye, Bye, Birdie," "Hello, Dolly!" — artfully combines the gayety and sorrow of the Sennett-Normand saga while doing surprisingly little violence to the real facts.

Gower Champion, a veteran hand with musical magic, has staged "Mack and Mabel" with even greater invention than his earlier hits — "Birdie," "Hello, Dolly!," "I Do! I Do!" "Irene."

Starting with a bare movie-stage set, he brings it to vigorous life with the antics of the Keystone Kops, the Mack Sennett Bathing Beauties and the classic comics, pulling forth two or three show-stopping numbers — except that Champion shows never stop.

All this presages long lins at New York's Majestic Theater after the break-in here, in St. Louis and Washington, C.C.

"You know what a long run means to me? Sheer heaven," commented Bob Preston after a strenuous evening as Mack Sennett.

ROBERT PRESTON
Pleased with musical

"Yes, I know that some actors can't stand doing the same role night after night. Marlon Brando, for instance, and I say thank God for that.

"If he had stayed on the stage, we wouldn't have his marvelous performances recorded on film.

"To me, repeating a performance is like telling a joke.

"If a man tells a joke to a different audience every time, he will always get laughs and find it rewarding; only his wife is bored by hearing the same joke over and over.

"Well, when you're doing a long-run show, you have a different audience every night and you always get a new reaction. So it never gets boring."

Farm Price Recovery May Raise Food Bills

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Farm prices rebounded sharply from a four-month slump in July, and the result may be higher consumer food bills, Agriculture Department reports indicate.

The department's monthly report on farm prices said they rose 6 per cent in the month ending July 15 as livestock began recovering from depressed levels and grains rose in price from the impact of drought damage to 1974 harvests.

The resulting upward pressure on consumer food bills was considered likely to increase Agriculture Secretary Earl L. Butz's pressure on food industry middlemen to narrow their margins, which he has already criticized as too wide.

A special department committee set up by Butz to suggest ways to narrow the gap between live cattle and hog prices and consumer meat prices is scheduled to report publicly soon.

The price report said average farm prices for all meat animals jumped 16 per cent during the month but remained 21 per cent below a year earlier.

Mid-July farm prices were 1 per cent above a year earlier. They were 14 per cent below the level of February when the recent slump began and were about 15.5 per cent below the record set last August. The price of corn, the chief raw material for producing meat and other livestock products, rose from $2.57 a bushel June 15 to $2.91 on July 15 compared with $2.45 a year earlier. Wheat rose from $3.57 in mid-June to $4.04 in mid-July compared with $2.47 a year earlier.

Butz, who had appealed to consumers in advance to weigh the latest farm recovery against the earlier slump, has already predicted the July figures will mean some increases in retail costs, possibly in August.

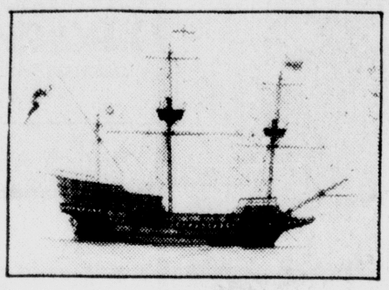
WHY DRAKE REALLY DISCOVERED MARIN



Drake's Greatest Discovery
I-J 99c a day* Classified

Though I-J Classified ads are as close as his telephone, Sir Francis Drake decides to place his ad in person. I-J ad-takers help him word a plea for a placque-maker, an engraver in brass, to word a sequel to the message left years ago at Drake's Bay. Sir Francis loves placing I-J Classified ads in person. There's plenty of public parking close to the I-J at 5th and B. Come in and see why Drake calls I-J Classified Marin's own treasure.

FIX YOUR OWN BIKE

Bearings Play Key Role

By DAVID F. SALISBURY
The Christian Science Monitor News Service

(Fourth of seven articles)

How is it that a person can travel 20, 50, or more than 100 miles on a bicycle without becoming tired?

The secret is in the hundreds of tiny ball bearings. Every bike has six sets. Hidden inside hubs, crankshaft, pedals, and headset, these tiny steel spheres, swimming in grease, make the bicycle the most efficient way to travel.

But, except for specially sealed types, bicycle bearings are not airtight. So as you ride, the grease gradually seeps out. Moisture and dirt, a bearing's arch enemies, work in.

That's why bearings must be periodically taken apart, checked, and relubricated. If this isn't done, they begin to grind, gouge, and wear themselves down. And they can overheat, too, which may cause them to turn blue and crack, wreaking even greater havoc.

A method to check wheel and crankshaft bearings was discussed in the first article in this series. A test similar to the method described there also works for pedal bearings. If you develop a feel for how a pedal should spin, you will notice when it becomes sluggish.

So, too, when the handlebars begin to turn stiffly, you know the bearings in the headset need more grease.

There are different types of bearings, however each is made up of two clusters of balls at opposing ends of the axle, spindle, or tube.

The proper way of disassembling each type of bearing is different, but the procedure for cleaning, checking, and greasing is the same:

CLEANING. Soak ball bearings in kerosene. Clean cups, cones and dust covers thoroughly with a rag dipped in kerosene.

INSPECTION. Check the balls for bluish color, pitting, or cracking. If one looks bad, replace the whole set. But make sure you get the right size replacements.

Inspect the walls of cups and cones for groving and pitting. Replace necessary parts. You should make it a practice to inspect everything you disassemble for cracks, stripped threads, and the like. It will prevent later problems.

LUBRICATION. Squeeze a thick bead of bearing grease around the cup. If the ball bearings are in a retainer ring, work the grease into the ring with your fingers. Otherwise, stick the proper number of balls into the grease in a circle. They will stay in place.

Here's how to take apart and reassemble the various bearings:

RATTRAP PEDALS. (Lube every six months.) Remove dust cap. Loosen cone nut beneath it. With crescent wrench on the inside end of the pedal, unscrew from the crank. (Caution: The pedal opposing the chain wheel has left-handed threads and untightens clockwise.) After the pedal is removed, undo the cone nut. Pull out spindle. Be prepared for loose ball bearings.

FROM PEDAL TO HEADSET — These four drawings represent the rattrap pedal, the wheel hub, crankshaft bearing and headset bearing. (Christian Science Monitor photos)

During reassembly, screw the cone down finger-tight. Back off one-quarter turn. Slide on the lockwasher. Holding the cone with a thin-bladed screwdriver, tighten down the cone nut.

If the pedal does not turn freely, loosen the nut and back the cone off one-eighth turn. The pedal should have a just-discernible amount of end-play. If it has too much, tighten the cone one-eighth turn.

WHEEL HUBS. (Lube every six months.) The procedure is almost identical to that above. But the bearings are loosened with two special wrenches called cone wrenches. These are broad and thin to fit the narrow cone and locknut used on hubs. Undo locknut and cone on one side. Disassemble. On most hubs you can remove the dust caps.

Follow the same tightening procedure used for pedals, except at the beginning back off the cone just one-eighth of a turn. To check your adjustment, hold the ends of the axle with your fingers and slowly rotate it. The wheel should not turn. If it does, the cones are too tight.

HEADSET. (Lube every 12 months.) First remove handlebars and their support (called the stem). It will be necessary to either undo the quick-release lever on the front brake or undo the cable from the front brake assembly. (You may want to mark the position of the stem.)

Loosen the bolt on top of the stem two or three turns. This attaches to a wedge that holds stem and fork together. If you unscrew it too far the wedge will fall down into the frame. Hit the head of the bolt with a mallet to jar the wedge loose.

Pull up and twist back and forth on the handlebars. It's best to have the front wheel on so you can keep the fork from twisting. After the stem is clear, remove the big chromed nut (fork cone locknut) and the washer beneath it. Next comes the adjustable cup that covers the ball bearings. Remove gingerly.

Look out for the other set of ball bearings at the bottom of the head tube. These will drop out as you remove the fork.

Turn the bicycle upside down to reassemble. Grease the lower bearing cup. Insert ball bearings. Slide the fork stem through the head tube. Hold the fork and frame tightly together to keep the bearings in place and turn the bicycle right side up. Grease the upper cup and position ball bearings.

Thread the adjustable cup onto the fork. With either wrench or pliers, depending on its design, tighten until there is no side or end-play and the fork turns freely.

Reinstalling the handlebars, be sure the stem slides at least 2½ inches into the fork. With handlebars any higher the stem may break or the frame bend.

"CRANKSHAFT BEARINGS. (Lube every 12 months.) There are three types of crankshafts, and therefore three fundamentally different ways to overhaul crankshaft bearings. It is the most important bearing and the most difficult to work on. For this reason, you will probably want to get a bicycle manual that describes in detail how to take apart your type of crankshaft, or else have your bicycle shop do the job.

Depending on wind conditions, Gary Koehler of Chandelle Marin will periodically demonstrate "hang gliding," a self-launching form of kite gliding.

Exhibits range from the 29th annual Marin County Art Show to film competition, and a photographic print and slide exhibition.

There will also be a flower and garden display, a model railroad demonstration and a fireworks display Saturday night over the lagoon.

Fifty Bay-Area artisans will demonstrate and sell varied and unique hand-crafted items, and food from foreign lands will be sold.

Concessions include a hay jump, dunk tank, moonbounce and an expanded carnival featuring a new sky wheel ride. The fair is scheduled from 10 a.m. to 10 p.m. daily, Thursday through Monday.

Petaluma Has New City Clerk

The former administrative secretary to City Manager Robert H. Meyer replaces Lillian Nommsen, who retired yesterday after 10 years in the post.

Mrs. Wilson, who was sworn in by Mayor Helen Putnam, is a native Pennsylvanian and has lived in southern Sonoma 24 years. She and her husband, Carl J. Wilson, have two children and live at 1333 McKenzie Avenue.

Alameda Barbers To Charge $4

OAKLAND (UPI) — It is going to cost $4 for a haircut in Alameda County.

Barbers Union Local 134 announced yesterday that the hike from $3.50 was necessary to keep up with inflation.

However, senior citizens will be able to get a haircut for $3.50 on weekdays except Saturdays.

Children's haircuts will go up 25 cents to $2.75 on weekdays and $3 on Saturdays.

New Transit Terminal Proposal Is Supported

Legislation to build a new downtown San Francisco transit terminal, primarily to serve Marin, Sonoma and East Bay bus commuters, was endorsed yesterday by a committee of Golden Gate Bridge District directors.

The unanimous recommendation by the public information-governmental affairs committee will go to the full bridge board at 10 a.m. on Aug. 9 in toll plaza offices.

The measure, AB 3694 by Assemblyman John F. Foran, D-San Francisco, is awaiting approval by the Assembly Ways and Means Committee. The bill would create the San Francisco Bay Area Transportation Terminal Authority to plan the project on the site of the present Transbay Transit Terminal at First and Mission streets.

The present terminal was built in 1939 to serve commuter trains from the East Bay and now is used by several bus operators, including the bridge district.

The proposed new terminal is "essential to the district's future planning," according to Gen. Mgr. Dale W. Luehring, both as a place to park the growing fleet between peak traffic hours and to handle the increasing number of Marin and Sonoma commuters using the buses.

Luehring said the new facility could be designed with a moving sidewalk to connect to the nearby Bay Area Rapid Transit District's Embarcadero station and the Ferry Building.

The present terminal is operated by the state but would be transferred to the new authority. The board's six members would be appointed by the bridge district, Alameda-Contra Costa County Transit District, San Francisco Board of Supervisors, BART, state transportation office and Metropolitan Transportation Commission.

Costs for the project have been estimated by state consultants at $10 million each for public and private transit operators and almost $73 million for the office towers above the terminal.

The consultants noted that district projections envision an average annual increse in Golden Gate Transit riders of about 6 per cent, with about 60,000 passengers a day to and from San Francisco by 1995.

Utilities Valuation Increases

The assessed valuation of public utilities in Marin rose $1.8 million during the last fiscal year, County Auditor-Controller Michael Mitchell reported yesterday.

He said the figures releated by the state show the assessed valuation at $36.5 million, which translates into an actual value of $146,192,040.

As a result of the increase, he said, the estimated county tax rate will drop .5 cent to $2.385 per $100 assessed valuation.

The assessed value of land owned by public utilities is shown at $4,486,080, up from last year's $4,407,360; improvements at $15,872,260, up from $14,972,814; and personal property at $16,189,720, up from $15,359,480.

Plane Is Flown Back To Manila

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — A Philippine Air Lines DC10 has been flown back to Manila after being seized by the U.S. government for allegedly violating Civil Aeronautics Board regulations.

The plane was allowed to return to its homeland after PAL posted a $200,000 surety bond.

U.S. marshals seized the plane last week upon its landing at San Francisco International Airport. Federal officials said PAL DC10s were not authorized to land in the United States.

Rules Set For Restaurant Help

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — People who work in restaurants won't have to eat there if they don't want to, and can take cash pay instead under a new California state policy.

The state Industrial Relations Department said yesterday that if an employee does choose to take meals as part of his pay, the employee can eat on company time.

The new ruling was issued, said Evelyn Whitlow, of the department's welfare section, because low-paid restaurant workers are finding it harder to make ends meet and might prefer to get the 90 cents cash instead of the breakfast that the employer deducts from their pay.

Mandatory Seat Belt System Said Failure

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A new study says that 41 per cent of the drivers of 1974 model cars are not wearing seatbelts despite a system which prevents them from starting their vehicles before putting on the belts.

A separate study published in the August issue of the American Journal of Public Health concludes that the buzzer-light system installed in some 1972 model cars and all 1973 models to remind drivers to use belts was "a public health failure."

Earlier model cars, though they may have had safety belts, had neither the warning nor ignition interlock systems.

In Puerto Rico, the only jurisdiction with a mandatory seat belt use law, only 18 per cent of drivers are wearing belts, says still another study, all of them publicized by the non-government Insurance Institute for Highway Safety.

The study on seat belt use in 1974 cars, conducted in late 1973 and early this year, indicates that belt use has increased among drivers in big city areas since the introduction of the so-called interlock system.

A federal standard effective Aug. 15, 1973, required a seat belt system that allows automobiles to start only under certain conditions.

"In spite of the interlock system, however, 41 per cent of drivers in the 1974 vehicles were not using any belts," said the study by Leon S. Robertson, a behavioral scientist with the non-profit institute.

Drivers were observed at 138 sites in Baltimore, Houston, Los Angeles, the New Jersey suburbs of New York City, Richmond, Va. and Washington, D.C.

Legislation is pending in the House of Representatives to allow purchasers of 1975 and later model cars to choose between ignition interlock and buzzer-light belt systems.

Flag Burning Teen-Agers Chastised

EAST LIVERPOOL, Ohio (UPI) — Two teenaged girls in this Ohio River Community of 20,000 apologized in a newspaper advertisement today for burning an American flag on a street here earlier this month.

The girls, Vicki Sue Noland, 15, and Frances Mia Curran, 16, were ordered to place the advertisement in the East Liverpool Review by a Columbiana County Juvenile Court Judge.

The ad entitled "An Apology" read:

"We have given serious thought to violation of state law and wrongful personal conduct in regard to our nation, committed when we burned an American flag July 1 on Fifth Street.

"In recognition of our own change of attitude and in compliance with the order by the juvenile court, we publicly apologize and declare we love our country."

Juvenile Court Judge Guy Mauro also ordered the girls to attend the raising and lowering of the American flag at City Hall until school starts this fall, observe a curfew for the next six months and not to communicate with each other by telephone, letter or in person for the next year.

He said he took the action to "impress upon the girls and minors generally that the American flag is something to be respected and not spit upon."

College Namesake

PITTSBURGH (UPI) — Duquesne University was named for Marquis Duquesne, the first man to bring Catholic observances here. He built Fort Duquesne in 1754 at the point where the Allegheny and Monongahela Rivers meet to form the Ohio.

Vitamin E Finding Its Proper Use

SAN DIEGO (UPI) — Vitamin E, which has stirred a tremendous amount of controversy both in the scientific and business worlds, at least appears to be finding its proper niche.

A San Diego firm, Mollenhauer Co., is using Vitamin E as a prime component in a vitamin preparation to protect people against smog and other respiratory problems.

The preparation, called Cloud Chasers, is to be introduced in August in health food stores across the country. It also contains vitamins A, C and B-12 and iodine.

Ever since it was discovered half a century ago, vitamin E has had doctors and scientists searching for its proper use. At various times, claims have been made that vitamin E is good for a vast number of conditions. In recent years it has had a remarkable sale based on a widespread belief, discounted and even refuted by scientists, that the vitamin increases virility.

The view that vitamin E is helpful in providing protection against ozone, carbon monoxide, nitrogen dioxide, sulfer dioxide and other air pollutants has been advanced in several scientific publications recently.

Dr. A. L. Tappel, professor of food technology at the University of California at Davis, wrote in Nutrition Today that vitamin E protects vitamin A, the vitamin most useful in protecting against smog and other air pollutants, from oxidizing and disintegrating. He based his conclusion on experimental administration of the vitamins to rats and their exposure to ozone and nitrogen-dioxide lung damage perils.

Dr. Jeffery Roehm of Battelle Memorial Institute reached a similar conclusion as did J.C. Somogyi, author of a book in toxicants occurring naturally in foods. However, Somogyi warned that the dosage of vitamin E must be carefully controlled because too much vitamin E could destroy the vitamin A instead of protecting it.

Nude Laundry Couple Charged

GALION, Ohio (UPI) — Linda Dolan, 32, Farmington, Mich., and James Gordinier, 38, Troy, Mich., went to a laundromat late Tuesday, undressed in their car and put their clothes in a washer.

A 14-year-old boy saw them and called police. They were sentenced to three days in jail yesterday on a charge of public indecency.

HOW TO KEEP WELL

By DR. THEODORE R. VAN DELLEN

Skim Milk In School Lunches Recommended By Researchers

Should the school cafeteria offer skim milk instead of whole milk?

Heart researchers have recommended this because they believe that avoiding foods with high cholesterol levels should start with childhood. Low-fat or skim milk contains all of the nutrients of whole milk, with none of the fat. Some types of skim milk are fortified with extra vitamins and minerals.

Studies published in the "Journal of the American Dietetic Association" showed that children and teen-agers are willing to substitute skim for whole milk. Researchers conducted the test by stocking cafeterias with whole, then skim milk during two controlled periods of time.

TO DETERMINE rate of consumption, they measured the milk remaining in individual cartons on Monday and Friday of each week during the two test periods. All students did not decrease consumption with the skim milk sampling even those in junior high, who least preferred all types of milk. Researchers were encouraged by the youngsters' ready substitution of low-fat milk.

Formaldehyde is found in clothing, shampoos, cosmetics, creams and other toiletries. It also is added to paper in paper products to strengthen it. Since only trace amounts are involved, there is no harm, unless, of course, the consumer is allergic to formaldehyde. Dr. William J. Schorr, dermatologist at the Marshfield Clinic in Wisconsin, traced the cause of dermatitis in the hands, edges of the armpits, neck and upper trunk of a number of his patients to the chemical. Women, particularly those with damaged skin, seem to be most susceptible.

DR. SCHOOR, who chemically analyzed 112 fabrics obtained from American textile manufacturers, found that all contained some free formaldehyde. The amounts were minimal, but enough to induce rashes in sensitive people.

Dr. Schorr tells women with hand dermatitis to stop using toiletries and performing all housework for at least three weeks or until healing occurs. Those with more generalized allergic reactions should wear old clothing because it has been washed many times, or that made of 100 per cent polyester knit or Orlon acrylic, which contain very little formaldehyde. A corticosteroid may be applied if inflammation exists.

Blondes who swim in chlorinated pools may surface with green hair. Temporary, greenish deposits on the hair are produced by the interaction between algicides added to pool water to retard the growth of algae and water purifiers containing copper compounds. This situation can be prevented by wearing a cap or not swimming in pools using algicides.

EAR INFECTION

M. S. writes: I had a middle ear infection two years. When it cleared up, the doctor said not to go swimming. Do you think it would be safe for me to swim this summer?

REPLY

Yes, provided the drum in the involved ear is closed. Check with your physician before you decide to swim.

HYPERTENSION

I. E. writes: Is it safe for a woman with high blood pressure to dye her hair?

REPLY

Yes, but her boyfriend's blood pressure might go up a notch or two if she gets too glamorous.

HIVES, ASTHMA

J. Z. writes: Do hives and asthma have anything in common?

REPLY

Yes. Both are allergic disorders.

CHILD IN HOSPITAL

T. L. writes: Should the mother arrange to stay the entire time at the hospital with her 4-year-old, who must be admitted for three days?

REPLY

No, her presence would upset the hospital routine. This might be worse for the child than the emotional trauma of being deprived of Mama. Hospitalized youngsters often cry when the parents get ready to leave for home, but ten minutes later, they are watching television or looking at a picture book.

B12 FOR ANEMIA

M.A.B. writes: Is anemia curable? I have been taking B12 shots for two years, but still can't pass a pre-employment physical examination.

REPLY

Many types of anemia are curable, especially those caused by a deficiency of iron or by bleeding. Pernicious anemia is easliy kept under control with vitamin B12. In my opinion, you need consultation to determine the exact cause of the anemia and whether or not the remedy you are taking is correct.

BRUSHING THE GUMS

M.V.B. writes: Some dentists recommend brushing the gums and others say it irritates them. Which position is correct?

REPLY

Brushing the gums is a form of massage and tends to make them firm and healthy. The cleansing movement should be toward the tooth. Most electric toothbrushes do this in a gentle way.

NATURE'S CAMERA

R. writes: Is it true that the pupil of the eye is just a hole?

REPLY

Yes, and it resembles the opening of a camera with a built-in light meter and range finder. It opens and closes by reflex, depending upon the amount of light and the distance of the object.

Dr. Van Dellen welcomes reader questions. While he cannot reply to them individually, he will answer those of general interest in his column. Write to Dr. Van Dellen, c/o the Independent-Journal, PO Box 330, 1040 B St., San Rafael, Ca. 94902.

Tax Hike, Not Sewer Charge Recommended

The Corte Madera Sanitary District should finance its budget with an increased tax rate rather than sewer service charges.

This will be the recommendation of the district's advisory commission to the town council, which sits as the district board, according to Clifford E. Temps, public works director.

Earlier, the council had thought the district was stuck with maximum tax rate of 45 cents under state legislation. Since this did not prove to be the case, the commission is recommending that the tax be raised to cover capital improvements termed "high priority items."

Temps estimated the tax rate needed will be about 72 cents per $100 of assessed valuation.

Ailing Treasurer Keeping Finger On Office's Pulse

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — Ailing state Treasurer Ivy Baker Priest said Wednesday she has been running her office from bedside most of this year because of a series of health problems.

She said she has spent only "three or perhaps four weeks" this year working at the treasurer's office in Sacramento.

The remainder of the time, Mrs. Priest said, she has carried out her duties from a hospital bed, her Palm Springs home or the Southern California homes of her two daughters.

In a telephone interview from Palm Springs, the 68-year-old grandmotherly treasurer said she has suffered anemia, a sprained foot, a slipped disc and pneumonia during the past year.

She announced in January she would not seek a third term because of her ill health. At the time she was undergoing extensive tests, including some to determine if she had cancer.

"It's been persistent. It's been one thing after another. I'm sick of it," she said.

Mrs. Priest served as U.S. Treasurer from 1952-60 and was swept into the state treasurer's office by the 1966 Republican landslide.

According to the state controller's office, there is no "sick leave" for state officers. Rather, Mrs. Priest will continue receiving her $35,000-a-year salary until her term expires in January.

Mrs. Priest said the medical tests showed she had "a marked anemia — my blood count was virtually nil." Since then, she said, treatments have corrected the anemia.

Asked if the tests found cancer, she replied: "I didn't ask and my doctors didn't tell me." She said she was taking weekly injections, but did not know exactly what they were for.

Although she has spent much of 1974 hospitalized or recuperating, she said her office has been run efficiently.

"I have the finest help in the world. They carry on beautifully," she said. "I talk with them on the telephone every day and I make the decisions from this end."

She also said she consults bankers in New York often about upcoming state bond sales and knows "everything that goes on in my office."

Mrs. Priest said she spent six weeks in the hospital from mid-January to March. After returning to Sacramento for a week, she fell at a San Francisco bankers meeting and sprained her foot.

After recovering in about two weeks, she returned to work for "a couple of weeks and whammo I got pneumonia."

Ever since she has been resting at her Palm Springs home or the homes of two daughters who live in Tarzana and Long Beach. She now hopes to return to work in Sacramento by Sept. 1.

TELEVISION REVIEW

Strike Won't Affect TV's Football Shows

By JAY SHARBUTT

NEW YORK (AP) — The three TV networks, electronic eyes steady and microphones ready, say their annual pro football blitz will start on schedule this month, even if some of the best-known players don't.

The 32-day-old NFL players' strike still is under way and less than 2½ weeks remain before the start of preseason play, a Cincinnati Bengals-Atlanta Falcons joust NBC will televise on Aug. 17.

Even if the strike isn't over by then, ABC, NBC and CBS officials say, there still are no current plans to drop any games from the three-network schedule of 196 games, from preseason to Pro Bowl.

The only uncertain note is sounded by a spokesman for ABC Sports President Roone Arledge, whose network has 18 pro games — including the Jan. 20 Pro Bowl in Miami — coming up this season.

Asked if ABC might not televise the games if the strike doesn't end, the spokesman replied: "That's a hard question, because we've talked about that and really haven't made a decision."

But he emphasized that as of now, ABC's schedule remains unchanged.

As if ABC doesn't have enough to worry about, its "NFL Monday Night Football" opener on Aug. 19 will, for the first time in its history, be competing against NBC's "Monday Night Baseball" game.

At CBS, and NBC, each facing an 89-game schedule, the official word is that no games will be dropped, even if the strike continues.

The year's pro football package is costing the networks in excess of $52 million.

Industry sources say ABC, whose games are in costly prime evening time, is charging national advertisers an average of $100,000 per minute for its preseason and regular season games.

The preseason tab at CBS and NBC is $60,000 and $49,000 a minute, respectively, sources say. The networks, which decline to say what prices they're charging, each plan to air three preseason games.

Californians Eligible For Drug Refunds

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — California residents were informed yesterday by State Attorney General Evelle J. Younger that they are eligible to receive cash refunds for purchase of antibiotic drugs between 1954 and 1966.

Younger said a federal district court has determined that residents of California and five other states were overcharged by five pharmaceutical companies.

Residents of the state during the 12 years, who purchased antibiotics, are eligible for a refund, Younger said. The state is currently mailing out refund forms to all California residents.

In filling out the forms, residents must estimate how much they spent but need not provide proof of purchase. Claims for less than $150 need not be documented.

California will receive about $20 million for refunds, Younger said. It has been estimated that the alleged overcharge was about 29 cents for each dollar spent.

The drugs, which include Aureomycin, Terramycin, Achromycin, Declomycin and Archrocidin have been used to treat respiratory and ear infections, strep throat, influenza and other ailments.

The court settlement was a result of a class action suit initiated by the attorney generals' offices in California, Hawaii, Oregon, Utah, Kansas and Washington. The expected refund will be about $25 million for the six states.

The settlement against American Cyanamid, Bristol-Myers, Pfizer and Company, Olin-Mathieson and Upjohn was reached in October, 1973. There was no trial, nor were the firms found guilty.

Forty-three other states settled with the drug companies earlier and North Carolina is litigating on its own.

Bradley Drug Trial Is Postponed To Aug. 27

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — A hearing into a drug case involving Phyllis Bradley, 29-year-old daughter of Los Angeles Mayor Tom Bradley was postponed yesterday when a co-defendant asked for a continuance.

The hearing was rescheduled for Aug. 27 by Municipal Court Commissioner Nancy Brown.

Carl Jones, an attorney for James Riley, 29, requested the postponement to acquaint himself with the case. He was hired yesterday morning.

Also charged with conspiracy to furnish cocaine and possession of maijuana and amphetamines, were Riley's wife, Ann Marie, 26, and David P. Liggins. The Rileys live in West Hollywood. Liggins and Miss Bradley are residents of Baldwin Hills.

Miss Bradley also faces charges of assaulting police officers. On June 27, she was manacled hand and foot when she allegedly kicked and scratched officers trying to arrest her after a chase by three patrol cars. The pursuit began when she made an illegal turn at a downtown intersection.

Miss Bradley was placed on probation in 1967 for stealing clothes from a car, and in 1972 pleaded guilty to marijuana possession. She was placed on six months probation.

Topless Tennis, Fun; Who Won?

MONTICELLO, N.Y. (UPI) — It's not whether you win or lose, it's how you play the game —just ask the spectators at was billed as the world's first topless tennis match.

The battle pitting Maria and Sandra against Nancy and Barbara — all of them topless dancers — was viewed by 150 persons, most of them middleaged males.

Barbara listened to instructions on the game and complained, "I've only played ball once before in my life."

Maria and Sandra won, but no one really paid attention to the score.

The match was sponsored by a motel, which donated proceeds to the Monticello Volunteer Ambulance Corps.

EVOLUTION ART INSTITUTE

A Goal Of Self-Sufficiency

By ERNEST MURPHY

"I used to paint human suffering," artist Bernard Baruch Zakheim recalled as he mixed a wheelbarrow of plaster at the Evolution Art Institute north of Petaluma recently.

"But then I decided that, with wars all the time and Nixon and everything, we don't need to be reminded so much.

"So I tried to think of something that everyone can appreciate, no matter what language they speak."

Zakheim gestured grandly toward two oils standing in the corner. "That's what I came up with — girls."

Zakheim, now in his 76th year but hardly showing it, was preparing the plaster so he could paint a fresco of the lovelies during the art institute's midsummer day celebration. It begins at 10 a.m. Aug. 11 at the organization's chicken house workshop at 6030 Roblar Road.

Fresco painting, the artist explained, began when civilized man learned to plaster the walls of his dwellings. The walls were bare and so artisans were employed to use paint to dim the glare of the overwhelming whiteness.

He explained how water colors are applied to a ground of damp plaster, allowing the pigments to meld with the medium into scenes of astounding vividness and clarity.

A native of Warsaw, Poland, Zakheim came to San Francisco in the 1920s to work as an upholsterer, later becoming a manufacturer of custom-made furniture.

To take his mind from his business, he continued the art studies he had begun as a youth, going to Mexico in 1930 to study with Diego Rivera. The next year he spent in Europe, studying the works of Giotto and Cimabue.

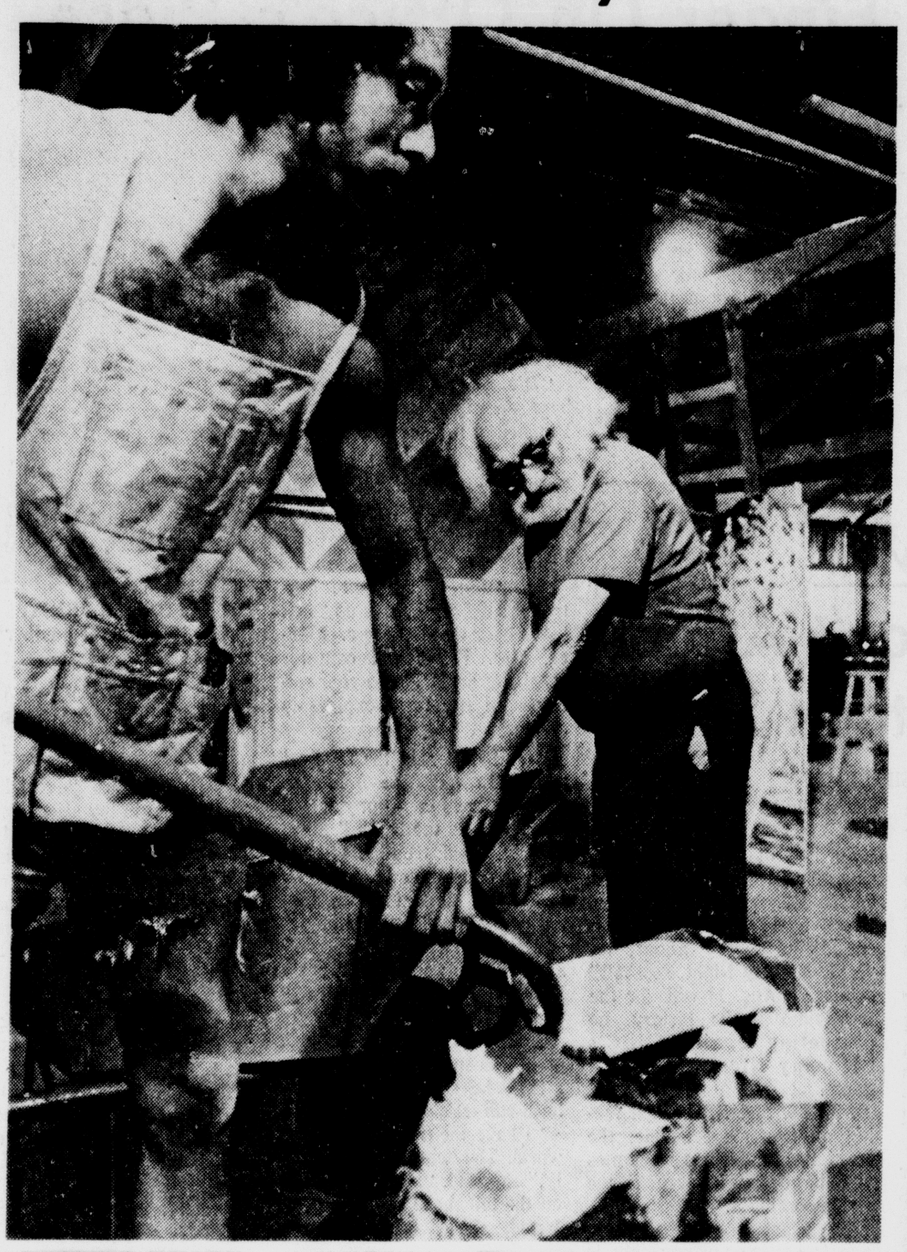
On his return to San Francisco in 1932, he won a competition to paint a fresco at the city's Jewish center. He also did one at the Alemany Health Center and one in Coit Tower atop Telegraph Hill.

Between 1936 and 1940 he executed murals at the University of California Medical Center, depicting the history of medicine.

The medical center works, which include blood-curdling scenes of wierd shamanistic rites, were criticized by faculty members, who felt they distracted the students. The murals were covered with wallpaper in 1948. (In 1968 Zakheim was commissioned to restore them. He took the job but disdainfully compared it to "trying to do what the nursery rhyme Humpty-Dumpty illustrates.")

In the years since 1941, when he moved to a farm near Sebastopol, he executed a sculptured shrine depicting the atrocities committed by the Nazis.

The shrine, in six tableaux fashioned from redwood, commemorates the Warsaw Ghetto uprising in which members of his own family were slaughtered. Critical acclaim of the work led to Zakheim's being named California artist of the year in 1972.



GETTING READY — Artist Bernard Baruch Zakheim (right) waits for Lawrence Dubey, one of the organizers of the Evolution Art Institute, to pass him some of the plaster to be prepared for use in the fresco Zakheim will create. The activity is part of a class to be taught in fresco painting at the institute. Zakheim is visiting there expressly to pass on to others his mastery of the ancient art.

According to Michael Gonzalez, president of the Evolution Art Institute, he begged Zakheim several years ago to teach him the fresco technique. Zakheim's participation in the midsummer day celebration is a fulfillment of the request.

During the celebration, which benefits the nonprofit institute, a "country luncheon" featuring organically-grown turkeys and vegetables will be served, while visitors view the works of Zakheim and the institute's craftsmen.

Gonzalez, the institute's founder, moved to Southern Sonoma from Los Angeles five years ago. At first, he said, he worked for a Sebastopol toy company, but grew restless when its commercial aspects overwhelmed the creative end.

So he took what money he received for his designs and inventions in the toy trade and invested it in a workshop which he envisioned as an "open studio" — a place where anyone could come to learn art techniques and craftsmanship.

Today, the institute has several dozen students from the area who come to learn techniques as diverse as blacksmithing, waste recycling, calligraphy, creative sewing, woodworking, plaster mold-making, ceramics, beekeeping, vegetable growing and, now, fresco painting.

"We'll learn the process from Bernard and then dispense it to others by teaching," Gonzalez said. "That's our main role here."

The institute's organizers, Gonzalez, Lawrence Dubey, Cathy Osman and Greer Upton, all are Southern Sonoma artists whose vision includes the creation of a self-supporting community of artisans something like the Baulines Craftsmen's Guild.

The turkies to be served at the luncheon were raised at the institute, and its members are now experimenting with the use of wind-driven electrical generators "so that some day we can cut loose from Pacific Gas and Electric," Miss Upton explained. Total self-sufficiency is the institute's long-range aim.

Behind the workshop stands a bathroom connected to composting tanks where sewage is broken down into burnable methane gas and compost.

The methane system, like the windmills taking shape inside the shop, is built from old 55-gallon drums and salvaged metal. Most of the materials used at the institute have been discarded as rubbish by someone else.

Right now, Miss Upton said, the ground are rented. But the institute's five-year forecast for self-sufficiency includes plans for eventual purchase of a permanent site.

After a year and a half of existence, the community of artists and craftsmen is attracting more students, and Gonzalez said it will apply in December for federal and private grants to expand its educational programs further.

It was missing four wheels, the radio and most of the engine parts, they told police.

Also missing, police said, was the man who ran the garage.

NFL Players Modify Four 'Freedom Issue' Demands

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The National Football League Players Association has modified four of its "freedom issue" demands in a bid to end the 32-day old strike against the NFL owners, it was learned today.

One of the changes would allow commissioner Pete Rozelle to retain his authority over questions involving "the integrity of the game" but would provide for an impartial arbitrator to handle the day-to-day grievances between a player and his club.

The revised offer, submitted to the owners at a marathon session which broke up at 1:45 a.m. EDT today, would also allow a veteran after four years to cancel a trade or waiver deal. The players also would be given the right of first refusal on any waivers.

The union also agreed that the regular college draft should continue, but with the stipulation that if a draftee was willing to sit out his first year of pro football, he would then be free to sign with the team of his choice.

The players also have made what was described as a "substantial" cut in their economic demands, it was learned.

As the owners and the players headed back for another tough round of negotiations at 2 p.m. EDT, a source close to the union commented on the owners' attitude.

"It seems to us they are trying to break the union instead of negotiating a contract. The strike is holding up very well under incredible pressures by the owners on individual players," he said.

There have been reports of owners offering veterans between $5,000 and $10,000 to cross the picket line and report to camp. Some players have alleged that owner Joe Robbie of Miami has threatened to sue all the players on his club who remain out of camp and coach Don Shula has threatened to trade player representative Doug Swift.

The players also were reported upset in that their full negotiating committee has shown up at every session called by federal mediator W. J. Usery, Jr. while the owners have been represented only by "a token few."

Yesterday's session began at 10 a.m., recessed for lunch at 1 p.m. and then settled down for what amounted to an endurance contest at 3 p.m.

Usery declined to say whether there had been substantial progress made during the course of the long day. But he said "There have been suggestions back and forth by both sides and you know how long we've been here."

He said that during the night session the controversial freedom issues had been discussed "long and hard."

"I wouldn't minimize the differences between them," he said of the bargaining. "It's very difficult and very tough."

Most of the morning was taken up with Usery and his aides meeting separately with bargaining representatives of both sides, although there was a joint meeting of one half hour before the luncheon recess.

The NFL players received some moral support from Marvin Miller, executive director of the Major League Players Association, who blasted football owners "for misleading fans and the American public."

Miller, in lining up his union with the NFLPA, pointed out that "the football players, in seeking impartial arbitration of differences which arise concerning the meaning or application of contract provisions, are asking no more than millions of wage and salary earners have had for years, including professional athletes in baseball, basketball and hockey." The bargaining representatives for the NFL Players Association and the owners' Management Council were kept throughout the long afternoon and night without supper. In the periods when Usery was meeting separately in another room with the owners, the players' representatives worked out with weights and other exercise devices, and then later played cards occasionally.

Had they been in training camp instead of bargaining with the owners, they would have been subject to a fine for violating the curfew. Of course, the players' demands include the elimination of such curfews and resultant fines.

Ellis On Way Out, Cazzie Back In

My Golden State Warrior spies tell me that forward Joe Ellis won't be with the team this season, but forward Cazzie Russell will.

Because of his tenure with the club (eight years), Ellis' annual salary is up to the $70,000 range and that is quite a bit for a number four forward. The Warriors are in the process of looking for a team that would like Ellis' services.

Russell, on the other hand, will probably return to the Warriors because a deal with the Lakers could not be arranged. He has played out his option and apparently was headed for Los Angeles. But so far, no deal.

The forward situation was going to get crowded because three rookies appear likely to make the team, and two of them are forwards — No. 1 draftee Keith Wilkes of UCLA nad No. 3 Frank Kendrick of Purdue. The other rookie to stick will be guard Phil Smith of USF, a No. 2 choice.

One man sure of his job with the Warriors is center Nate Thurmond. He was reported to be a very strong Pong player (you know, those electronic games with the bouncing ball). But the other night in the Positively Fourth Street bar in San Rafael, he lost three straight 15-love matches to a guy who was one foot, 7 inches shorter than Nate. This goes to show you don't have to be tall to be a good Pong player. Anyway, Nate was heard to murmer, "I shall return," as he ducked out the door.

ONE YOUNG MAN taking advantage of the National Football League's player strike is Tom Wickert of Greenbrae, the Redwood High and Washington State grad trying to win a job with the Miami Dolphins. He was drafted ninth last year with the thought of playing guard for the Dolphins but reports out of the Florida training camp say that Wickert will be playing offensive tackle, with a surprisingly good chance of making the club, even when the vets report. Tom's father, Henry J., is planning to fly to Cincinnati for the Dolphins' first exhibition game, against the Bengals Saturday.

"That's some birthday present," said Henry, who will be 55 the day of the game, "to see Tom in his first professional game."

A LITTLE NEWS ITEM for all you bocci ball fans: Ron Pastorino of Larkspur is the 1974 champ of Los Altos. Ron won the Los Altos Open Invitational Bocci Ball Tournament last weekend. And sayd Vince Scarich, president of the National Bocci Ball Association: "Ron played beautifully — the best I've seem him play."

ELEVEN-YEAR-OLD David Skuse of Petaluma didn't wait very long for his first hole-in-one. The son of publicist Dick Skuse used a trusty nine-iron to ace the short 64-yard fourth hole the other day at Liberty Valley's pitch and putt course. Said Liberty Valley pro Wayne Walters: "He's the youngest golfer to ever make a hole-in-one here."

THEY SAY IF YOU want to learn the dos and don'ts of soccer, Pele's the man to see. This is now possible for the members of the Marin Youth Soccer Association. KRON-TV has donated a series of six training films to the soccer group and star of the show is Pele, the Brazilian known as the best soccer player of all time.

Title of the series is, "Pele: The Master and his Method," and said Bob Braghetta, organizer of the Marin kids soccer league, "They are the finest athletic training films I've ever seen." The film will be shown to the various youth groups in Marin. If you want a showing for your group, check with Braghetta, of Ross.

New York Is Making Game Interesting

QBs Are Thrashed By Stars

By UNITED PRESS INTERNATIONAL

If the New York Stars have one knack, it's making a game interesting, even if the opponent is reduced to using a quarterback who hasn't played the position since high school. The Stars won, 24-16.

All three of the Stars' previous games were decided in the last two minutes and last night was no exception, although both Jacksonville quarterbacks — Kay Stephenson and Kim Hammond — were on the bench in the last quarter receiving medical attention.

Quarterback Tom Sherman gave the Stars a 24-16 lead early in the third period when he leaped over a pile of defenders for a touchdown and then passed to George Sauer in the corner of the end zone for the action point.

Then the Stars' defense, led by former National Football League All-Stars Gerry Philbin and John Elliott, took over. On the last play of the third period, they descended on Stephenson as he tried to pass and he went out with cartilage damage in his knee and bruised ribs.

In came Hammond and he was thrown for a nine-yard loss in his first play and then knocked unconscious on the second when the Stars' Jerry Ellison fell on his head. That left Jacksonville without a quarterback for almost the entire last period, but the Sharks still almost managed to pull it out.

Jeff Davis, a running back from Mars Hill activated just before gametime, was inserted at quarterback and after a rocky start, he twice brought the Sharks into scoring position only to be intercepted once and have a near TD pass ruled out of bounds.

Jacksonville even went to a shotgun formation before the Stars finally held on for the 24-16 win as Davis' pass in the end zone was knocked down with ⅛ seconds to go.

Tommy Durrance, the league's leading rusher, scored first for Jacksonville on a two-yard run and also ran for the action point. Bob Gladieux tied it for New York with a four-yard run and a plunge for the action point.

Stephenson hit tight end Dennis Hughes with a 56-yard TD pass and Ricky Lake ran for the action point for a 16-8 Sharks' lead, but Andy Huff's one-yard run and Sherman's action point pass to Ray Parson tied the score 16-16 at the half.

In other WFL action, the Birmingham Americans remained unbeaten by edging the winless Detroit Wheels 21-18, the Houston Texans upset the previously unbeaten Florida Blazers 7-6 and the Philadelphia Bell routed the Portland Storm 25-7. Southern California is at Memphis in the national television game tonight.

The league had its worst week in its month-long existence as far as attendance went but that was tempered by the fact that two of the league's smallest stadiums were in use. New York drew 15,648, Detroit 14,614, Houston 16,268 and Portland 13,757.

Americans 21, Wheels 18

Matthew Reed, subbing at quarterback for the injured George Mira, blasted through two tacklers at the goal line to complete a nine-yard TD run with 2:12 left that lifted Birmingham over Detroit.

Detroit had tied the score on a 55-yard run by Jessie Mims and went ahead with 3:49 to go on Eric Guthrie's 29-yard field goal.

Texans 7, Blazers 6

Jim Nance plunged for a TD in the first period — the first touchdown of the season for Houston — and the Texans' defense held on to upend Florida. John Mallory set up Nance's score with a 59-yard interception return and the Houston defense dropped Blazer quarterback Bob Davis six times attempting to pass.

Bell 25, Storm 7

King Corcoran hit 18-of-28 passes for 182 yards and two TDs as Philadelphia manhandled Portland. Corcoran threw TD passes of three yards in the second period and nine yards in the fourth period to tight end Levell Hill and set up a 48-yard field goal by Richie Szaro in a 17-point second period outburst that also featured John Land's 31-yard TD run following a blocked punt recovery.

HOLD ON TO YOUR HAT

A's To Open Swing In Chicago

OAKLAND (UPI) — The Oakland A's open a nine-game road trip in Chicago tonight after being edged 7-6 by the Texas Rangers yesterday in Oakland.

The A.L. West leaders erupted for six third-inning runs to overcome a 5-0 Rangers' lead, but then ran smack into the relief slants of Steve Foucault and were held hitless the rest of the way.

Foucault, who fanned five in four and two-thirds innings, called the stint "my best job of the season" as he evened his record at 4-4.

"The A's have a strong team," he said, "and it will be tough to overcome their big lead in the division. But if they hit a bad slump, we can overtake them."

The Rangers are still 8½ games behind the defending champions.

"You wouldn't think that the A's are the kind of team that would have a bad slump," Foucault added, "but you never can tell. Anything can happen."

Texas pinned the loss on Oakland reliever Paul Lindblad (4-3) on the strength of Tom Grieve's eighth-inning sacrifice fly. Earlier, American League runs batted in leader Jeff Burroughs knocked in three runs with a homer and single off Jim Hunter to bring his total to 80.

Hunter has been bombed in two straight starts.

Correll Certain One Run Enough

ATLANTA (UPI) — Catcher Vic Correll thought Phil Niekro was pitching so effectively last night that "once we got one run, I knew we had the ball game."

Correll was right. One run would have been enough as Niekro shut out the San Francisco Giants.

But just to make sure the game didn't get away, Correll chipped in with a grand slam home run in Atlanta's 9-0 victory.

It was Correll's first home run in the major leagues.

Newsmen crowded around Correll after the game, asking him how it felt to hit his first homer, and with the bases loaded. He said he wasn't very good at describing his feelings.

"Once it went over the fence, I kinda got a big smile on my face as I ran the bases," he volunteered.

The writers kept on pressing.

"Well, I was kinda fired up about it," he said. "When I got to the dugout I was doing a lot of screaming and hollering."

Correll was entitled to do "a lot of screaming and hollering" but he had to share the spotlight with Niekro. The veteran knuckleball specialist gave up only four hits in pitching his second consecutive shutout. He is tied for the league lead in shutouts and has pitched 21 consecutive innings without giving up a run.

It was the second time Correll has been Niekro's catcher and both games have been shutouts.

"It's got to mean something," Niekro said when asked about his effectiveness with Correll. "He was mixing up the pitches a lot tonight. I was using the knuckleball less — I used three or four different pitches during the game. He just called a great game."

The win was the fourth in six games for new Atlanta manager Clyde King, who replaced Eddie Mathews during the all-star game break last week.

Rookies, Free Agents In 49ers' Lineup

GOLETA, Calif. (UPI) — San Francisco 49er coach Dick Nolan has announced a starting lineup for Saturday night's exhibition game in San Diego that — assuming the National Football League players strike is settled — won't bear much resemblance on the regular season's lineup.

Two veterans who reported last week, defensive end Cedrick Hardman and linebacker Willie Harper, will be starting, but Nolan said they wouldn't play very long.

Otherwise, the 49ers will go with a variety of rookies and free agents, few of whom even figure to be around once the veterans report.

Rookie Tom Owen of Wichita will start at quarterback.

Top draft picks running back Wilbur Jackson and defensive tackle Bill Sandifer will both sit out the game, with Sandifer doubtful for most of the season following a knee operation.

Jackson has a severe ankle sprain and is not expected to play for three or four weeks.

One healthy rookie Nolan is high on his second-round choice Keith Fahnhorst of Minnesota, who can go at tight end or offensive tackle.

Nolan says the big rookie from Minnesota has shown "tremendous" blocking ability and a good ability to catch the ball, although he doesn't have great speed.

Running backs against San Diego will include Delvin Williams and Roy Snell with Mike Bettiga and Clint Haselrig as wide receivers.

One rarity may find Vic Washington, the 49ers' top rusher the past two seasons, getting a shot at defensive safety.

Oakland, Dallas May Wage War Through Air

OAKLAND (UPI) — There should be some flashy passing statistics Saturday night when Dallas and Oakland clash here in the National Football League exhibition opener.

That's because veteran Dallas quarterback Craig Morton and Raiders' star Ken Stabler both have crossed the picket lines and will start for their respective teams.

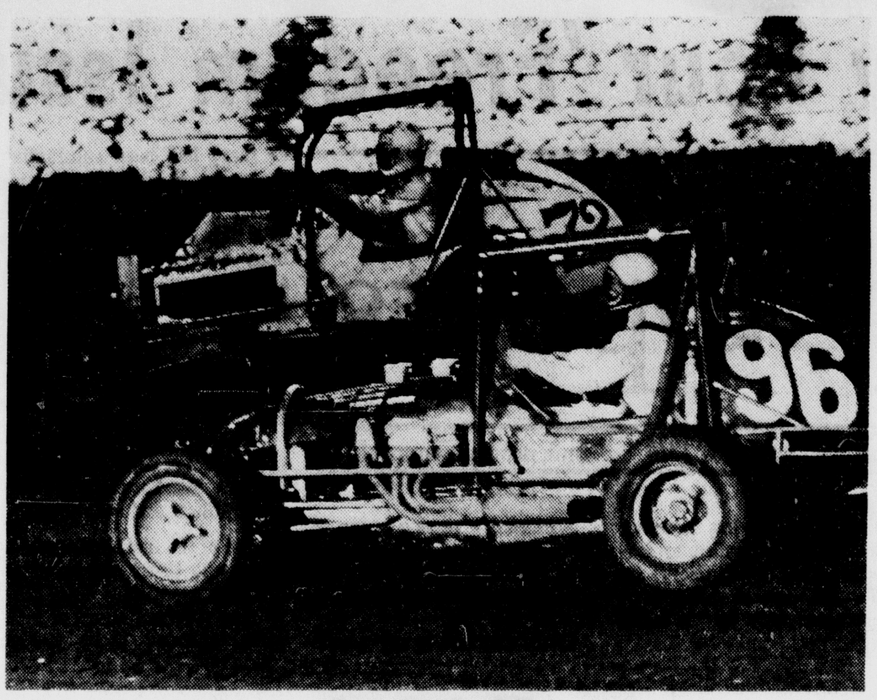
What's more, Morton will have veteran Golden Richards at one wide receiver spot, while Stabler will be able to throw to Fred Biletnikoff, the veteran who is 18th on the NFL's all-time reception list.

Stabler will hand off to 11th-round draft pick Harold Hart and nine-year veteran Pete Banaszak at running backs.



ON THE GO

Larkspur driver Gary Ramsier (car No. 96), shown competing recently in Calistoga, will be in the field for the Northern Auto Racing Club sprint races Saturday night at the Petaluma Speedway. Proceeds will go to the 20-30 Club of Petaluma for charitable activities in the area. Qualifying begins at 7:30, with the first race at 8:15.

It was a pitchers' duel when Bank of Marin and Toby's locked horns, Bank of Marin's Mike Bird hurling a no-hitter for six innings. He struck out 10. Toby's pitcher, Tom Cronin fanned 14 batters. The game was called after 10 innings because of darkness.

Ilana Kloss Lifts Gaters By Chicago

OAKLAND (UPI) — The Golden Gaters, two games down going into the final mixed doubles, pulled out a 6-3 win for a 25-24 World Team Tennis victory over Chicago.

Frew McMillen and Ilana Kloss, the star of last night, took the key match from Kim Warwick and Janet Young of Chicago.

Four matches produced 6-3 scores with only Dick Bohrnstedt's 7-6 win over Chicago's Butch Bucholtz varying the pattern.

Sue Stap beat Leslie Hunt of the Gaters and Miss Hunt and Miss Kloss topped Miss Stap and Miss Young to give the Gaters a one-point lead after three matches.

But then Graham Stillwell and Warwick downed McMillen Bohrnstedt in men's doubles to set up the final confrontation in mixed doubles.

"I don't think Ilana missed two shots all night. She was super," said a Gaters' spokesman afterwards. A crowd of 1,716 watched the action.

N.L. Umpire Pelekoudas In Fair Condition

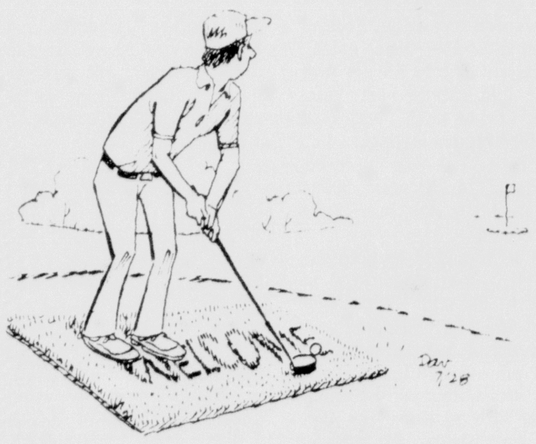
PHILADELPHIA (UPI) — National League umpire Chris Pelekoudas was reported in fair condition at Methodist Hospital early today, suffering from hypertension and high blood pressure.

Pelekoudas, 56, was rushed to the hospital when he fell ill in the second inning of the Philadelphia-St. Louis game last night.

A spokeswoman at the hospital said Pelekoudas, a resident of Sunnyvale, Calif., did not suffer a heart attack or stroke as was first believed by some onlookers at Veterans Stadium.

"He has been admitted to the hospital," the spokeswoman said. "He has hypertension and high blood pressure."

TREVINO TALKS GOLF



Those Matty Tracks

By LEE TREVINO

To be perfectly honest, some guys play matty fairways — where the turf is heavily thatched — better than I do because I beat down on the ball so hard.

Sometimes this makes the divot curl instead of fly, so the ball doesn't come off of it crisp. Well, there's different strokes for different blokes, which explains the opposing methods that Gary Player and I use on matty fairways.

Gary moves the ball up for these shots, and I play it back. It's hard to criticize a man who's won every major tournament, so I won't. He plays the ball forward, with his hands slightly behind the ball, and hits it a little cleaner than on a normal swing.

That's Gary's way. But a pro can sweep the ball off the thatch where the ordinary golfer will skull it into the next county.

My method is to play the shot from well back in the stance. The reason is that matty fairways catch the heel of the club first — like shooting from tall rough — and smothers the ball.

Choke down a mite on the grip for better club control. As you get closer to the green, shorten your swing to about three-quarters. You'll get a cleaner contact.

Royals Obtain Veteran Cepeda

Combined AP & UPI

KANSAS CITY, Mo. — The Kansas City Royals reported yesterday the acquisition of Orlando Cepeda, who hit .289 last season for the Boston Red Sox as a designated hitter while plagued by a knee ailment.

Cepeda became a free agent when he drew his release from Boston last March. The Red Sox used him last season exclusively as a designated hitter. He ranked second among all designated hitters in runs batted in, homers, doubles, hits and at bats. He hit 20 home runs and drove in 86 runs.

The 36-year-old Cepeda ranks 19th on the all-time major league home run list with 378 in a career which dates back to 1958 when he started with the San Francisco Giants and became a unanimous choice for national league rookie of the year.

Training Program In America's Cup

NEWPORT, R.I. (UPI) — Alan Bond, the real estate developer from Australia who is sponsoring that nation's America's Cup challenge, yesterday ordered all crewmembers to go on a strict training program.

Bond set a midnight curfew for all hands and ordered daily exercises at 6 a.m., hoping to get the crew in top-notch shape to challenge America's supremacy in yachting's most famous series.

The Australians, with an average age of about 28, are the oldest among the competitors, but all are veterans of yacht racing. The youngest member of the team is Rod "Rat" Sterling, 24, competing in his second America's Cup challenge.

By comparison, the average age of the American crewmembers for defending champion Intrepid and challenger Courageous is about 25, while the youngest of the crews is the French group, averaging about 21, with none having anything more than preliminary trial experience.

Observers also report that it appears the Australians are concentrating more and more on Southern Cross as the likely vessel to make that nation's challenge. The last time out for the two boats, Sunday, Southern Cross beat Gretel II by 8½ minutes.

The ships ran six legs of onehalf mile each, meaning the sail handlers had to perform about 150 maneuvers.

Following the practices, the crews and the observers compared notes in an effort to choreograph each maneuver to perfection.

It was also announced that the other United States' hopeful, Mariner, was expected to return to Newport on Saturday.

Stargell, Seaver To Play Key Roles in Flag Chase

By UNITED PRESS INTERNATIONAL

It has now become increasingly clear: Willie Stargell and Tom Seaver, two superstars who have gone their separate ways when the season-end baseball writers awards are given out, will once again play key roles in outcome of the National League Eastern division mini-pennant race.

The Pittsburgh Pirates and New York Mets — who've traded NL East titles back and forth since the inception of the two-division set-up, completed a three-game series yesterday with the Bucs taking an 8-3 decision.

But besides giving the Pirates two out of three at Shea Stadium, yesterday's "rubber" game also focused clearly on Stargell and Seaver.

Elsewhere in the NL, Montreal swept a doubleheader from Chicago, 7-4 and 4-0, St. Louis outlasted Philadelphia 9-8, Cincinnati blanked Houston 4-0, Atlanta whitewashed San Francisco 9-0 and Los Angeles rocked San Diego, 15-4.

Stargell, who in the last three years has suffered two bitter setbacks in the NL most valuable player sweepstakes, put the Pirates on their way with a two-run homer in the first inning. Seaver, winner of two Cy Young awards, was bombed for 12 hits and eight runs in 4 1-3 innings to suffer his seventh loss.

Dodgers 15, Padres 4

Ron Cey hit a pair of three-run home runs and drove in eight runs to set a Los Angeles club record as the Dodgers overwhelmed the Padres.

Cardinals 9, Phillies 8

A pair of big innings plus the gutty pitching of veteran Bob Gibson pushed the Cardinals into a first place tie with the Phils in the topsy-turvy East race.

Reds 4, Astros 0

Cincy southpaw Don Gullett twirled a two-hitter to gain his 13th win of the season against seven losses. The Reds bunched all their runs in the second and third innings, while Johnny Bench and Cesar Geronimo had two hits apiece and each scored a run.

Expos 7-4, Cubs 4-0

Rookie righthander Dennis Blair combined with reliever John Mantague on a two-hitter in the nightcap, while Mike Jorgensen drove in five runs — all of them unearned to power the Expos in the opener.

Knicks Top Benecia In Baseball

BENECIA — Novato Knickerbockers downed Benecia Industries, 6-3, yesterday in a Sacramento Rural League baseball game.

Novato pitcher Ken Siler struck out 17 and walked six in hurling his four-hit victory. Key blow of the game was a two-run double by Tom Conklin in the third inning. It put Novato ahead, 3-2, a lead it never relinquished.

Novato's league record is now 11 wins, 6 losses, two games behind division leading Santa Rosa (9-4).

AMERICAN LEAGUE

Bad Times For Gaylord

By UNITED PRESS INTERNATIONAL

Just a month ago, Gaylord Perry couldn't lose. Now he can't win.

Perry, who hasn't won since July 3, was shelled for six runs in four innings by the Baltimore Orioles Wednesday night as he failed in his fifth try for his 16th victory. The Orioles wound up with a 7-4 triumph over Cleveland.

Back on July 3, Perry won his 15th straight victory to boost his record to 15-1. He was one game away from tying the American League record for consecutive victories. Now he's 15-5 and has lost four straight.

Perry is philosophical about it all.

"Generally you lose because you make pitches you shouldn't have made. An example was the 0-2 pitch I threw to (Bobby) Grich that he hit for the single in the first inning."

In the other games, Kansas City edged Minnesota 3-2, Texas nipped Oakland 7-6, California routed Chicago 14-4, Boston edged Detroit 5-4 and New York beat Milwaukee 4-3.

Red Sox 5, Tigers 4

Luis Tiant won his fifth straight complete game victory to pick up his 16th triumph and tie Wilbur Wood for the league lead as the Red Sox downed the Tigers.

Royals 3, Twins 2

Amos Otis' two-run homer in the ninth lifted Kansas City to the victory over Minnesota.

Yanks 4, Brewers 3

Dick Tidrow and Sparky Lyle combined for a six-hitter to lift the Yanks to te triumph over Milwaukee.

Angels 14, White Sox 4

Designated hitter Frank Robinson drove in three runs with a pair of doubles to lead California to the triumph over the White Sox.

Frazer Well Practiced For Tourney Of Champs

(Last of a six part series)

If George Frazer fails to win the eighth annual Marin County Tournament of Champions, it won't be because he hasn't practiced.

Frazer, nine time club champion at Meadow Club in Fairfax, plays on the average five times a week. So he'll be anything but rusty when he faces the club champs of Marin's five other regulation courses Sunday at San Geronimo National.

Sponsored by the Independent-Journal, the TOC is played on a rotating basis at all the courses. Last year at Indian Valley in Novato, Frazer finished in a tie for third with a 76.

The man he tied, Al Randig of Indian Valley, and Mat Palacio Jr., of Novato's Marin Country Club, who came in second and won the event in 1971, will also be in the field. The other three golfers will be first-timers; Jim Sherbert of San Geronimo, Elmo Petterlo of Peacock Gap in San Rafael, and Dave Cardy of Mill Valley.

Frazer, a retired real estate broker who lives in Daly City, carries a six handicap. Palacio is lowest with a two, followed by Cardy with a three and Sherbert with a five.

Stock Trading Dull With Mixed Returns

NEW YORK (UPI) — Stock prices turned mixed on the New York Stock Exchange early today in the aftermath of a five-day losing streak. Trading was dull.

Declining issues still held a strong lead over gainers, however, 602 to 397, among the 1,420 issues traded. Most stock groups were mixed in fractions with only the airlines showing general improvement. Oils took small losses with Getty, Halliburton and Kerr-McGee showing drops of more than a point.

Blue chips also registered marginal changes of less than a point in either direction.

Concern over inflation and the possibility of a further hike in record high interest rates apparently dampened investor enthusiasm.

Weekly bank loan and short-term interest rate figures due to be released after the market close could provide a clue as to the immediate path of interest rates.

Stocks on the American Exchange declined slightly in quiet trading. Standard Metals, the volume leader, rose ⅛ to 6 ⅛ on 19,100 shares.

SUCCESSFUL INVESTING

Income Sought In Bond Issues

By ROGER E. SPEAR

Q. I have $50,000 in cash to invest for income and safety. I am interested in purchasing some high rated bonds. Would you recommend two or three issues? — W.C.

A. Bell Telephone Company of Pennsylvania has recently offered $175 million in 9⅝ per cent debentures due July 15, 2014. Rated AAA, this issue is trading just under par to yield 9.65 per cent to maturity. Virginia Electric & Power has also marketed an attractive issue carrying a 10½ per cent coupon. This A-rated first mortgage bond is due July 1, 1983, but is call-protected to 1982. In recent trading, this bond has changed hands at just above par value. In the more seasoned sector, Philadelphia Electric 8¼s of 1996 has investment merit. This first mortgage bond is double A rated and is currently trading around 83. At this discounted price, the NYSE-listed bond yields 9.9 per cent currently.

Q. I am contemplating purchasing shares of Pacific Telephone & Telegraph (NYSE). I would like your opinion of this stock. — A.T.

A. Despite the 8.6 per cent yield currently abailable on these shares, I would be inclined to look elsewhere for income and/or growth investments. In the first half through May, earnings were off 13 per cent on an 11 per cent increase in common shares outstanding, while revenues gained 8 per cent. Thus, dividend coverage narrowed somewhat in the six-month period. Operating in a less-than-generous regulatory climate, Pacific has filed for a $290 million rate increase, while the California Public Utilities Commission has recommended a $114 million cut. However, some compromise proposal will undoubtedly be forthcoming. Without some meaningful rate relief, Pacific's earnings will be below the $1.59 per share of 1973.

The company plans to spend $975 million for construction this year. In June, a $250 million bond offering was marketed and an equity offering may be forthcoming soon to finance these expenditures. Additional debt and/or equity offerings are probable before year-end, further burdening the company's profit performance. Shares should be avoided for the present.

New French Coffee Shop Will Open In San Rafael In August

La Patisserie, a new coffee shop featuring French pastries and rolls, will open about mid-August at 1335 Fourth Street in San Rafael, the present site of Little Vienna pastry shop and coffee house.

Little Vienna, operated by Ziegfried Heidtke of San Rafael for nine and one-half years, closed yesterday. Heidtke said he plans to take it easy for a few months and has made no definite plans beyond that.

Owner of the new La Patisserie (which means pastry shop in French) will be Jean Lassus, who has owned the Le Bistro restaurant in San Anselmo, 417 San Anselmo Avenue next to the former Home Market, for the past four and one-half years. Lassus will operate both the Le Bistro and his new shop in San Rafael.

The new La Patisserie will serve coffee, pastries and rolls, featuring such items as croissants and brioches, favorite morning rolls in France. Lassus said he is remodeling the former Little Vienna site and should be ready to open about Aug. 15.

Hours at the La Patisserie will be from 8 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. Monday through Saturday.

ALBA'S FASHIONS, formerly located at 1125 Grant Avenue in Novato, has moved three blocks to 1417 Grant Avenue (former Mode O'Day location) in the Town and Country shopping center.

Alba's Fashions, established two years ago in Novato, features misses and half sizes "with the young look." Owner Alba Silva of Petaluma said her new store is much larger than the former shop, has plenty of parking, and allows her to give her customers better and more personalized service.

BOYD LANG, Marin realtor and contractor, has been appointed vice president and manager of the Marin County division of Corinthian Realty. Herb Samuels, president of the Marin and Sonoma County general brokerage firm, announced the appointment.

Lang was trained in his father's chain of about a dozen San Francisco offices and was also responsible for numerous investor-financed projects including motels, condominiums and single-family residential developments.

Corinthian Realty plans to move into its new quarters at 700 E Street in San Rafael when the building is completed later this month.

WINONA AMERICA Indian Trading Post at 814 Grant Avenue in Novato, next to the Novato Art Center, will move on Sept. 15 to Santa Fe, New Mex.

Pierre and Sylvia Bovis, who opened their store three and one-half years ago, specialize in various artifacts, books and hobbyist supplies. Bovis, an appraiser of Indian artifacts, has published books on American Indian and Eskimo basketry. Winona Trading Post is a mail order supplier and puts out a Book Catalog of more than 600 titles and a Supplies Catalog of Indian hobbyist supplies.

The Bovises announced that Santa Fe is a mecca for students and collectors of Indian lore, and their new store will be in the midst of 19 Indian pueblos.

"We hope our friends and customers will drop into Winona Trading Post in Santa Fe," said Bovis. Their new address will be PO Box 324, Santa Fe, New Mex., 87501.

MILDRED HOWIE, Marin County writer and publicist, won a third place award from the National Federation of Press Women for her work on the brochure, "California—A State of Involvement" produced for the California Arts Commission.

GEORGE J. STOLTZ of Kentfield has joined Bernadette Talbott Advertising in San Francisco as an account executive.

A veteran of 12 years in the advertising industry, Stoltz moves from radio station KFOG-FM in San Francisco. He also held management and sales positions with Volkswagen, American Broadcasting Co. and the broadcasting division of RKO.

SEVEN MARIN County agents are members of the 1974 Top Club of New York Life Insurance Company.

They are William V. Brody, Arthur P. Brody, Cyrus J. Shaw, and Jack R. DeBruin, all of San Rafael; Lowell Zellers and Cesare M. Nencini of Mill Valley; and Rolland R. Pieper of Petaluma. They have qualified to attend an educational conference in Vancouver, B.C. Top Club membership is based on 1973-74 sales records.

Taxable Sales Rise In Marin

Taxable sales in Marin County for the first quarter of 1974 were up 5.7 per cent for a total of $119,884,000, but the increase was due to higher prices and not to increased volume, according to State Board of Equalization member William M. Bennett.

Sales in the principal cities in the county were: San Rafael $53,830,000; Novato $11,218,000; Corte Madera $9,617,000; and Sausalito $8,950,000. In Southern Sonoma County, Petaluma had taxable sales of $16,821,000.

Statewide, the consumer prices during the first quarter of 1974 averaged about 8.5 per cent above the level of the comparable quarter in 1973. Prices of food for home consumption were up 17 per cent over the previous year.

SERVING ALL OF MARIN COUNTY

TODAY'S EDITORIAL

State Should Plug Food Stamp Abuses

California's welfare chief is urging reforms to plug the "appalling lack of accountability" in the food stamp program.

David Swoap, director of the Department of Benefit Payments, told newsmen at a Sacramento press conference that his recommendations for reform have been forwarded to Governor Reagan. If initiated, Swoap said the recommendations could save taxpayers $200 million in federal, state and county funds.

There are 1.3 million Californians receiving food stamps at a cost of $420 million a year to the federal government. Nationwide, the growth of the food stamp program has been rapid. As recently as 1971, it cost only $1.6 billion, but this year it is programmed for more than $4 billion. The number of people receiving food stamps nationwide rose from 6.5 million in 1970 to 13.6 million at latest count.

REFORMS TO save taxpayers' money are particularly welcome at this time, when spiralling food costs are pricing many staple food products beyond the reach of the average wage-earner. Food stamps (food dollars bought at discount) artificially increase the supply of food purchasing power and therefore contribute to price rises, as more money competes for the same amount of food commodities.

It may be argued that the demands on food staples are not affected by the amount of food stamps issued because people must have the bare necessities, stamps or no stamps. That may be true in theory, but in actual practice, we suspect that stamps do get into the hands of the undeserving and contribute to the inflationary trend.

FURTHERMORE, the laxity in the food stamp and in other public aid programs in the state encourages migration into California and contribute to the population pressures that are taxing our schools and housing facilities. Experts are predicting that California's current population of 21 million can double, to 43 million, in the next 45 years. That figure is predicated on an annual migration of 150,000 into the state.

Reforms in the food stamp program should not, and we are sure, will not victimize or harass individuals and families who are deserving. But a crackdown is overdue on the well-to-do or the children of the well-to-do who find loopholes to cash in on the program while the elderly and the moderate income families do without to stretch the inflated dollar.

MR. SWOAP'S recommendations include tightening of eligibility requirements for college students who are receiving food stamps, more accountability and stricter control to insure that the stamps are reaching their proper destinations.

The public must depend on state and county officials to crack down on abuses in this field because individual citizens are in no position to help spot violations.

WHENEVER WE see others in the grocery line paying for cartloads of fruits, vegetables, and meat with food stamps, we have a right to some assurance that they are more deserving than we of the public aid that we are helping to provide.

"The nearest thing to good news these days is when the bad news doesn't get any worse."

WHAT OUR READERS SAY

55 Mile Speed Limit Makes Good Sense

In all the various articles concerning retaining or cancelling the 55 Miles per hour speed limit I have not seen any reference to two pertinent facts.

1. The high cost of imported oil has turned our international trade balance back to red ink.

2. There is no assurance that we will not be faced again with an oil embargo.

Does it not seem good sense to conserve fuel? And one way to conserve fuel is to cut down on high speed. At the same time, I understand, it cuts down on air polution.

Recently I made a round trip to Bellingham, Wash. and stuck to the 55 mile limit. Not once did I suffer the experience of being harassed by speeders, as stated in a recent article by a columnist whose name escapes me. I do agree with his statement that the trucks are the worst offenders, and not once did I see a truck halted by the highway patrol officer.

Cities Should Not Tax To Maximum

Recently I read an article in the Independent-Journal in which the city manager of Larkspur criticized the county assessor relative to estimates made by the assessor's ofice of the assessed valuation for the City of Larkspur.

Apparently the assessor's estimated assessed valuation was higher than they actual turned out to be. The result of this difference was that the City of Larkspur had to reduce its budget to coincide with levying the maximum tax rate times the actual assessed valuation.

It seems to me that it is an irresponsible act for the City of Larkspur to attempt to set thier budget at the maximum amount allowable rather than at the amount actually needed to operate the City of Larkspur. With approximately three-fourths of the Marin homeowners having been reassessed dramatically, the tax bills would be "out of sight" if every public entity followed the City of Larkspur's maximum-tax-rate approach.

The current estimated assessed valuation of Larkspur (after the correction) is 9½ per cent higher than the preceding year. Surely this should be enough to meet the required operating costs without further "socking it to the taxpayer."

Housing Districts Would Do The Job

Your Article, this date, "County eyes Housing Unit Shift" bears the need of comment.

It is believed that the formation of "housing districts" can best serve the purpose of the people in need of assistance in the low-medium bracket and the small homeowners existing on their meagre pensions and limited income.

The President has recommended that the government get out of the housing buisness. Mr. George E. Romney, former director of HUD, resigned in protest of the absolute waste of hundreds of millions of dollars by mismanagement in this bureaucracy.

A housing district would be representative of the people they serve and preserve the basis of local autonomy in their association with all other local agencies.

Historically, this system was most successful for our Pilgrim forefathers and native Americans.

Wage Hikes Add To Economic Decline

"A worker is entitled to that which he produces" is a statement few would deny.

However, it is unfair to the community, when workers demand, not only the goods they themselves produce, but also those things in which they had no part in creating.

Wages are fair, only when they provide replacements, in keeping with their consumption, otherwise we have a wasting economy.

Recognizing the purpose of wages, should enable us to understand how wage hikes are adding to the nation's economic deterioration, simply because they do not replace that which they consume.

The impact of this diminution of supply is not readily recognizable in the economy, because its loss in value is covered by taking from the elderly, what which, required life times of hard work and savings in their creation.

If we are ever to correct our economic difficulties, we must realize that no economy can give people what they want, only what they produce.

Women Physically Unsuited For Patrolling Of Highways

By EARL G. WATERS

Unfortunately for those who work sincerely for equal pay for equal work as it applies to the sexes, the activists in the so-called womens liberation movements constantly seem to be engaged in attempts to change what God created.

In failing to recognize that there are basic differences between man and woman, which no human can legislate otherwise, such activists more often harm than aid the cause of equal pay for equal work.

For, with reckless abandon, they seek to install women in jobs which can best or only be filled by men. Such an example is that of women seeking jobs as state traffic officers.

THERE ARE PLACES in law enforcement where women can perform as well as men, such as criminal identification and many types of investigations. Those doors should be wide open to the female sex. But when it comes to restraining violent, ruthless criminals, few women, if any, are physically or mentally suited.

And, there are assignments in the Highway Patrol which can just as well be handled by women. Such things as weigh stations and auto safety inspections are among them. However, claiming women can function as highway patrolmen because of such assignments ignores the fact that those duties are below the qualifications of state traffic officers and should not now be performed by such highly paid personnel. The patrol already has come to that conclusion regarding weigh stations and has nearly phased out the use of patrolmen in favor of lower paid civilian personnel.

BUT IN THEIR basic job of patrolling the highways the awful fact is that the state traffic officer is constantly exposed to the hazard of confrontations with desperate armed criminals. Despite this the Patrol has been mandated by the legislature to launch a pilot program to determine the practicality of employing women as state traffic officers.

To get things underway the Patrol recently held an examination to select 40 women for the pilot program. Some 1400 applicants participated in a written examination held exclusively for the women, followed by a physical fitness test. The physical test was not the same as that given to men. It was a special test, devised by the University as more suitable for women. That in itself was a recognition that women are different and cannot be judged equally or expected to possess the same strength as men.

THE VERY FACT that the written examination was held just for the women applicants thwarts the theory of equality. Since appointments to the patrol are made on the basis of those scoring the highest in a given test, true equality could only be demonstrated by having the men and women competing freely in the same exam at the same time. But, in demanding equality, the women want to be accorded special treatment. And that is the point which destroys their claims of equality.

On the women's side there are few professions or occupations where a difference in sex has any relationshiy to the ability to do the job. And those choosing one to do the job should be blindfolded as to sex. Women who attempt to force their way into those few jobs which are particularly and exclusively suited to men make themselves appear ridiculous

FOR THOSE who need specific examples, a woman can serve as a judge, governor or president just as well as a man. But one would hardly advocate a woman attendant in a men's room or a man cateringto the ladies in the sanctity of the powder room.

Gerald Ford's happiest thought is that if impeachment should come to a vote there's no way he'd have to break a tie.

Some of the pro-Nixon people wish they'd never said impeachment was the only proper way to deal with Watergate.

News reporters in Washington are stubborn. They refuse to agree that Richard Nixon's troubles began with the invention of the printing press.

There are all kinds of crime, but experts agree the greatest white collar offense is a dirty neck.

Big Labor's Political Funds Back Democratic Campaigns

(Reprinted from The Detroit News)

At a time of unparalleled public resentment of special-interest pressures in U.S. politics, we learn that organized labor has poured more than $1 million into the 1974 political campaigns and will bring another $5 million or more to bear as needed.

This political fund, supplemented by "educational" money provided from union dues and by the free services of union volunteers and political specialists, will go largely to the campaigns of Democratic candidates for the U.S. House and Senate.

When you consider how deeply obligated to organized labor many Democratic candidates will be, if elected, you begin to understand what union leaders mean when they talk of their desire to see the country elect a "veto-proof" Congress.

A Congress so lopsided that it couldn't be restrained by a presidential veto would be bad enough under any circumstances. It would be an absolute disaster if its majority were heavily indebted to a voracious and demanding special-interest group, such as the leadership of organized labor.

The presidential veto is a valuable safeguard against congressional irresponsibility; it gives the public a court of last resort against bad legislation; it helps preserve the principle of the separation of powers.

Americans in recent months have been made aware, with vigorous help from congressional Democrats, of the hazards of irresponsible use of power. After witnessing that irresponsibility in the executive branch, will the country readily hand unbridled power to Congress?

As the politicians of organized labor warm up their money machine, the Gallup Poll reports the percentage of Americans calling themselves Republicans has fallen to an all-time low. In view of Watergate, this comes as no real surprise. The dirt on a handful of offenders has rubbed off on an entire political party, smearing the innocent along with the guilty.

Consequently, organized labor senses a rare opportunity which it intends to exploit to the full. Although most of the dropouts from the Republican Party have moved for the moment into the "independent" column, they may well be ripe for the plucking by labor-backed Democratic candidates.

Clearly, the GOP faces disaster unless in the coming months it can persuade the voters to distinguish between the Republican White House and that separate and distinct Republican Party which resides outside the White House gates. And if a GOP disaster ushers in a veto-proof Congress, the worst effects of that disaster will be felt in time by the entire nation.

Voting Delay Could Improve Nixon's Chance Of Acquittal

WASHINGTON — It was Rep. Lawrence Hogan Jr. of Maryland who put in perspective the descent of the House judiciary committee into wrangle and pettifog after the first day of noble exposition. Now, he said, we're letting the public see what our closed sessions have been like.

Yet when the final vote came on Article 1, the sense of solemn responsibility was restored.

WHATEVER THE motives, the delaying tactics of Rep. Charles W. Sandman Jr. of New Jersey and the others slowing action on what was inevitable from the first test vote did nothing to help President Nixon's cause. The public has had Watergate right up to the neck. To wake up and discover one fine morning that it has gone away is the dream of most Americans.

In the closed circle around the President there seems little or no understanding of the public mood. As so often, White House tactics are self-defeating.

The President's counsel, James St. Clair, in responding to the 8-to-0 Supreme Court decision, spoke of how monitoring the 64 tapes and readying them for the grand jury would be "time consuming." It is fair to ask why these steps were not taken long before in preparation of just this eventuality.

THE GRIM ORDEAL of impeachment still has months to go and that raises the question of how the House handles the case. If the articles of impeachment come to the floor with a rule permitting amendments, debate can go on for far more than the 60 to 100 hours which is the outside estimate. That will be true particularly if television in the House encourages grandstanding for constituents back in the districts.

The truly grim prospect is the appalling length of time the process will take under the best of circumstances. From those anticipating a vote of impeachment in the House and trying to make the essential plans, here is a probable timetable.

SHORT OF stalling tactics, the House will meet the announced deadline and vote on Aug. 23. The Senate will then go immediately into executive session to confirm the housekeeping details. This includes seating of visitors and press, the requirements of television and other matters governing the trial of a president for only the second time in history.

Most important in the closed session will be the vote on the time granted the President to prepare his defense. Majority Leader Mike Mansfield puts this at a maximum of three weeks. Minority Leader Hugh Scott believes it will be not less than four weeks.

WITH THAT OUT of the way, the Senate in open televised session will hear the House managers, the term in the Constitution for the Representatives who will in effect be prosecutors, to present the formal charges. That will take perhaps a full day.

After an over-Labor Day recess the Senate comes back to normal business until both prosecution and defense have completed their respective cases. This means start of the actual trial on Oct. 1. Optimists, Mansfield among them, say a vote can come as early as Nov. 15. This allows for a three-day recess for the Nov. 5 election.

THE PESSIMISTS, of whom Scott is one, are convinced the final vote on acquittal or conviction will be Dec. 15 or later.

Hints are coming from White House strategists that if the vote comes after the election, the President's chances of acquittal are good. Senators defeated or Republicans newly elected for a six-year term would feel free to vote their party loyalty and free the beleaguered President.

THUS THE President's neck might be saved so he could complete his term, thanks to two or three votes beyond the one-third required for acquittal. But the wholly cynical tactic of prolonging the ordeal, perhaps even into 1975, will complete the distrust and disillusionment with all institutions of government. That is an intolerable price for keeping a crippled chief executive in office.

Those who must conduct the business of the trial which now seems inevitable speak of it with dread and something like horror. It is a nightmare they had never contemplated. But they are honorable men and they mean to go through with their constitutional responsibilities to the bitter end.

White House Is Taking Pains To Avoid Impeachment Politics

By GODFREY SPERLING JR.
The Christian Science Monitor News Service

WASHINGTON D.C. — The White House has adopted a "hands-off" policy toward members of the House and Senate, indicating its current frustrations in trying to cope with mounting impeachment pressures.

From sources deep within the administration come these decisions:

— To avoid even the appearance of White House "arm twisting" with either House or Senate members. Even friendly "good will" visits to members will be stopped — unless specifically tied in with an administration bill.

— A SIMILAR "hands-off" policy will be adopted on legislation that might please legislators who could be helpful in blocking impeachment or ouster. Time is running short. And the White House asks: what helps or hurts President Nixon most, pleasing conservatives or pleasing liberals in Congress? While "conservative" legislation may be helpful in the House it might be highly detrimental in the Senate.

While "hands-off" and some other sketchy plans are emerging from new discussions high within the administration (perhaps a television address, perhaps some more speeches around the country), the White House so far seems to have been unable to shape a successful course for winning the necessary numbers in the House to anti-impeachment position.

IT IS NORMAL for the executive side to talk to and seem to persuade members of Congress to support administration-backed measures. The President's aides bring "heavy guns" at times to help them with important legislation.

Up to now there may have been little of such effort on the subject of impeachment — although even observers in the Democratic National Committee say they cannot be certain this has been going on.

BUT NOW, one White House aide says: "From now on even the most polite contact on our part might well be misinterpreted — and it might boomerang. Even a friendly 'hello' now may well be viewed as impeachment politics."

The idea of pushing bills which anti-impeachment, anti-ouster congressmen and senators might like was rejected in weeks past by White House strategists. Now it has been considered anew — and turned down again.

EARLIER, there were White House aides who saw the President's future turning on what Republicans plus conservative Democrats would do on impeachment in the House. Thus they felt that legislation with a conservative bent would be the best impeachment politics.

But now White House thinking is focusing on possible if not likely Senate impeachment action and this question is asked: What happens if we antagonize the "liberal" Republicans in the Senate?

Here the White House is thinking about Republicans in the "liberal" or "moderate" bloc in the Senate, including Lowell Weicker, Charles Percy, Mark Hatfield, Robert Packwood, Charles Mathias, Clifford Case, Edward Brooke, Milton Young, and Jacob Javits.

SAID ONE INFORMANT on White House thinking: "These senators are already less than friendly with the President. But Nixon will need his Republicans, or most of them, if he is going to avoid conviction. So he must not do anything more to irritate them."

Actually, if the White House sought to influence Congress through legislation during the last few months, such "impeachment politics" is difficult to trace with any certainty.

ONE ASSESSMENT from the Republican leadership side says this of White House legislation efforts: "If there are any impeachment politics at work, it is that the President now seems to be trying to hold hands with everybody on the Hill. He's trying to win friends with both sides. Thus, he's throwing a mix at us."

Said an assistant from the Democratic National Committee: "If there is any impeachment politics at work in the President's legislation, I can't find it. I would be delighted if I could. But I can't."

Fred Zelinsky Is Giving Up Piece-Meal Planning Method

At last after many years, landowner Fred G. Zelinsky of Belvedere has come up with master plans for the 14 or so acres of land he owns in downtown Tiburon.

(City staff estimate that he owns about one-third of the remaining open property in the city's central core).

FOR A LONG time, Zelinsky has been a colorful and sometimes frustrating character for the city planning staff and commission to work with. Like many, he seems to think that much of the red tape connected with building projects is unnecessary. According to the planning department, it was not unusual for him to come in of an afternoon with his plans sketched out on the back of a cocktail napkin or a skirt cardboard and announce that the bulldozers would be there shortly.

Needless to say, he had many run-ins with the bureaucracy.

A few months ago, the planning commission told him that he could no longer go on developing on a piecemeal basis — a building here, a building there.

HE WOULD HAVE to bring in a total long range plan for all his property, just as Southern Pacific Railroad has done for its 36 acres in downtown Tiburon.

The city council later modified that dictum and said Zelinsky could split his land into two projects — one for acreage north of Tiburon Boulevard and one for land to the south.

So he has presented the plans for the two areas. Of course, that doesn't mean that he can't and won't change his mind again.

THE FINANCIALLY troubled Mill Valley School District, which will ask voters in November for permission to increase spending per pupil, estimated recently that 330 district children go to private instead of public schools.

At $1,223 per pupil, which was the revenue spending limit set for the district in 1973-74, this means an annual loss of $403,590 in income for the district.

THESE DISSATISFIED pupils would add another 10 per cent to district enrollment if they came back to the fold.

Curry Eckelhoff, a Tamalpais Valley mother, now claims that another 23 6th graders will drop out of the Mill Valley system next fall because their parents don't want them in the Mill Valley Middle School, which has been the center of recent controversy.

Most of these children, she says, will go to Our Lady of Mount Carmel in Mill Valley or St. Hilary's in Tiburon.

Impeachment Speeches Aimed At Improving Public Images

WASHINGTON — Now that the House is going to vote on impeachment, every congressman is feverishly at work writing a speech which will not only be seen and heard by 220 million Americans but, more important, by his own constituents.

Since their political futures are hanging in the balance, most congressmen are asking for all the help they can get.

I RECEIVED a call from my good friend Congressman Turntable yesterday. "You have to help me with my impeachment speech," he said.

"No problem," I said. "I've written a lot of impeachment speeches in my time. Now the first thing you have to do is set the right tone. What kind of decision will you have to make?"

"The most agonizing and painful decision of my life."

"That's good," I said. "And what do you have to throw away?"

"All partisan considerations."

"WHAT DO YOU plan to vote with?" I asked.

"My hand?"

"No, stupid. Your conscience. And don't forget you also have to search your soul."

"Listen, can you go a little slower so I can write this down?"

"Right. Now what kind of obligation do you have as a congressman?"

"An important obligation?"

"NO! NO! NO! A sacred obligation. Don't forget you took a solemn oath to uphold the Constitution of the land."

"Which the forefathers of our country in their wisdom provided us."

"That's good, Turntable. Now let's get to the heart of the speech. What is no man in the United States above?"

"The law?"

"YOU GOT IT. And, therefore, you, as a chosen representative of the people — all the people — must face up to a certain kind of question. What kind?"

"Uh, uh, uh. Can you give me a hint?"

"A momentous question, a question that troubles you, a question that you have been wrestling with for over a year."

"What's the question?" Turntable asked.

"CAN THIS GREAT nation survive when criminal acts by those in high power go unpunished?"

"When do I get to say 'on the other hand'?"

"I'm coming to that. On the other hand you have to have evidence. What kind of evidence, Turntable?"

"Beats me."

"Clear and convincing evidence."

"That's the best kind," Turntable agreed.

"YOU MUST WEIGH the evidence carefully, because the only thing you are searching for is the truth. Now to sum up on a personal note. What will you have to do every morning for the rest of your life?"

"Eat breakfast?"

"No, damn it. You have to look in the mirror every morning and ask yourself, 'Have I done what's best for America?'"

"That's got a nice ring to it," Turntable said.

"NOW, WHO are you going to ask for guidance in this grave hour of crisis, when your vote will affect future generations of Americans for all time to come?"

"My wife?"

"Try again."

"My campaign manager?"

"God, Turntable, GOD!"

"Of course," he said happily. "Why didn't I think of that myself?"

Guam Debates Death Penalty

AGANA, Guam (UPI) — The legislature yesterday debated proposed legislation to impose the death penalty for certain crimes.

At present the death penalty can be imposed only for persons convicted of slaying law enforcement officers, the governor or the lieutenant governor.

Civil courts in Guam have never ordered an execution. The last persons executed were of two Air Force men convicted of raping and slaying a civil service employe, Ruth Farnsworth. They were hanged in 1948 at Andersen Air Force Base.

The unsolved murders of three young persons last week apparently prompted the legislature to re-examine existing capital punishment laws.

Movie Makers Sue Distributors

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — A suit seeking a total of $36 million in damages has been filed by two independent movie producers against three movie companies.

The action, against Metro Goldwyn-Mayer, Inc., United Artists Corp., and Cinema International Corp., of the Netherlands, charges conspiracy to restrain trade.

The suit was filed by Walter Seltzer Productions and Russell Thacher Productions, Inc.

Specific charges include failure to distribute movies as contracted.

MGM in 1973 went out of the film distribution business and United Artists then took over all of the movies MGM had been handling.
